PREFACE.

THIS treatise has been written in order to show, in a summary form, the Law relating to Patents for Inventions as altered by the Act of the last Session, 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83.

The Appendix contains all the Statutes, together with various forms, pleadings, particulars of breaches, notices of objections, &c.

The Rules and Regulations issued by the Commissioners of Patents are also given in the Appendix. A doubt had existed whether they were to be acted upon, or whether others in substitution should not be issued (see note 2 to page 9); but that doubt no longer exists.

It may be worthy of notice in this place, as an important alteration effected by the Statute above-mentioned, that the limitation of the number of persons interested in a Patent to twelve, hitherto in force, is now removed, so that in future a Joint Stock Company may be formed for the working of Patents.

LAW OF PATENTS.

SECTION I.

INTRODUCTION.

LETTERS PATENT (literæ patentēs) are so called because they are not sealed up, but exposed to open view, with the great seal pendant at the bottom. The grant of a patent right is not ex debito justitiæ, but an act of royal favour. Introduction.

The law of patents may be said to be founded upon the 6th section of the 21 Jac. I. ch. 3.<sup>1</sup> By the common law as to patents, before that time all monopolies were illegal and void. The statutory provision just referred to was made in affirmance of that common law, and introduced no other alteration than the restriction in point of time for which a patent might be granted. It may, however, be stated, that cases decided before the statute of James prove that grants by the crown to persons who had brought any new trade into the realm were good at common law.<sup>2</sup>

tion.

A distinction should be borne in mind between a right to the exclusive use of a discovery secured by patent, and the right of a manufacturer to be protected from the attempt of another to persuade the public that the article sold is the production of the former, or, to use the words of Sir Thomas Plumer, Vice-Chancellor,<sup>1</sup> “a fraudulent attempt by one man to invade another’s property, by appropriating the benefit of a valuable interest in the nature of good will, consisting in the character of his trade or production, established by individual merit, —the other representing himself to be the same person, and his trade or production the same (as in Hogg v. Kirby, 8 Ves. 215), combining imposition on the public with injury to the individual.”<sup>2</sup>

The first and principal statute relating to patents is the “Act concerning Monopolies and Dispensations with Penal Laws and the Forfeitures thereof,”<sup>3</sup> which declares that

<sup>2</sup> And see Blofield v. Payne, 4 B. & Ad. 410; Archbold v. Sweet, 1 Moo. & Rob. 162. See Pierce v. Franks, 15 Law J., N. S. 122, Ch.; where an injunction was granted to restrain the defendant from selling tooth and nail brushes on which the words “Smyths, Bond Street” were stamped, that being a trade-mark to which the plaintiff was entitled.

<sup>3</sup> 21 Jac. I. c. 3, App. 57. See Reg. v. Prosser, 18 Law J., N. S. 35, Ch., where the Master of the monopolies are contrary to law, but enacts that such declaration shall not extend to any letters patent and grants of privilege for the term of fourteen years or under, hereafter to be made, of the sole working or making of any manner of new manufactures within this realm, to the true and first inventor or inventors of such manufactures, which others, at the time of making such letters patent and grants, shall not use; so also as they be not contrary to the law nor mischievous to the state, by raising prices of commodities at home, or hurt of trade, or generally inconvenient; the said fourteen years to be accounted from the date of the said letters patent or grant of such privilege hereafter to be made, but that the same shall be of such force as they should be if this act never had been made, and of none other.”<sup>1</sup>

The next statute is “An Act to amend the Law touching Letters Patent for Inventions,”<sup>2</sup> which recites that it is “expedient to make certain additions to and alterations in the present law touching letters patent for inventions, as well for the better pro-

Rolls says, “an illegal monopoly is a public grievance.”

<sup>2</sup> 5 & 6 W. IV. c. 83, App. 66. The term “invention” is interpreted by the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, s. 55, App. 110, to mean “any manner of new manufacture. the subject of letters patent and grant of privilege within the meaning of the 21 James I. c. 3.”

tion.

protecting of patentees in the rights intended to be secured by such letters patent, as for the more ample benefit of the public from the same,"—and which empowers the Privy Council to extend for seven years longer the term mentioned in the statute of James.

And two subsequent statutes have been passed,<sup>1</sup> under which power is given to grant a still further extension of term, on the ground that it is expedient, for the further encouragement of inventions in the useful arts, to enable the time of monopoly in patents to be extended in cases in which it can be satisfactorily shown that the expense of the invention has been greater than the time then limited by law will suffice to reimburse.<sup>2</sup>

And, lastly, is the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83,<sup>3</sup> which constitutes commissioners of patents, and contains various and important provisions as to the mode of obtaining letters patent, and the effect to be given to them, &c. Under this statute the commissioners' seal is affixed to warrants for letters patent, and all instruments and copies issued by them. The seal, as also impressions of it, are received in evidence, in like manner as impressions of the great seal. Copies or extracts of documents certified under the commissioners' seal are made evidence.<sup>1</sup> Rules and regulations respecting the business of their office may be made from time to time by the commissioners.<sup>2</sup>

SECTION II.

WHO MAY OBTAIN A PATENT.

As already shown, the person who may obtain a patent is required by the statute to be "the true and first inventor of such manufactures which others, at the time of making such letters patent and grants, shall not use."<sup>3</sup>

Who may

The word inventor refers to some exertion of ingenuity, and supposes some difficulty surmounted; so that when the new manufacture is of an obvious character, requiring no skill or contrivance for its production, it is not a fit subject for protection under a patent.<sup>4</sup> None can claim the character of

<sup>2</sup> Sect. 3. Some rules have been published, but I find from the Attorney-General that they are not intended to be acted upon (15th December, 1852); if fresh ones are published in time, they will be added to the Appendix.

true and first inventor, if it appear that the novelty was first suggested to him by some other person in this country.<sup>1</sup> But where the secret is acquired abroad, by one who afterwards introduces it into the realm, he is considered as the true inventor; for it is immaterial whether the benefit bestowed on the public be the result of a man's travel and observation, or the fruit of his original genius.<sup>2</sup>

If a patentee himself has, before obtaining his patent, made the particular article for sale, as an article of commerce, for gain to himself, and been in the practice of selling it publicly, that is, to any one who would buy, the invention cannot be said to be new at the date of the patent. This appears to be founded on reason; for if an inventor could sell his invention, keeping the secret to himself, and when it was likely to be discovered by another, take out a patent, he might have practically a monopoly for a much longer period than the term intended to be granted.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Baron Parke's judgment, Morgan v. Seaward, 2 M. & W. 559; and see Wood v. Zimmer, Holt's N. P. C. 60, where Gibbs, C. J., says: "They gave it to the world without a patent, and they cannot afterwards obtain a patent." See Cornish v. Keene, 3 Bing. N. C. 570, 588; Lewis v. Marling,

A person who has taken his idea from a book, or from the information of others, is not the true and first inventor;<sup>1</sup> but a discoverer who has employed a skilful person to assist in the mechanical parts of his contrivance has a right to the additions made by that person, and may include them in his patent.<sup>2</sup>

Who may obtain a patent.

A person who has imported an invention into this country, where it was not known before, is a first inventor within the meaning of the statute; and it does not affect the patent that the party importing the invention is merely an agent for the inventor, nor that the patent was taken out in trust for aliens residing abroad.<sup>3</sup>

In the case of two simultaneous discoverers, he who first procures a patent, before the matter is made public, is entitled to enjoy the exclusive privilege it confers.<sup>4</sup>

But a person, believing himself to be the "true and first inventor," may subsequently discover that another person really was so. In such a case, the statute law provides, as hereafter shown, that such letters may be confirmed, or new ones granted by the Privy Council on petition.<sup>1</sup>

Where a person obtains a patent in the United Kingdom, and the like privilege had been obtained abroad, for an invention first invented there, the former becomes void immediately upon the determination of the foreign patent.<sup>2</sup>

Executors and administrators may obtain letters patent at any time within three months after the death of the applicant, if that occurs during provisional or other protection, notwithstanding the term of such protection may have expired.<sup>3</sup>

SECTION III.

FOR WHAT A PATENT MAY BE OBTAINED.

For what a patent may be obtained.

ACCORDING to the statutes, a patent may be obtained for "the sole working or making of any manner of new manufactures which others at the time of making such letters patent and grant shall not use."<sup>4</sup>

“The word manufacture in the statute is of extensive signification, and applies not merely to things made, but to the practice of making, to principles carried into practice by means tangible and capable of being accurately described. Undoubtedly there can be no patent for a mere principle; but for a principle so far embodied and connected with corporeal substances as to be in a condition to act and to produce effects in any trade, mystery, or manual occupation, there may be a patent.”<sup>1</sup>

For what a patent may be obtained.

A patent may be obtained for a mere process, as, for instance, “for a new and improved process or manufacture of silk, and silk in combination with certain other fibrous substances;”<sup>2</sup> so also for improvements in the mode of doing anything by a known process.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Bolton v. Bull, 2 H. Bl. 492, 495, judgment of C. J. Eyre; and see Hornblower v. Boulton, 8 T. R. 95. See also Rex v. Wheeler, 2 B. & A. 350, 353; 3 Meriv. 629; Minter v. Wells, 5 Tyr. 163; Lewis v. Davis, 3 C. & P. 502; Hullett v. Hague, 2 B. & Ad. 370; Cornish v. Keene, 3 Bing. N. C. 570; Kay v. Marshall, 5 Bing. N. C. 492; Saunders v. Aston, 3 B. & Ad. 881. See a construction of “manufacture” in Morgan v. Seaward, 2 M. & W. 558, and in Cornish v. Keene.

<sup>2</sup> 1 Gibson v. Campbell, 11 Law J., N. S. 177, C. P.; and see Boulton v. Bull, 2 H. Bl. 468; Rex v. Wheeler, 2 B. & A. 345. See also Walton v. Potter, 11 Law J., N. S. 138, C. P., as to what was a new invention in the particular circumstances of the case.

For what a patent may be obtained.

And an invention, consisting in no more than in the use of things already known, and acting with them in a way already known, and producing effects already known, but producing those effects so as to be more economically or beneficially enjoyed by the public, is also properly the subject matter of a patent.<sup>1</sup>

It is a question of fact for the jury, not of law for the judge, whether an invention is a new manufacture.<sup>2</sup>

It must not only be a manufacture, but such a new manufacture which others at the time of the making of the patent do not use. The invention may be a manufacture, and the claimant may be its first and true inventor; still, if it have been used within the realm, it cannot be the subject of a patent.<sup>3</sup>

And as already stated elsewhere, this is founded on reason; for if it were otherwise, the inventor might have practically a monopoly for a much longer period than the term granted by the patent.<sup>4</sup>

By using, however, is meant an using publicly, for (as in Dolland's patent for object glasses) if two persons make the same discovery, and one forbear to divulge it, the other will have a right to obtain a patent for it.<sup>1</sup> But a public use of an invention does not mean a general use, but a use in public, as distinguished from one that is secret.<sup>2</sup>

For what a patent may be obtained.

To an action for an infringement of a patent for a lock, the defendant pleaded that the lock was not "a new invention" as to the public use thereof. It appeared that a lock, similar to that of the plaintiff's, had been used by a third party, on a gate by the road-side, for sixteen years before the patent was taken out, and that locks on the same principle had been manufactured in this country for money, from a pattern sent from America, and had afterwards been exported to that country. It was held, that under these circumstances the defendant was entitled to the verdict.<sup>3</sup>

It has also been held, upon the equity and general policy of the statute, that the manufacture for which a patent is granted must be useful<sup>4</sup> to the community.

For what a patent may be obtained.

If, then, it be a manufacture not before used in this realm, and likely to prove beneficial to the public, it is unimportant whether the subject matter of the patent be a thing existing independently and by itself, or an addition to or improvement upon something before existing. But if the latter be the case, the patent must be for the addition or improvement only, not for the thing added to or improved.<sup>1</sup> Of course, if the addition or improvement be made to the subject matter of an existing patent, the second patentee will have no right to manufacture that, but must make and sell his own invention separately<sup>2</sup>

SECTION IV.

HOW TO OBTAIN A PATENT.

How to obtain a patent.

A patent is obtained by petition to the Crown.<sup>3</sup>

Pat. Ca. 118; Morgan v. Seaward, 2 M. & W. 544; Edgeberry v. Stephens, 2 Salk. 447; Davies' Pat. Ca. 36.

The "application" for letters patent, together with the "provisional specification," is referred by the commissioners to the law officer,<sup>3</sup> who, if satisfied that the "provisional specification," describes the nature of the invention, gives a certificate of allowance,<sup>4</sup> which is filed by the commissioners. Upon this, the invention may be "used and published" during six months from the date of the petition. This is called "provisional protection," and is without prejudice to any letters patent to be afterwards granted for the same invention.<sup>5</sup>

But the applicant may, if he think fit, file with his "petition" and "declaration" a "complete specification"<sup>6</sup> (instead of a

<sup>4</sup> The law officer may call in scientific or other aid if necessary, but at the expense of the applicant: he may also amend the "title of the invention," or the "provisional specification," if "too large or insufficient:" s. 8.

Any person “having an interest in opposing the grant of letters patent for the said invention” may leave written objections to the application with the commissioners.<sup>1</sup> When the time for delivery of the objections has expired, the provisional or complete specification and objections are referred to the law officer to whom the original application had been referred.<sup>2</sup>

SECTION V.

FORM AND OPERATION OF PATENT—LICENCES.

Form and

THE recent statute, 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, gives the form of a patent.<sup>3</sup> It contains a clause by which it is to be “construed and adjudged in the most favourable and beneficial sense for the best advantage of the patentee.”

The term of a patent commences with and includes its date : where it was dated 26th February, 1825, the fourteen years were held to expire at midnight of the 25th February, 1839.<sup>4</sup>

The title of a patent is a description, in general terms, of the particular invention. The reader will bear in mind the distinction between this title and the particular description of the nature and mode of working the invention contained in the specification hereinafter treated of.<sup>1</sup>

Form and operation of patent.

A patent will not be void from mere vagueness and generality in its title, or, in other words, in the description of the thing for which the patent has been obtained, unless, indeed, there is evidence leading to an inference of fraud upon the Crown, or prejudice to the public. Such was the decision where the patent was for "improvements in carriages:" the improvement, in fact, consisted of using "German shutters."<sup>2</sup>

So the title was held not ambiguous or repugnant where it was for "a new or improved method of obtaining the spontaneous reproduction of all the images received in the focus of the camera obscura."<sup>3</sup>

Formerly every patent contained a clause making it void if a specification was not enrolled in chancery within a prescribed time.<sup>4</sup>

But now all letters patent under the new statute, except only those granted after the filing of a complete specification, require the specification thereunder to be filed in chancery, and not enrolled.<sup>1</sup> And the letters patent now, in lieu of a condition for making them void in case the invention be not described and ascertained by a subsequent specification, are conditioned to become void if the complete specification, filed as hereafter mentioned,<sup>2</sup> does not “particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the said invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed.”<sup>3</sup>

There is also a condition making them void at the expiration of three years and seven years respectively from the date, unless before those periods terminate the monies and stamp duties mentioned in the Act are paid to the commissioners.<sup>4</sup>

The patent always contained another clause, providing that it should be void if transferred to more than five persons, or, in <sup>1</sup> 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, s. 27, App. 96. See further as to specification, post, 24, 30. It will be observed that provisional and complete specifications are filed with the commissioners, but those required after the grant of the letters must be filed in chancery.

any of certain modes therein described, rendered beneficial to more than five persons.<sup>1</sup>

Form and operation of patent.

This clause, however, applied to assignments by the act of the party, not to those by operation of law.<sup>2</sup>

But it is now enacted, that, notwithstanding any such proviso, more than twelve persons may have a legal and beneficial interest in such letters patent.<sup>3</sup>

Where letters patent are granted, since the passing of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, for an "invention first invented" in a foreign country, or by the subject of a foreign state, and a patent or like privilege for the use of it in a foreign country is there obtained before the grant of such letters in the united kingdom, the latter become void immediately upon the expiration of the former.<sup>4</sup> And it is provided that letters patent are not to prevent the use of inventions in foreign ships resorting to British ports, except ships of <sup>1</sup> See Duvergier v. Fellowes, 5 Bing. 248, and 10 B. & C. 826.; Protheroe v. May, 5 M. & W. 675.

<sup>3</sup> 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, s. 36, App. 101. There will therefore no longer be the difficulty hitherto existing as to the working of patents by joint stock companies. Such companies, incorporated under the 7 & 8 Vict. c. 110, may now take to patents, with their capacity of applying a large capital, an advantage that will be extensively felt in respect of many patents. For information as to such associations, see Wordsworth's Law of Joint Stock Companies, 5th edition.

foreign states in whose ports British ships are prevented from using foreign inventions.<sup>1</sup>

It was said by Mr. Justice Bayley,<sup>2</sup> if a patent be taken out for several different things, the entire discovery of all those things is the consideration upon which the King is induced to make the grant; that consideration is entire, and if it fails in any part, it fails in toto. It may be considered by the persons who are to advise the Crown as to the propriety of the grant, that the discovery of the three things together may form the proper subject of a patent, though each per se would not induce them to recommend the grant; therefore, if a patent was taken out for two things, and one was old, the whole patent was void, although the other was new, and the proper subject of a patent.<sup>3</sup>

But, nevertheless, there does not appear to be any objection to a patent being taken out for that which includes the subject matter of a patent still in force, if the specification properly distinguish that which is new from that which is old.<sup>4</sup>

These difficulties are now, however, remedied by what is called a disclaimer of any part of either the title of the invention or of the specification, as hereafter explained.<sup>1</sup> Form and operation of patent.

With respect to the operation of a patent, it should also be remarked, that in order to prevent objections being vexatiously urged to the validity of a patent, contrary to the real justice of the case, the Privy Council may, under certain circumstances, confirm an existing patent. This, however, will be treated of at the same time that we consider the subject of prolongation of patents.<sup>2</sup>

It has been already seen that a patent may be assigned. The patentee or assignee may also grant licences to one person, or any number of persons, to manufacture the particular article. They need not be under seal,<sup>3</sup> and do not require to be stamped.<sup>4</sup> Licences.

If a licence be granted, and the licensee transfer his interest, the transferee is not thereby prevented from disputing the validity of the patent.<sup>5</sup>

The grant of an exclusive licence to use a patent does not invalidate the patent itself, whatever may be the number of persons in whom the licence is vested; nor is a licence invalid if the district covered by it includes the extent of the patent.<sup>6</sup>

SPECIFICATION.

Specifica-
tion.

THE letters patent, as will be seen by referring to the form given by the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83,<sup>1</sup> contain a proviso making them void if the patentee shall not particularly describe the nature of his invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed, by an instrument in writing under his hand and seal, and cause it to be filed within the limited time therein mentioned. This instrument is called a specification.

But whether the letters patent, in such a case, become void from the date of the letters, or only from the expiration of the prescribed period, does not appear to have been determined.<sup>2</sup>

The time for filing a specification is reckoned exclusively of the day the patent bears date.<sup>3</sup>

With respect to the framing of the specification, it should, to use the language of Buller's Nisi Prius,<sup>4</sup> be such, that others may be taught by it to do the things for which the patent is granted; for the end and meaning of the specification is to teach the public, after the term for which the patent is granted, what the art is. And it must put the public in possession of the secret in as ample and beneficial a way as the patentee himself uses it; and the description should be such as to enable persons of ordinary skill to make the patent article, by simply following the directions given, without resorting to contrivances of their own.<sup>1</sup> Or, as has been said more recently, the terms of a specification are to be read altogether, and a fair and reasonable interpretation given thereto; then, if it be sufficiently plain to be understood by an operator of fair intelligence, the specification is good.<sup>2</sup>

Of late years, the courts have been more liberal than formerly in construing patents and specifications; and it has been said, that “a great deal too much critical acumen has been applied to the construction of patents, <sup>1</sup> Bloxam v. Elsee, 6 B. & C. 169; Crossley v. Beverley, 9 B. & C. 63. The specification must be sufficient within itself. It must not direct the public to books for information as to the mode of doing what it prescribes: Harman v. Playne, 11 East, 101; Jessop's Case, 2 H. Bl. 489; *Crossley v. tion.

as if the objects were to defeat and not to sustain them.”<sup>1</sup>

But, as will be more particularly shown hereafter,<sup>2</sup> those difficulties are in some degree removed by the statutory provisions, under which a patentee may enter a disclaimer of any part of either the title of the invention or of the specification.

It seems, however, that not only will the patent be void on failure to file a specification within the prescribed time, but also if the one filed is in any part of it materially false or defective.

In framing the specification, regard may be had to the following principal rules:—

In describing the nature of the invention, the specification must, in the first place, correspond with the title of the patent, for its office is to set forth with more particularity the subject already indicated in the patent itself; and if one thing be claimed by the patent, and another by the specification, the patent is void.<sup>3</sup>

The specification must not cover too much, that is, include in its claim of new invention anything which in fact has been already known and practised;<sup>4</sup>—therefore, if the entire article for which the patent has been taken out comprise some matter of this description, in connexion with others that are new, the claim should be made in such form as to apply to the latter only; or if the combination of several known things happen to be the only novelty, it is to the combination only that the claim should be pointed.

tion.

A specification may claim not only a principle, but a machine embodying a principle.<sup>1</sup>

It may be added, that no circumstance can be safely passed over in the description in the specification which is advantageous, whether absolutely essential or not, in the conduct of the process; and that if several methods be stated, the specification will be defective if any of them be found to fail in effecting the promised result.<sup>2</sup>

The patent will also be void if the specification be ambiguous, for in that case the public cannot be said to be enabled to avail themselves practically of it.<sup>3</sup>

tion.

The specification must be full—no necessary circumstance must be omitted.<sup>1</sup> The description in it may be aided by diagrams; but if the specification contain several heads of invention, the patentee must support all, or the patent will be void.<sup>2</sup> The insertion of unnecessary ingredients, constituting surplusage, vitiates the specification.<sup>3</sup>

If the patentee use cheaper ingredients than those specified, or if he specify a more tedious or less ready mode of using his invention than he himself employs, the patent will be bad, for the public do not then get the invention in the most beneficial manner, as they are entitled to have it:<sup>4</sup> so also, if the specification casts upon the public the expense and labour of experiment and trial.<sup>5</sup>

A patent for tapering brushes has been held not to be supported by a specification of brushes, the hairs of which varied from describe in a specification two ways of doing a thing, and by one way it cannot be done, the specification is bad. Per Maule, J.: *Beard v. an inch to a quarter of an inch in length, but did not end in a point;<sup>1</sup> and a patent for a method of drying and preparing malt was not sustained by a specification of a new method of heating ready-made malt.<sup>2</sup>

tion.

Sometimes a discrepancy arises between the title of an invention and the specification,—where the former was “improvements in the manufacture of plaited fabrics,” and the specification showed only a single improvement, the discrepancy was held not to be such as to invalidate the patent.<sup>3</sup>

It remains to observe, as to the requisites of the specification, that the new statute requires that the specification shall “particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed.”<sup>4</sup>

In an action for infringement, it is for the court, not the jury, to construe the meaning of the specification.<sup>5</sup> The judge is to state to the jury what the specification orders to be done, and the jury are to say whether it would produce the result.<sup>6</sup>

tion.

An office is appointed for filing specifications in Chancery. Every specification to be filed in pursuance of the condition of any letters patent must be there filed, and every "provisional specification" and "complete specification" left at the Commissioners' Office,<sup>1</sup> on the application for letters patent, forthwith after the grant of such letters, or if none be granted, then immediately on the expiration of six months from the time of such application, must be transferred to and kept at the office so appointed as above. An extra copy of the drawings must be left with the specification, if reference is made thereto in the specification deposited and filed under the Act.<sup>2</sup>

The commissioners are to cause true copies of all specifications (other than provisional ones), disclaimers, and memoranda of alterations filed in pursuance of the Act, and of all provisional specifications after the term of the provisional protection has expired, to be open to public inspection<sup>3</sup> at the Commissioners' Office.<sup>4</sup>

They are also to print, publish, and sell all specifications (including provisional ones),

SECTION VII.

DISCLAIMERS AND CAVEATS.

IF any error be discovered in the title of the patent, or in the specification, the patentee, or his assigns, may rectify it for the future (though not as regards any pending action or suit for an infringement), by filing with the specification to which it relates, at the office for filing specifications,<sup>3</sup> a disclaimer of any part of the title or specification, stating the reason for such disclaimer, or a memorandum of any alteration therein (not operating as an extension of the patent right); and the disclaimer or memorandum, when filed, <sup>Disclaimers
and

Disclaimers and Caveats. is unimpeachable, and is thenceforth to be deemed part of the letters patent or specification.<sup>1</sup>

It has been held, under 5 & 6 W. IV. c. 83, that the grantee of letters patent may enter a disclaimer, though at the time of doing so he had once parted with all his interest in the patent, but had since become assignee of two third parts by reconveyance.<sup>2</sup>

Before, however, a disclaimer can be filed, leave must be obtained from the law officers, the application for which must be made at the Commissioners' Office, after which it is referred to the law officers.<sup>3</sup>

No action can be brought on any letters patent in which, or on the specification of which, a disclaimer or memorandum of alteration has been filed, in respect of an infringement committed prior to the filing, unless the law officer shall grant his fiat for that purpose.<sup>4</sup>

It had been decided on the previous statute, that although a disclaimer had relation to the date of the letters patent, making them good from that time, yet that persons were not made wrongdoers by that relation, namely, for acts done between the date of the letters and the date of filing the disclaimer;<sup>1</sup> and the disclaimer or alteration cannot be received in evidence in any action or suit (except a proceeding by scire facias) pending at the time of filing. Before granting the fiat for filing a disclaimer or alteration, the law officer may require the applicant to advertise it; and if so advertised, the fiat states that such advertising has been made.<sup>2</sup>

and Caveats.

A caveat relating to the disclaimer or memorandum of alteration is lodged at the Commissioners' Office. This caveat gives the party filing it a right to have notice of the application being heard by the law officer.<sup>3</sup>

The fact of a party having entered a disclaimer does not in itself necessarily import that his patent as it stood was bad; for there are many reasons which might induce a patentee to disclaim, and yet his patent might have been originally good. The object of the statute in permitting disclaimers was not only to enable patentees to set themselves right when their patents are void, but also to afford them the means of preventing the doubts and difficulties which so frequently hang over trials relating to patents; to obviate them, parties were allowed the option of disclaiming.<sup>1</sup>

SECTION VIII.

INFRINGEMENT—COSTS—INJUNCTION.

IF a patent right be infringed, the inventor, or his assignee, may bring an action of trespass on the case, to recover damages for the injury sustained. He may also obtain an injunction, and thereby restrain the wrongdoer from the further use of the invention,<sup>2</sup> and compel him to account for the profits which he may have already derived from a sale of the article. And where an action is brought in the Superior Courts at Westminster for an infringement, the court, or a judge, if the court be not then sitting, may order an injunction, inspection, or account.<sup>3</sup>

In order to constitute an infringement, it is not necessary that the invention should have been servilely and precisely imitated—it will be sufficient that it has been so substantially, and in the main point ;<sup>1</sup> and in determining whether a defendant has infringed a patent, no question arises as to his intention, but only as to his acts.<sup>2</sup> And it appears that an infringement does not take place where the defendant is ignorant of the fact that he has used the same substance as that employed by the plaintiff. This was the decision of the Court of Exchequer ; but in the same case in equity, it was there considered, that although the act was committed unconsciously, the defendant was liable for the injury he had done.<sup>3</sup>

A person makes and puts in practice another's invention, who gives an order to make the particular thing by the other's process, the article being made, and afterwards received by the person ordering.<sup>4</sup>

Where a patent is granted for a combination of several things, some of which are old

and some new, the question for the jury is, whether, taking the specification altogether, that which is claimed as a whole is new; and the imitation by a chemical or mechanical equivalent of a part of the combination which is both material and new is an infringement.<sup>1</sup>

As it has been shown that the patent may be assigned, it need scarcely be said that the assignee is entitled to his action for an infringement, in the same manner as the patentee himself; indeed, the assignee may sue the inventor himself, if he use the invention after the assignment; and in his case it will not (though in ordinary cases it will) be a defence to show that the patent is invalid.<sup>2</sup>

A proceeding for infringement only may be successfully resisted, either on the ground that no infringement has, in fact, taken place, or that the patent is void; and its invalidity may be established by showing that the article was not a fit subject for a patent, or that the patentee was not the first inventor, or that the specification was insufficient.<sup>3</sup>

If an action be brought for the infringement of a patent, the plaintiff must deliver with his declaration particulars of the breaches he complains of; so also the defendant, on pleading thereto, must deliver with his pleas particulars of the objections on which he means to rely at the trial. Neither party can travel out of these particulars. It had been held that the notice need not state who was the first inventor, nor under what circumstances the invention was used before.<sup>1</sup> But under the new statute the places at or in which and in what manner the invention is alleged to have been used or published prior to the date of the letters patent, must be stated in the particulars. A judge at Chambers may permit an amendment of the particulars on terms.<sup>2</sup>

Breaches
and notice
of objections.

It will be observed, that the delivery of breaches by the plaintiff is a new provision; the former statute, 5 & 6 Will. IV. c. 83, having been confined to the delivery of a notice of objections to the patent by the defendant. The Court of Common Pleas, in an action for infringement of a patent, claimed to be for nine several improvements,

and notice
of objec-

had refused to make an order upon the plaintiff for particulars of the infringement.<sup>1</sup>

Objections are not part and parcel of the record, so as to be incorporated with the issues, and show that those specific objections are in issue; but they are more like particulars of the plaintiff's demand in an ordinary action, for the purpose of giving a defendant notice of what he has to meet at the trial.<sup>2</sup>

The objections must be more specific and particular than the pleas;<sup>3</sup> and as at Nisi Prius the only question for the judge is whether the notice fairly includes the objection, a previous application, if the notice is too general, should be made to the court or a judge for redress.<sup>4</sup>

An objection that the specification does not sufficiently describe the nature of the invention, and the manner in which it is to be performed, is sufficient;<sup>5</sup> but one which states that the invention is not new, and was either wholly or in part used and made public before obtaining the patent, is not sufficient, but must point out the material parts which have been previously in use.<sup>6</sup> ment, regard is had to the particulars delivered. Neither party is allowed costs in respect of any particular, unless certified by the judge at Nisi Prius to have been proved. This is without regard to the general costs of the cause.<sup>1</sup>

The judge is empowered to certify on the record, that the validity of the patent came in question. The record, with such certificate, being given in evidence in any action<sup>2</sup> for infringement, or in any proceeding by scire facias, entitles the plaintiff in the action, or the prosecutor of the scire facias, to his "full costs" taxed as between attorney and client, unless the judge at Nisi Prius shall certify that the party ought not to have full costs.<sup>3</sup>

It has been already shown,<sup>4</sup> that a power Injunction.
 is now, for the first time, given to courts of law to grant an injunction.

Equity also interferes by injunction in cases of infringement.

The principle upon which equity proceeds is, that where there has been long possession of a patent, the injunction ought to be granted, though the court may entertain considerable doubts of its validity, or may even be inclined against it, for that there is less inconvenience in granting the injunc-

But where the possession is recent, and the right doubtful, the court will not grant an injunction without putting the patentee to establish it in an action at law; nor will an injunction ever be granted, unless the applicant swear, at the time of applying, that he is the original inventor to the best of his belief; for though he swore this when he obtained the patent, yet he may have since discovered its want of originality.<sup>1</sup>

But it has since been determined, that even though a patent is of long standing, yet if, from the nature of the alleged invention, or the conflicting evidence as to its novelty, its validity appears to be doubtful, or if the evidence of exclusive possession is not satisfactory, an injunction will not be granted until the title has been established at law.<sup>2</sup>

SECTION IX.

PATENT—HOW AVOIDED.—SCIRE FACIAS.

THE action for infringement has been already Patent—how avoided. spoken of, and it has been seen what answers may be made to it. Another mode, however, of contesting the validity of a patent is by suing out a writ of scire facias.<sup>1</sup> This proceeding formally impeaches the patent.

The issuing of the scire facias is a pro- Scire facias. ceeding of the Crown for the benefit of the public, adopted and authorized upon information that letters patent are void and of no force or effect in law, for some such reason as, that the conditions upon which the grant was made were not performed; that the grant was improperly made; or that, in effect, a monopoly supposed to be granted legally has been granted illegally, and to the prejudice of the public or her Majesty's subjects.

The writ is not granted as of course. The Attorney-General, who authorizes the issuing of it, has the right and duty of controlling the conduct of the action. In the ordinary course of proceeding upon a scire facias, it is within the Attorney-General's discretion to determine upon what or whose information, or on what terms, he will permit the action to be prosecuted. His exercise of that discretion, in the conduct of the action,

Scire facias, is not subject to the control of the Court in which the proceeding takes place.

It does not affect the issuing of the scire facias that the information was given by an alien, or by a person who had no special or direct interest in the matter, or was endeavouring to promote the interest of some other person, or was actuated by some improper motive—for an illegal monopoly is a public grievance.<sup>1</sup>

The writ of scire facias<sup>2</sup> to repeal letters patent may be issued to the sheriff of the county wherein the grantee resided at the time the letters were granted; but if he do not reside in the United Kingdom, it will be sufficient to file the writ in the Petty Bag Office, and serve a written notice of it at his last known residence or place of business.<sup>3</sup>

The prosecutor in scire facias is required to deliver with his declaration particulars of objections on which he means to rely at the trial in support of the suggestions in the declaration. No evidence can be given at the trial in support of any objection impeaching the validity of the letters patent which is not contained in the particulars.<sup>4</sup>

<sup>2</sup> See 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, s. 35 & 43, App. 99, 105, as to proceedings in Scotland to repeal letters patent, and for infringement.

The particulars must also disclose the Scire facias places where, and the manner in which, the invention is alleged to have been used or published prior to the date of the letters.<sup>1</sup>

A judge at Chambers may amend these particulars upon such terms as he may think fit.<sup>1</sup>

On the trial of the scire facias, the defendant begins and gives evidence in support of his patent; and in case evidence be adduced by the prosecutor impeaching the validity of the patent, the defendant will be entitled to the reply.<sup>1</sup>

The judgment<sup>2</sup> in scire facias to repeal a patent is, “that the said letters patent be cancelled, vacated, disallowed, annulled, made void and invalid, and be altogether had and held for nothing; and also that the enrolment thereof be cancelled, and that the said letters patent be restored into her said Majesty’s Court of Chancery at Westminster aforesaid, there to be cancelled.”

After issue joined in scire facias, the defendant enrolled a disclaimer. The Court held, that such disclaimer was not only admissible for the defendant, but that it was to be read as part of the original specification, and that it was not necessary to plead the disclaimer puis darrein continuance.<sup>3</sup>

SECTION X.

REGISTER OF PATENTS AND OF PROPRIETORS.

Register of patents and of proprietors.

A "REGISTER of patents" is kept at the office for filing specifications in Chancery: the register itself, or a copy, is open to public inspection.<sup>1</sup>

In the same office is kept a "register of proprietors." This contains assignments of the letters patent, or shares therein; licences granted thereunder, with the names of parties, and other particulars. Any person may obtain a certified copy, under seal of the office, of any entry in the book, which is made evidence in all Courts and in all proceedings, and primâ facie proof of assignment, or of the licence or proprietorship, as therein expressed. But until such an entry has been made, the grantee of letters patent is deemed to be the sole proprietor thereof, and of the licences and privileges thereby given.<sup>2</sup> The register, or a copy, is open to public inspection at the Commissioners' Office.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>3</sup> 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83. s. 35, App. 99. The falsifying or forging of entries, or tendering in evidence of such entries, is made a misdemeanor, s. 37.

These entries may, however, be expunged, vacated, or varied by direction of the Master of the Rolls, or a Court of Common Law at Westminster in term time, or by a judge in vacation; and costs may be given.<sup>1</sup>

SECTION XI.

PROLONGATION OF PATENTS—CONFIRMATION.

It sometimes happens that, from the amount of the expenses incurred in perfecting the invention, or protecting the patent right from infringement, or from other causes, the patentee is unable to reap within the period to which his privilege is limited any reward fairly adequate to the labour and ingenuity employed. In favour of a party so situated, the legislature has frequently interfered, by passing a private act of parliament (and there was no other way of accomplishing it) to secure him the continuance of the privilege for a further term of years, in addition to that first limited by the letters patent.<sup>2</sup>

Prolongation of patents.

But now by general statute, a patentee, under such circumstances, may obtain an extension of his term from the Privy Council. This is done by petition.<sup>1</sup>

Before presenting the petition, the patentee or assignee must advertise his intention to ask for a further term three times in the London Gazette and in three London papers, and three times in a country paper, as prescribed by the statute.<sup>2</sup>

Against such petition any person may enter a caveat, which will entitle him to receive a notice from the petitioner before the hearing; at which both parties may attend by counsel and witnesses.

The rule respecting the number of counsel entitled to be heard is the same before the Privy Council as in the House of Lords, namely, two only on either side; therefore, if several caveats are entered against a petition, two counsel only will be heard to oppose it, unless the parties have independent and distinct grounds of opposition, founded on separate and independent interests.<sup>3</sup>

With respect to the advertisement it may be observed, that it will be a sufficient compliance, in a case where the petitioner is resident abroad, and has no manufactory in England, if he advertise in the newspapers published in the towns or county where the persons to whom he has granted licences are resident.<sup>1</sup> Prolongation of patents.

These renewed letters patent are granted by the Crown, under the 5 & 6 W. IV. c. 83, and 2 & 3 Vict. c. 67; 7 & 8 Vict. c. 69, s. 4; 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, s. 40,<sup>2</sup> as well to assignees as the original grantees. The new letters are dated as of the day after the expiration of the term granted by the original letters.

But to get a renewed patent, a petition for an extension must have been presented to the Privy Council six calendar months at the least before the expiration of the term sought to be extended; and "sufficient reason" must be shown, to the satisfaction of the Privy Council, at the hearing, for the omission, if any, to prosecute with effect the application by petition before the expiration of the said term. This power seems not to apply to cases where there has been "neglect or default" on the part of the petitioner.<sup>3</sup>

Parties using the invention in the interval between the expiration of the old term and the grant of the extension are not responsible; and those who may have invested capital in the use of it in that interval may appear before the Privy Council, and either oppose any new grant altogether, or claim to be protected and indemnified for what they have lawfully done.<sup>1</sup>

It has been uniformly required by the Privy Council, that the petitioner for an extension should show, first, some invention; secondly, that the invention was of a nature to benefit the public; and, thirdly, that the inventor had not received an adequate reward.<sup>2</sup>

The fact of an invention, when known, not getting into general use is a presumption against its utility; and as it is one of the considerations for extending the term of letters patent that the public will be benefited after the term has expired, it follows, that if the utility of an invention be small, a reason is afforded against the granting of a further term.<sup>3</sup>

The novelty of an invention may be small; but this does not afford a reason against a prolongation, as it does where the utility is small, provided the public have derived great benefit from the discovery.<sup>4</sup>

But where an invention was of great merit and public utility, and the patentee and his

And an extension has been granted where the invention was an ingenious one, and it did not appear that the patentee had received any remuneration until within three years previous to the expiration of the patent.<sup>2</sup>

So likewise in the case of a patent for new and improved machinery for preparing and spinning flax, hemp, and other fibrous substances by power, notwithstanding the validity of the patent was at that time in dispute.<sup>3</sup>

A petition was presented for a prolongation of a patent "for certain processes, and apparatus for printing and preparing for manufacture yarns of linen, cotton, silk, woollen, or any other fibrous material." The extension was refused on the ground of insufficient merit.<sup>4</sup>

Where an invention is not prosecuted until a short time before the patent expires, a strong reason is afforded for refusing an extension.<sup>5</sup>

In cases for extension, the Attorney-Gener-ral represents the government and the public generally. As he watches the interests of the government, no counsel need be sent to the Privy Council from any separate department of the government, such as the Admiralty.<sup>1</sup>

In prolonging a patent likely to be used for government purposes (such as the application of an improved propeller for steam and other vessels), the Privy Council will impose a condition, that the Lords of the Admiralty shall have the right of manufacturing the invention for the service of her Majesty without licences from the patentee.<sup>2</sup>

The Privy Council will take care of the patentee's interests even after assignment, where the inventors and patentees have made nothing by their invention.

The inventor and patentee of improvements in manufacturing iron axle-trees for railway carriages had lost largely by the patent; but his assignees had lately made very considerable profits, and from their position in the trade were likely to command a very large sale of the patent article. The patent was of high merit, and of great service to the public safety. Under such circumstances, a prolongation for four years was granted to the assignees, upon the conditions that the assignees secured to the patentee half the profits derived from the sale, and that the patented article should be sold by the assignees to the public at a certain price.<sup>1</sup>

tion of

An extension for six years was granted, on the ground of the great merit and utility of the invention, and the inadequate remuneration, occasioned in a great measure by the expense incurred by litigation, in which the assignee of the patent had been involved for the protection of his patent rights. The patent was for improvement in manufacturing tubes for gas and other purposes. In this case, the inventor, a mechanic, had assigned the patent to his master. The Privy Council made it a condition that the assignee should secure the inventor an annuity during the period of the extension.<sup>2</sup>

If a jury find a verdict that a person who has obtained letters patent was not the first inventor, by reason of some other person having invented or used the invention, or part of it, before the date of the letters; or if the patentee finds that some person has, unknown to him, invented or used it, or part of it, before such date, the Privy Council may confirm the letters or grant new ones. This is by petition, and the Privy Council must be "satisfied that the patentee believed himself to be the first and original inventor." Any person may oppose the petition; and any person, party to a former suit or action touching the first letters, must have notice of the petition before it is presented.<sup>1</sup>

The Privy Council, under the 5 & 6 Will. IV. c. 83, refused to confirm a Scotch patent, the invention having been used in England before the date of the Scotch patent.<sup>2</sup>

To entitle a patentee to a confirmation of letters patent, the petitioner must show that he believed himself the first and true inventor.

Upon an application for such confirmation, it was proved that the patent article was not publicly and generally known prior to the letters patent, but that some persons had systematically used an article, identical with the patent article, for several years prior to the grant of the letters patent, and that the subject of the patent was little more than an application of a well-known article in trade. Under such circumstances, the Privy Council held that it was not a case to which the statute was intended to apply.<sup>3</sup>

STATUTE 21 JAC. I. CAP. 3.

An Act concerning Monopolies and Dispensations with Penal Laws, and the Forfeitures thereof.

FORASMUCH as your most excellent Majesty, in your royal judgment, and of your blessed disposition to the weal and quiet of your subjects, did in the year of our Lord God, one thousand six hundred and ten, publish in print to the whole realm, and to all posterity, that all grants and monopolies, and of the benefit of any penal laws, or of power to dispense with the law, or to compound for the forfeiture, are contrary to your Majesties laws, which your Majesties declaration is truly consonant and agreeable to the ancient and fundamental laws of this your realm: And whereas your Majesty was further graciously pleased expressly to command that no suiter should presume to move your Majesty for matters of that nature; yet nevertheless upon misinformations, and untrue pretences of public good, many such grants have been unduly obtained, and unlawfully put in execution, to the great grievance and inconvenience of your Majesties subjects, contrary to the laws of this your realm, and contrary to your Majesties most royal and blessed intention so published, as aforesaid; for avoiding thereof, and preventing of the like to come, may it please your excellent Majesty, at the humble suit

contrary to the laws of the realm.

of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Commons in this present Parliament assembled, that it may be declared and enacted, and be it declared and enacted by authority of this present parliament, that all monopolies, and all commissions, grants, licences, charters, and letters patents heretofore made or granted, or hereafter to be made or granted to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate whatsoever, of or for the sole buying, selling, making, working or using of any thing within this realm, or the dominion of Wales; or of any other monopolies, or of power, liberty or faculty, to dispense with any others, or to give licence or toleration to do, use, or exercise anything against the tenour or purport of any law or statute; or to give or make any warrant for any such dispensation, licence or toleration to be had or made, or to agree or compound with any others for any penalty or forfeitures limited by any statute, or of any grant or promise of the benefit, profit or commodity of any forfeiture, penalty, or sum of money, that is or shall be due by any statute, before judgment thereupon had, and all proclamations, inhibitions, restraints, warrants of assistance, and all other matters and things whatsoever, any way tending to the instituting, erecting, strengthening, furthering, or countenancing of the same, or any of them, are altogether contrary to the laws of this realm, and so are, and shall be utterly void and of none effect, and in no wise to be put in use or execution.

shall be tryed
by the common laws of this realm.

And be it further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all monopolies, and all such commissions, grants, licences, charters, letters patents, proclamations, inhibitions, restraints, warrants of assistance, and all other matters and things tending, as aforesaid, and the force and validity of them, and every of them, ought to be, and shall be all and every such person and persons which shall be so hindred, grieved, disturbed or disquieted, or whose goods or chattels shall be so seized, attached, distrained, taken, carried away or detained, shall recover three times so much as the damages which he or they sustained, by means or occasion of being so hindred, grieved, disturbed, or disquieted, or by means of having his or their goods or chattels seized, attached, distrained, taken, carried away or detained, and double costs; and in such suits, or for the staying or delaying thereof, no essoin, protection, wager of law, aid, prayer, privilege, injunction, or order of restraint, shall be in any wise prayed, granted, admitted or allowed, nor any more than one imparlance: And if any person or persons shall, after notice given that the action depending is grounded upon this statute, cause or procure any action at the common law, grounded upon this statute, to be stayed or delayed before judgment, by colour or means of any order, warrant, power or authority, save only of the court wherein such action, as aforesaid, shall be brought and depending, or after judgment had upon such action, shall cause or procure the execution of or upon any such judgment to be stayed or delayed by colour or means of any order, warrant, power or authority, save only by writ of error or attain, that then the said person and persons so offending, shall incur and sustain the pains, penalties, and forfeitures ordained and provided by the statute of provision and præmunire, made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second.

ing or making of any manner of new manufacture within this realm, to the first and true inventor or inventors of such manufactures, which others at the time of the making of such letters patents and grants did not use, so they be not contrary to the law, nor mischievous to the state, by raising of the prices of commodities at home, or hurt of trade, or generally inconvenient, but that the same shall be of such force as they were, or should be, if this Act had not been made, and of none other: And if the same were made for more than one and twenty years, that then the same for the term of one and twenty years only, to be accounted from the date of the first letters patents and grants thereof made, shall be of such force as they were or should have been, if the same had been made but for term of one and twenty years only, and as if this Act had never been had or made, and of none other.

6. Provided also, and be it declared and enacted, that any declaration before mentioned shall not extend to any letters patents and grants of privilege for the term of fourteen years or under, hereafter to be made, of the sole working or making of any manner of new manufactures within this realm, to the true and first inventor and inventors of such manufactures, which others at the time of making such letters patents and grants shall not use, so as also they be not contrary to the law, nor mischievous to the state, by raising prices of commodities at home, or hurt of trade, or generally inconvenient: the said fourteen years to be accounted from the date of the first letters patents or grant of such privilege hereafter to be made, but that the same shall be of such force as they should be, if this Act had never been made, and of none other.

7. Provided also, and it is hereby further intended, declared, and enacted by authority aforesaid, that this Act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend, or be prejudicial to any grant or privilege, power or authority whatsoever heretofore made, granted, allowed, or confirmed by any act of parliament now in force, so long as the same shall so continue in force.

Provided also, that this Act shall not extend to any warrant or privy seal, made or directed, or to be made or directed by his Majesty, his heirs or successors, to the justices of the Courts of the King's Bench, or Common Pleas, and barons of the Exchequer, justices of assize, justices of oyer and terminer, and gaol delivery, justices of the peace, and other justices for the time being, having power to hear and determine offences done against any penal statute, to compound for the forfeitures of any penal statute, depending in suit and question before them, or any of them respectively, after plea pleaded by the party defendant.

Charters granted to corporations, saved.

9. Provided also, and it is hereby further intended, declared, and enacted, that this Act or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend or be prejudicial unto the city of London, or to any city, borough, or town-corporate within this realm, for, or concerning any grants, charters, or letters patents to them, or any of them, made or granted, or for, or concerning any custom or customs used by or within them, or any of them, or unto any corporations, companies, or fellowships of any art, trade, occupation, or mystery, or to any companies or societies of merchants within this realm, erected for the maintenance, enlargement, or ordering of any trade or merchandize; but that the same charters, customs, corporations, companies, fellowships and societies, and their liberties, privileges, powers, and immunities, shall be and

An Act to amend the Law touching Letters Patent for Inventions.

10th Sept., 1835.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make certain additions to and alterations in the present law touching letters patent for inventions, as well for the better protecting of patentees in the rights intended to be secured by such letters patent, as for the more ample benefit of the public from the same: Be it enacted by, &c., that any person who, as grantee, assignee, or otherwise, hath obtained or who shall hereafter obtain letters patent, for the sole making, exercising, vending, or using of any invention, may, if he think fit, enter<sup>a</sup> with the clerk of the patents of England, Scotland, or Ireland, respectively, as the case may be, having first obtained the leave of his Majesty's attorney-general or solicitor-general in case of an English patent, of the lord advocate or solicitor-general of Scotland in the case of a Scotch patent, or of his Majesty's attorney-general or solicitor-general for Ireland in the case of an Irish patent, certified by his fiat and signature, a disclaimer of any part of either the title of the invention or of the specification, stating the reason for such disclaimer, or may, with such leave as aforesaid, enter a memorandum of any alteration in the said title or specification, not being such disclaimer or such alteration as shall extend the exclusive right granted by the said letters patent; and such disclaimer or memorandum of alteration being filed by the said clerk of the patents, and enrolled with the specification, shall be deemed and taken to be part of such letters patent or such specification in all courts whatever:

Provided always, that any person may enter a Caveat.

caveat, in like manner as caveats are now used to be entered, against such disclaimer or alteration; which caveat being so entered shall give the party entering the same a right to have notice of the application being heard by the attorney-general, or solicitor-general, or lord advocate, respectively:

Provided also, that no such disclaimer or alteration shall be receivable in evidence in any action or suit (save and except in any proceeding by scire facias) pending at the time when such disclaimer or alteration was enrolled, but in every such action or suit the original title and specification alone shall be given in evidence, and deemed and taken to be the title and specification of the invention for which the letters patent have been or shall have been granted: Disclaimer not to affect actions pending at the time.

Provided also, that it shall be lawful for the attorney-general, or solicitor-general, or lord advocate, before granting such fiat, to require the party applying for the same to advertise his disclaimer or alteration in such manner as to such attorney-general, or solicitor-general, or lord advocate shall seem right, and shall, if he so require such advertisement, certify in his fiat that the same has been duly made.

Attorney-general may require the party to advertise his disclaimer.

2. And be it enacted, that if in any suit or action it shall be proved or specially found by the verdict of a jury that any person who shall have obtained letters patent for any invention or supposed invention was not the first inventor thereof, or of some part thereof, by reason of some other person or persons having invented or used the same, or some Mode of proceeding where patentee is proved not to be the real inventor, though he believed himself to be so.

part thereof, before the date of such letters patent, or if such patentee or his assigns shall discover that some other person had, unknown to such patentee, invented or used the same, or some part thereof, before the date of such letters patent, it shall and may be lawful for such patentee or his assigns to petition his Majesty in council to confirm the said letters patent or to grant new letters patent," the matter of which petition shall be heard before the judicial committee of the privy council; and such committee, upon examining the said matter, and being satisfied that such patentee believed himself to be the first and original inventor, and being satisfied that such invention or part thereof had not been publicly and generally used before the date of such first letters patent, may report to his Majesty their opinion that the prayer of such petition ought to be complied with, whereupon his Majesty may, if he think fit, grant such prayer; and the said letters patent shall be available in law and equity to give to such petitioner the sole right of using, making, and vending such invention as against all persons whatsoever, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary thereof notwithstanding: Provided, that any person opposing such petition shall be entitled to be heard before the said judicial committee: Provided also, that any person, party to any former suit or action touching such first letters patent, shall be entitled to have notice of such petition before presenting the same.<sup>b</sup>

<sup>b</sup> Hitherto, if an inventor could have managed to use his discovery in such a manner as to enjoy the benefit of it without laying his process open to discovery, he might have enjoyed all the advantages of a patentee without obtaining a patent, and of course without putting the public in possession of his discovery through the medium of a specifi-

3. And be it enacted, that if any action at law or any suit in equity for an account shall be brought in respect of any alleged infringement of such letters patent heretofore or hereafter granted, or any scire facias to repeal such letters patent, and if a verdict shall pass for the patentee or his assigns, or if a final decree or decretal order shall be made for him or them, upon the merits of the suit, it shall be lawful for the judge before whom such action shall be tried to certify on the record, or the judge who shall make such decree or order to give a certificate under his hand, that the validity of the patent came in question before him, which record or certificate being given in evidence in any other suit or action whatever touching such patent, if a verdict shall pass, or decree or decretal order be made, in favour of such patentee or his assigns, he or they shall receive treble costs in such suit or action, to be taxed at three times the taxed costs, unless the judge making such second or other decree or order, or trying such second or other action, shall certify that he ought not to have such treble costs.<sup>a</sup>

If a verdict pass for the patentee, the judge may grant a certificate, which being given in evidence in any other suit, shall entitle the patentee, upon a verdict in his favour, to treble costs.

ation; and yet although the same idea might subsequently occur to some other person, who might be anxious to obtain a patent for it, the previous use by the first discoverer would have been sufficient to prevent the grant or to avoid the instrument if granted, so that the public would have been altogether deprived of the advantage arising from a specification. A singular instance of this kind of mischief seems to have occurred in Mr. Watt's case, whose specification, though upheld by the courts, is stated to have been totally useless and unintelligible in practice. The consequence of which was, that the enjoyment of Mr. Watt's exclusive privileges continued for nearly thirty years after the expiration of the patent.—Note to Mr. Smith's Epitome, App. p. 44.

Mode of proceeding in case of application for the prolongation of the term of a patent.

4. And be it further enacted, that if any person who now hath or shall hereafter obtain any letters patent as aforesaid, shall advertise in the London Gazette three times, and in three London papers, and three times in some country paper published in the town where or near to which he carried on any manufacture of any thing made according to his specification, or near to or in which he resides, in case he carried on no such manufacture, or published in the county where he carries on such manufacture, or where he lives, in case there shall not be any paper published in such town, that he intends to apply to his Majesty in council for a prolongation of his term of sole using and vending his invention, and shall petition his Majesty in council to that effect, it shall be lawful for any person to enter a caveat at the council office; and if his Majesty shall refer the consideration of such petition to the judicial committee of the privy council, and notice shall first be by him given to any person or persons who shall have entered such caveats, the petitioner shall be heard by his counsel and witnesses to prove his case, and the persons entering caveats shall likewise be heard by their counsel and witnesses; whereupon, and upon hearing and inquiring of the whole matter, the judicial committee may report to his Majesty that a further extension of the term in the said letters patent should be granted, not exceeding seven years; and his Majesty is hereby authorized and empowered, if he shall think fit, to grant new letters patent for the said invention for a term not exceeding seven years after the expiration of the first term, any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding: Provided that no such extension shall be granted, if the application by petition shall not be made and prosecuted with effect before the expiration of the term originally granted in such letters patent.<sup>a</sup>

5. And be it enacted, that in any action brought against any person for infringing any letters patent, the defendant on pleading thereto shall give to the plaintiff, and in any scire facias to repeal such letters patent the plaintiff shall file with his declaration, a notice of any objections on which he means to rely at the trial of such action, and no objection shall be allowed to be made in behalf of such defendant or plaintiff respectively at such trial, unless he prove the objections stated in such notice: Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for any judge at chambers, on summons served by such defendant or plaintiff on such plaintiff or defendant respectively, to show cause why he should not be allowed to offer other objections whereof notice shall not have been given as aforesaid, to give leave to offer such objections, on such terms as to such judge shall seem fit.<sup>b</sup>

6. And be it enacted, that in any action brought for infringing the right granted by any letters patent, in taxing the costs thereof regard shall be had to the part of such case which has been proved at the trial, which shall be certified by the judge before whom the same shall be had, and the costs of each part of the case shall be given according as either party has succeeded or failed therein, regard being had to the notice of objections, as well as the counts in the declaration, and without regard to the general result of the trial.<sup>b</sup>

7. And be it enacted, that if any person shall write, paint, or print, or mould, cast, or carve, or

An Act to amend an Act of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of King William the Fourth, intituled An Act to amend the Law touching Letters Patent for Inventions.

21th August 1839.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the fifth and sixth years of the reign of his Majesty King William the Fourth, intituled An Act to amend the Law touching Letters Patent for Inventions, it is amongst other things enacted, that if any person having obtained any letters patent as therein mentioned, shall give notice as thereby required of his intention to apply to his Majesty in council for a prolongation of his term of sole using and vending his invention, and shall petition his Majesty in council to that effect, it shall be lawful for any person to enter a caveat at the Council Office; and if his Majesty shall refer the consideration of such petition to the judicial committee of the privy council, and notice shall be first given to any person or persons who shall have entered such caveats, the petitioner shall be heard by his counsel and witnesses to prove his case, and the persons entering caveats shall likewise be heard by their counsel and witnesses, whereupon, and upon hearing and inquiry of the whole matter, the judicial committee may report to his Majesty that a further extension of the term in the said letters patent shall be granted, not exceeding seven years, and his Majesty is thereby authorized and empowered, if he shall think fit, to grant new letters patent, for the said invention for a term not exceeding seven years after the expiration of the first term, any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding; provided that no such extension shall be granted if the application by petition shall not be made and prosecuted with effect before the expiration of the term originally granted in such letters patent: And whereas it has happened since the passing of the said Act, and may again happen, that parties desirous of obtaining an extension of the term granted in letters patent of which they are possessed, and who may have presented a petition for such purposes in manner by the said recited Act directed, before the expiration of the said term, may nevertheless be prevented by causes over which they have no control from prosecuting with effect their application before the judicial committee of the privy council; and it is expedient therefore that the said judicial committee should have power, when under the circumstances of the case they shall see fit to entertain such application, and to report thereon, according to the provisions of the said recited Act, notwithstanding that before the hearing of the case before them the terms of the letters patent sought to be renewed or extended may have expired: Be it therefore enacted by &c., that so much of the said recited Act as provides that no extension of the term of letters patent shall be granted as therein mentioned if the application by petition for such extension be not prosecuted with effect before the expiration of the term originally granted in such letters patent, shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

Repealing provision as to presenting petition for extension before the expiration of the patent.

Term may be extended though the application for extension be not prosecuted with effect before the expiration thereof.

2. And be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the judicial committee of the privy council, in all cases where it shall appear to them that any application for an extension of the term granted by any letters patent, the petition for which extension shall have been referred to them for their consideration, has not been prosecuted with effect before the expiration of the said term from any other causes than the neglect or default of the petitioner, to entertain such application, and to report thereon as by the said recited Act provided, notwithstanding the term originally granted in such letters patent may have expired before the hearing of such application; and it shall be lawful for her Majesty, if she shall think fit, on the report of the said judicial committee recommending an extension of the term of such letters patent, to grant such extension, or to grant new letters patent for the invention or inventions specified in such original letters patent, for a term not exceeding seven years after the expiration of the term mentioned in the said original letters patent: Provided always, that no such extension or new letters patent shall be granted if a petition for the same shall not have been presented as by the said recited Act directed before the expiration of the term sought to be extended, nor in case of petitions presented after the thirtieth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine, unless such petition shall be presented six calendar months at the least before the expiration of such term, nor in any case unless sufficient reason shall be shown to the satisfaction of the said judicial committee for the omission to prosecute with effect the said application by petition before the expiration of the said term.

An Act for amending an Act passed in the fourth year of the reign of his late Majesty, intituled An Act for the better Administration of Justice in his Majesty's Privy Council; and to extend its Jurisdiction and Powers.

6th August 1844.

WHEREAS the Act passed in the fourth year of the reign of his late Majesty, intituled An Act for the better Administration of Justice in His Majesty's Privy Council, hath been found beneficial to the due administration of justice: And whereas another Act, passed in the sixth year of the said reign, intituled An Act to amend the Law touching Letters Patent for Inventions, hath been also found advantageous to inventors and to the public: And whereas the judicial committee acting under the authority of the said Acts hath been found to answer well the purposes for which it was so established by Parliament, but it is found necessary to improve its proceedings in some respects, for the better despatch of business, and expedient also to extend its jurisdiction and powers. [The remainder of the preamble, and the whole of the clause, are inapplicable to the Law of Patents].

c. 83.

On petition, her Majesty may grant an extension of patent term in certain cases.

2. And whereas it is expedient, for the further encouragement of inventions in the useful arts, to enable the time of monopoly in patents to be extended in cases in which it can be satisfactorily shown that the expense of the invention hath been greater than the time now limited by law will suffice to reimburse; be it enacted, that if any person, having obtained a patent for any invention, shall, before the expiration thereof, present a petition to her Majesty in council, setting forth that he has been unable to obtain a due remuneration for his expense and labour in perfecting such invention, and that an exclusive right of using and vending the same for the further period of seven years, in addition to the term in such patent mentioned, will not suffice for his reimbursement and remuneration, then, if the matter of such petition shall be by her Majesty referred to the judicial committee of the privy council, the said committee shall proceed to consider the same after the manner and in the usual course of its proceedings touching patents; and if the said committee shall be of opinion, and shall so report to her Majesty, that a further period greater than seven years' extension of the said patent term ought to be granted to the petitioner, it shall be lawful for her Majesty, if she shall so think fit, to grant an extension thereof for any time not exceeding fourteen years, in like manner and subject to the same rules as the extension for a term not exceeding seven years is now granted under the powers of the said Act of the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty.

3. Provided always, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the said judicial committee from reporting that an extension for any period not exceeding seven years should be granted, or prevent her Majesty from granting an extension for such lesser term than the petition shall have prayed.

Extension may be for a lesser term than that prayed.

4. And whereas doubts have arisen touching the power given by the said recited Act of the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty in cases where the patentees have wholly or in part assigned their right; be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for her Majesty, on the report of the judicial committee, to grant such extension as is authorized by the

5. And be it enacted, that in case the original patentee or patentees hath or have departed with his or their whole or any part of his or their interest by assignment to any other person or persons, it shall be lawful for such patentee, together with such assignee or assignees, if part only hath been assigned, and for the assignee or assignees, if the whole hath been assigned, to enter a disclaimer and memorandum of alteration under the powers of the said recited Act; and such disclaimer and memorandum of such alteration, having been so entered and filed as in the said recited Act mentioned, shall be valid and effectual in favour of any person or persons in whom the rights under the said letters patent may then be or thereafter become legally vested; and no objection shall be made in any proceeding whatsoever on the ground that the party making such disclaimer or memorandum of such alteration had not sufficient authority in that behalf.

Disclaimer and memorandum of alteration already made to be deemed valid.

6. And be it enacted, that any disclaimer or memorandum of alteration before the passing of this Act, or by virtue of the said recited Act, by such patentee with such assignee or by such assignee as aforesaid, shall be valid and effectual to bind any person or persons in whom the said letters patent might then be or have since become vested; and no objection shall be made in any proceeding whatsoever that the party making such disclaimer or memorandum of alteration had not authority in that behalf.

18. And be it enacted, that the clerk of the said Enrolment Office, or his deputy or assistant, shall, upon request, and payment of the proper fees payable in respect thereof, indorso or write upon every deed, specification, instrument in writing, and document which at any time heretofore has been or at any time hereafter shall be enrolled in the said Enrolment Office, a certificate that such deed, specification, instrument in writing, or document has been or was enrolled in chancery, and the day on which such enrolment was made, and shall cause such certificate to be sealed or stamped with the said seal of the Chancery Enrolment Office: and every such certificate purporting or appearing to be so sealed or stamped shall be admitted and received in evidence by all courts and other tribunals, judges, justices, and others, without further proof, and as sufficient prima facie evidence that the deed, specification, document, or instrument in writing therein mentioned was duly enrolled in the Court of Chancery on the day and at the time mentioned in such certificate.

An Act for amending the Law for granting Patents for Inventions.

1st July 1852.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law concerning letters patent for inventions: Be it enacted by, &c. as follows :

Certain persons constituted commissioners of patents for inventions.

1. The Lord Chancellor, the Master of the Rolls, her Majesty's attorney general for England, her Majesty's solicitor general for England, the lord advocate, her Majesty's solicitor general for Scotland, her Majesty's attorney general for Ireland, and her Majesty's solicitor general for Ireland, for the time being respectively, together with such other person or persons as may be from time to time appointed by her Majesty, as herein-after mentioned, shall be commissioners of patents for inventions; and it shall be lawful for her Majesty from time to time, by warrant under her royal sign manual, to appoint such other person or persons as she may think fit to be a commissioner or commissioners as aforesaid; and every person so appointed shall continue such commissioner during her Majesty's pleasure; and all the powers hereby vested in the commissioners may be exercised by any three or more of them, the Lord Chancellor or Master of the Rolls being one.

Seal of the commissioners.

2. It shall be lawful for the commissioners to cause a seal to be made for the purposes of this Act, and from time to time to vary such seal, and to cause to be sealed therewith all the warrants for letters patent under this Act, and all instruments and copies proceeding from the office of the commissioners, and all courts, judges, and other persons whomsoever shall take notice of such seal, and receive impressions thereof in evidence, in like manner as impressions of the great seal are received in evidence, and shall also take notice of and receive in evidence, without further proof or production of the originals, all copies or extracts, certified under the seal of the said office, of or from documents deposited in such office.

3. It shall be lawful for the commissioners from time to time to make such rules and regulations (not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act) respecting the business of their office, and all matters and things which under the provisions herein contained are to be under their control and direction, as may appear to them necessary and expedient for the purposes of this Act; and all such rules shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within fourteen days after the making thereof, if Parliament be sitting, and if Parliament be not sitting, then within fourteen days after the next meeting of Parliament; and the commissioners shall cause a report to be laid annually before Parliament of all the proceedings under and in pursuance of this Act.

Power to commissioners to make rules and regulations.

Annual report to Parliament.

4. It shall be lawful for the commissioners of her Majesty's treasury to provide and appoint from time to time proper places or buildings for an office or offices for the purposes of this Act.

Treasury to provide offices.

5. It shall be lawful for the commissioners, with the consent of the commissioners of the treasury, from time to time to appoint for the purposes of this Act such clerks and officers as the commissioners may think proper; and it shall be lawful for the commissioners from time to time to remove any of the clerks and officers so appointed.

Commissioners to appoint clerks, &c.

Petition and declaration to be accompanied with a provisional specification.

6. Every petition for the grant of letters patent for an invention, and the declaration required to accompany such petition, shall be left at the office of the commissioners, and there shall be left therewith a statement in writing, herein-after called the provisional specification, signed by or on behalf of the applicant for letters patent, describing the nature of the said invention; and the day of the delivery of every such petition, declaration, and provisional specification shall be recorded at the said office, and indorsed on such petition, declaration, and provisional specification, and a certificate thereof given to such applicant or his agent; and all such petitions, declarations, and provisional specifications shall be preserved in such manner as the commissioners may direct, and a registry thereof and of all proceedings thereon kept at the office of the commissioners.

Application referred to law officers.

7. Every application for letters patent made under this Act shall be referred by the commissioners, according to such regulations as they may think fit to make, to one of the law officers.

Provisional specification referred to law officer who may give a certificate of his allowance.

8. The provisional specification shall be referred to the law officer, who shall be at liberty to call to his aid such scientific or other person as he may think fit, and to cause to be paid to such person by the applicant such remuneration as the law officer shall appoint; and if such law officer be satisfied that the provisional specification describes the nature of the invention, he shall allow the same, and give a certificate of his allowance, and such certificate shall be filed in the office of the commissioners, and thereupon the invention therein referred to may, during the term of six months from the date of the application for letters patent for the said invention, be used and published without prejudice to any letters patent to be granted for the same, and such protection from the consequences of use and publication is herein-after referred to as provisional protection: Provided always, that in case the title of the invention or the provisional specification be too large or insufficient, it shall be lawful for the law officer to whom the same is referred to allow or require the same to be amended.

9. The applicant for letters patent for an invention, instead of leaving with the petition and declaration a provisional specification as aforesaid may, if he think fit, file with the said petition and declaration an instrument in writing under his hand and seal (herein-after called a complete specification), particularly describing and ascertaining the nature of the said invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed, which complete specification shall be mentioned in such declaration, and the day of the delivery of every such petition, declaration, and complete specification shall be recorded at the office of the commissioners, and indorsed on such petition, declaration, and specification, and a certificate thereof given to such applicant or his agent, and thereupon, subject and without prejudice to the provisions herein-after contained, the invention shall be protected under this Act for the term of six months from the date of the application, and the applicant shall have during such term of six months the like powers, rights, and privileges as might have been conferred upon him by letters patent for such invention, issued under this Act, and duly sealed as of the day of the date of such application; and during the continuance of such powers, rights, and privileges under this provision, such invention may be used and published without prejudice to any letters patent to be granted for the same; and where letters patent are granted in respect of such invention, then in lieu of a condition for making void such letters patent in case such invention be not described and ascertained by a subsequent specification, such letters patent shall be conditioned to become void if such complete specification, filed as aforesaid, does not particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the said invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed; and a copy of every such complete specification shall be open to the inspection of the public, as herein-after provided, from the time of depositing the same, subject to such regulation as the commissioners may make.

Letters patent to first inventor not invalidated by protection obtained in fraud of the first inventor.

10. In case of any application for letters patent for any invention, and the obtaining upon such application of provisional protection for such invention, or of protection for the same, by reason of the deposit of a complete specification as aforesaid in fraud of the true and first inventor, any letters patent granted to the true and first inventor of such invention shall not be invalidated by reason of such application, or of such provisional or other protection as aforesaid, or of any use or publication of the invention subsequent to such application, and before the expiration of the term of such provisional or other protection.

Commissioners to cause protections to be advertised.

11. Where any invention is provisionally protected under this Act, or protected by reason of the deposit of such complete specification as aforesaid, the commissioners shall cause such provisional protection or such other protection as aforesaid to be advertised in such manner as they may see fit.

Application for letters patent to be advertised and also oppositions.

12. The applicant for letters patent, so soon as he may think fit after the invention shall have been provisionally protected under this Act, or where a complete specification has been deposited with his petition and declaration, then so soon as he may think fit after such deposit, may give notice at the office of the commissioners of his intention of proceeding with his application for letters patent for the said invention, and thereupon the said commissioners shall cause his said application to be advertised in such manner as they may see fit; and any persons having an interest in opposing the grant of letters patent for the said invention shall be at liberty to leave particulars in writing of their objections to the said application at such place and within such time and subject to such regulations as the commissioners may direct.

13. So soon as the time for the delivery of such objections shall have expired, the provisional specification or complete specification (as the case may be) and particulars of objection (if any) shall be referred to the law officer to whom the application has been referred.

Specification and objections referred to law officer.

14. It shall be lawful for the law officer to whom any application for such letters patent is referred, if he see fit, by certificate under his hand, to order by or to whom the costs of any hearing or inquiry upon any objection, or otherwise in relation to the grant of such letters patent, or in relation to the provisional (or other) protection acquired by the applicant under this Act, shall be paid, and in what manner and by whom such costs are to be ascertained; and if any costs so ordered to be paid be not paid within four days after the amount thereof shall be so ascertained, it shall be lawful for such law officer to make an order for the payment of the same, and every such order may be made a rule of one of her Majesty's Superior Courts at Westminster or Dublin, and may be recorded in the books of council and session in Scotland to the effect that execution may pass thereupon in common form.

Power to law officer to order by or to whom costs shall be paid.

15. It shall be lawful for such law officer, after such hearing, if any, as he may think fit, to cause a warrant to be made for the sealing of letters patent for the said invention, and such warrant shall be sealed with the seal of the commissioners, and shall set forth the tenor and effect of the letters patent thereby authorized to be granted, and such law officer shall direct the insertion in such letters patent of all such restrictions, conditions, and provisoes as he may deem usual and expedient in such grants, or necessary in pursuance of the provisions of this Act; and the said warrant shall be the warrant for the making and sealing of letters patent under this act according to the tenor of the said warrant: Provided always, that the Lord Chancellor shall and may have and exercise such powers, authority, and discretion in respect to the said warrant, and the letters patent therein directed to be made under this Act, as he now has and might now exercise with respect to the warrant for the issue under the great seal of letters patent for any invention, and with respect to the making and issuing of such letters patent; and the writ of scire facias shall lie for the repeal of any letters patent issued under this Act, in the like cases as the same would lie for the repeal of letters patent which may now be issued under the great seal.

Chancellor's powers in respect to warrant, &c.

Scire facias.

Nothing to affect the prerogative of the crown as to letters patent.

16. Provided also, that nothing herein contained shall extend to abridge or affect the prerogative of the crown in relation to the granting or withholding the grant of any letters patent; and it shall be lawful for her Majesty, by warrant under her royal sign manual, to direct such law officer to withhold such warrant as aforesaid, or that any letters patent for the issuing whereof he may have issued a warrant as aforesaid shall not issue, or to direct the insertion in any letters patent to be issued in manner herein provided of any restrictions, conditions, or provisoes which her Majesty may think fit in addition to or in substitution for any restrictions, conditions, or provisoes which would otherwise be inserted therein under this Act; and it shall also be lawful for her Majesty, by like warrant, to direct any complete specification which may have been filed under the provision herein-before contained, and in respect of the invention described in which no letters patent may have been granted, to be cancelled, and thereupon the protection obtained by the filing of such complete specification shall cease.

17. All letters patent for inventions granted under the provisions herein-before contained shall be made subject to the condition that the same shall be void, and that the powers and privileges thereby granted shall cease and determine, at the expiration of three years and seven years respectively from the date thereof, unless there be paid, before the expiration of the said three and seven years respectively, the sum or sums of money and stamp duties in the Schedule to this Act annexed: and the payment of the said sums of money and stamp duties respectively shall be indorsed on the warrant for the said letters patent; and such officer of the commissioners as may be appointed for this purpose shall issue under the seal of the commissioners a certificate of such payment, and shall endorse a receipt for the same on any letters patent issued under the authority of the said warrant; and such certificate duly stamped, shall be evidence of the payment of the several sums respectively.

Letters patent subject to avoidance on nonfulfilment of conditions.

18. The commissioners, so soon after the sealing of the said warrant as required by the applicant for the letters patent, shall cause to be prepared letters patent for the invention, according to the tenor of the said warrant, and it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor to cause such letters patent to be sealed with the great seal of the United Kingdom, and such letters patent so sealed shall extend to the whole of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man; and in case such warrant so direct, such letters patent shall be made applicable to her Majesty's colonies and plantations abroad, or such of them as may be mentioned in such warrant; and such letters patent shall be valid and effectual as to the whole of such United Kingdom, and the said islands and isle, and the said colonies or plantations, or such of them as aforesaid, and shall confer the like powers, rights, and privileges as might, in case this Act had not been passed, have been conferred by several letters patent of the like purport and effect passed under the great seal of the United Kingdom, under the seal appointed to be used instead of the great seal of Scotland, and under the great seal of Ireland respectively, and made applicable to England, the dominion of Wales, the town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, the Channel Islands, and Isle of Man, and the said colonies and plantations, or such of them as aforesaid, to Scotland and to Ireland respectively, save as herein otherwise provided: Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed or taken to give any effect or operation to any letters patent to be granted under the authority of this Act in any colony in which such or the like letters patent would be invalid by the law in force in the same colony for the time being: Provided always, that a transcript of such letters shall, so soon after the sealing of the same and in such manner as the commissioners shall direct, be transmitted to the director of Chancery in Scotland, and be recorded in the records of Chancery in Scotland, upon payment of such fees as the commissioners shall appoint, in the same manner and to the same effect in all respects as letters patent passing under the seal appointed by the treaty of union to be used in place of the great seal of Scotland have heretofore been recorded, and extracts from the said records shall be furnished to all parties requiring the same, on payment of such fees as the commissioners shall direct, and shall be received in evidence in all courts in Scotland to the like effect as the letters patent themselves.

19. Provided always, that no letters patent, save as herein-after mentioned in the case of letters patent destroyed or lost, shall issue on any warrant granted as aforesaid, unless application be made to seal such letters patent within three months after the date of the said warrant.

No letters patent to be issued after three months from date of warrant.

20. Provided also, that no letters patent (save letters patent issued in lieu of others destroyed or lost) shall be issued or be of any force or effect unless the same be granted during the continuance of the provisional protection under this Act, or, where a complete specification has been deposited under this Act, then unless such letters patent be granted during the continuance of the protection conferred under this Act by reason of such deposit, save that where the application to seal such letters patent has been made during the continuance of such provisional or other protection as aforesaid, and the sealing of such letters patent has been delayed by reason of a caveat or an application to the Lord Chancellor against or in relation to the sealing of such letters patent, then such letters patent may be sealed at such time as the Lord Chancellor shall direct.

No letters patent (except in lieu of those lost, &c.) to be issued after expiration of protection given by this Act.

21. Provided also, that where the applicant for such letters patent dies during the continuance of the provisional protection, or the protection by reason of the deposit of a complete specification, (as the case may be,) such letters patent may be granted to the executors or administrators of such applicant during the continuance of such provisional or other protection, or at any time within three months after the death of such applicant, notwithstanding the expiration of the term of such provisional or other protection, and the letters patent so granted shall be of the like force and effect as if they had been granted to such applicant during the continuance of such provisional or other protection.

If letters patent be destroyed or lost, others may be issued.

22. Provided also, that in case any such letters patent shall be destroyed or lost, other letters patent of the like tenor and effect, and sealed and dated as of the same day, may, subject to such regulations as the commissioners may direct, be issued under the authority of the warrant in pursuance of which the original letters patent were issued.

Letters patent may be dated as of the day of the application.

23. It shall be lawful (the Act of the eighteenth year of King Henry the Sixth, chapter one, or any other Act, to the contrary notwithstanding) to cause any letters patent to be issued in pursuance of this Act to be sealed and bear date as of the day of the application for the same, and in case of such letters patent for any invention provisionally registered under the "Protection of Inventions Act, 1851," as of the day of such provisional registration, or, where the law officer to whom the application was referred, or the Lord Chancellor, thinks fit and directs, any such letters patent as aforesaid may be sealed and bear date as of the day of the sealing of such letters patent, or of any other day between the day of such application or provisional registration and the day of such sealing.

Letters patent where antedated to be of the same validity as if sealed on the day of the date.

24. Any letters patent issued under this Act sealed and bearing date as of any day prior to the day of the actual sealing thereof shall be of the same force and validity as if they had been sealed on the day as of which the same are expressed to be sealed and bear date : Provided always, that save where such letters patent are granted for any invention, in respect whereof a complete specification has been deposited upon the application for the same under this Act, no proceeding at law or in equity shall be had upon such letters patent in respect of any infringement committed before the same were actually granted.

25. Where, upon any application made after the passing of this Act, letters patent are granted in the United Kingdom for or in respect of any invention first invented in any foreign country or by the subject of any foreign power or state, and a patent or like privilege for the monopoly or exclusive use or exercise of such invention in any foreign country is there obtained before the grant of such letters patent in the United Kingdom, all rights and privileges under such letters patent shall (notwithstanding any term in such letters patent limited) cease and be void immediately upon the expiration or other determination of the term during which the patent or like privilege obtained in such foreign country shall continue in force, or where more than one such patent or like privilege is obtained abroad, immediately upon the expiration or determination of the term which shall first expire or be determined of such several patents or like privileges : Provided always, that no letters patent for or in respect of any invention for which any such patent or like privilege as aforesaid shall have been obtained in any foreign country, and which shall be granted in the said United Kingdom after the expiration of the term for which such patent or privilege was granted or was in force, shall be of any validity.

Letters patent obtained in United Kingdom for patented foreign inventions not to continue in force after the expiration of the foreign patent.

Specifications to be filed instead of being enrolled.

27. All letters patent to be granted under this Act (save only letters patent granted after the filing of a complete specification) shall require the specification thereunder to be filed in the High Court of Chancery, instead of requiring the same to be enrolled, and no enrolment shall be requisite.

in such office
as Lord Chancellor shall direct.

28. Every specification to be filed in pursuance of the condition of any letters patent shall be filed in such office of the Court of Chancery as the Lord Chancellor shall from time to time appoint, and every provisional specification and complete specification left or filed at the office of the commissioners on the application for any letters patent, shall forthwith after the grant of the letters patent, or if no letters patent be granted then immediately on the expiration of six months from the time of such application, be transferred to and kept in the said office appointed for filing specifications in Chancery; and in case reference is made to drawings in any specification deposited or filed under this Act, an extra copy of such drawings shall be left with such specification.

As to filing extra copies of drawings.

FOR INFRINGEMENT.

Infringement of a patent.

THAT the plaintiff was the first and true inventor of a certain new manufacture, that is to say, of "certain improvements in the manufacture of sulphuric acid;" and thereupon her Majesty Queen Victoria, by letters patent under the Great Seal of England, granted the plaintiff the sole privilege to make, use, exercise, and vend the said invention within England for the term of fourteen years from the            day of            A. D.            , subject to a condition that the plaintiff should, within six calendar months next after the date of the said letters patent, cause to be enrolled in the High Court of Chancery an instrument in writing under his hand and seal, particularly describing and ascertaining the nature of his said invention, and in what manner the same was to be and might be performed; and the plaintiff did within the time prescribed fulfil the said condition, and the defendant during the said term did infringe the said patent.<sup>a</sup>

DEFENDANT'S OBJECTIONS.<sup>a</sup>

The objections on which the defendant means to rely, are—

1. That the defendant never infringed the plaintiffs' patent.

2. That the plaintiffs' alleged invention was not new at the time of granting the letters patent.

3. That the plaintiffs are not the true inventors of that part of their alleged invention which is included in their first claim.

4. Similar objection to the second claim.

5. That Freeman Roe was the inventor of the said first above-mentioned part.

6. That (same as the 5th), as to the second part.
