Dear Ray:

I would like to congratulate you on a most interesting and most revealing survey of university patent policies and practices. I hope you or others will continue to pursue study of this area. As is the case with most studies, yours raises as many new questions as it answers and continual pursuit of greater understanding should, in time, make a significant contribution to the success of invention management in the aggregate in the university world.

Finally, I would apologize for not responding to your questionnaire.

Sincerely,

Edward L. MacCordy
Associate Vice Chancellor
for Research
