

MINORITY MEMORANDUM

September 20, 1944.

Claimant: Wilcox & Follett Company (MP-2359)

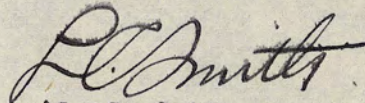

Title: CHUGGETYCHUG

Question: Is copyright notice misplaced?

The book has an unusual format in that contained within its covers is a single sheet folded many times so as to make the contents in the form of pages in a book. This insert is attached to the inside back cover. The copyright notice is on the reverse of the back cover.

The Majority contend that in view of the fact that the insert can be opened up into a single long sheet, the copyright notice is acceptable. The Minority is of the opinion that the deposit cannot be considered a single sheet and to accept the notice as found upon it amounts to blinding one's self to court decisions in recent years which have held that the copyright notice must be placed in strict compliance with the provisions of the copyright law.

Respectfully,

L. C. Smith,
Member of Revisory Board

DECISION: Majority sustained. Note also that the picturex on front and back is a continuous one.
