PREFACE.

THE " Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883," has made many changes in the law of great importance, and most of the alterations in the Patent Law will probably be found to be beneficial to inventors, though a great deal will depend upon the spirit in which the Act is carried into effect.

The reduction of the Government fees to £4 for the first four years of the Patent, instead of £25 for the first three years, will be of great advantage to Inventors. I regret, however, that the fees required to keep the Patent in force after the fourth year have not been very much reduced, or abolished altogether, or perhaps rather altered to a special income tax on the profits made from the successful Inventions.

INTRODUCTORY CHAPTER.

THE Act 46 & 47 Vic. c. 57, intituled "An Act to Amend and Consolidate the Law relating to Patents for Inventions, Registration of Designs and of Trade Marks," and the short title for which Act is "The Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883," makes many alterations in the Patent Law, and will raise some questions worthy of consideration by inventors.

46 & 47 Vic.
c. 57.

Short title.

It is proposed to deal here with some two or three of the principal alterations and questions, leaving the rest of the Editor's observations for the notes, which will be found between the sections of the Act.

And first, it is perhaps desirable to observe that inventors will not, it is believed, find it easier to prepare their own papers, but, on the contrary, the alterations made by the Act will probably be found to render it more than ever necessary that the inventor should be advised by a skilful patent agent as to the title of his patent and the form of his provisional or complete specification, or of both where he files both.

Inventors should not prepare their own specifications.

May send papers by post.

The Act, s. 5, contains a useful proviso as to sending the papers by post to the Patent Office.

Advised not to have provisional specifications.

The first thing an inventor will have to consider under the Act will be whether he will prepare a provisional specification or not ; and so far as the Editor can master the effect of the Act, he thinks it will be found that it will be in nearly every case very undesirable and of no practical utility, but rather a source of danger, to file a provisional specification at all. Provisional specifications were introduced by the Patent Act of 1852, now repealed, under the idea that a poor man might, at a cost of £5, get a provisional protection for six months, and which was understood at the time to give him a right to exhibit his invention without danger to a subsequent patent, and also, if the provisional protection was followed up by a subsequent patent, a right to sue all infringers of his invention after the date of his patent, which nearly always corresponded with the date of his provisional protection.

Old practice
as to provisional
specification.

Under the old Acts there was no comparison of the provisional specification with the complete specification by any officer in the Patent Office, and when compared in Court it was very seldom that a patent could be defeated because the complete specification did not agree with the provisional specification.

Under the new Act the only beneficial effect of a provisional protection will be that, under s. 14, where an application for a patent in respect of an invention has been accepted with a provisional specification, the invention may, during the period between the date of the application and the date of sealing such patent, be used and published without prejudice to the patent to be afterwards granted for the same; but inasmuch as the patentee will have no right to sue for any infringement of his patent committed before his complete specification has been accepted by the office and published (ss. 10 & 13)—and this publication may not take place for many months after the provisional specification is left at the office—it would seem to be dangerous to show any provisional specification, as it might induce persons to infringe it, whilst they could do so without being liable for the infringement; and it is improbable that any person would, under the new Act, buy any patent right under the Act until the complete specification has been accepted and published by the Patent Office; and again, when a complete specification is left after a provisional specification, both specifications will be referred to an examiner for the purpose of ascertaining whether the complete specification has been prepared in the prescribed manner, and whether the invention particularly described in the complete specification is substantially the same as that which is described in the provisional specification, and as the examiner to whom the two specifications will be referred may, and probably will be, a different examiner to the one to whom the provisional specification was referred, the double examination would seem to increase the chances of some serious objection being taken to the complete specification.

New practice.

No right to sue for infringement until publication of complete specification.

Complete
specification.

The preparation of the complete specification will require more consideration than hitherto: under the old Acts, a complete specification was good without any specific claim as to the invention the patentee wished to secure, and although most modern complete specifications concluded with a claim, it very often was little if anything more than a statement that the inventor claimed the invention thereinbefore substantially described, without saying definitely or distinctly in the claim in what the invention consisted.

Under the new Act (s. 5, sub-sec. 5) the complete specification must end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed, and this provision of the Act would hardly seem to be met by a statement of a claim for the invention "substantially as described."

Reference to examiner.

Every application for a patent, whether accompanied by a provisional or a complete specification, will be referred, under s. 6, by the comptroller of the Patent Office to an examiner, who will ascertain and report to the comptroller whether the nature of the invention has been fairly described, and the application, specification and drawings, if any, have been prepared in the prescribed manner, and whether the title sufficiently indicates the subject-matter of the invention.

If the examiner reports that the nature of the invention is not fairly described, or that the application, specification and drawings, has not, or have not been prepared in the prescribed manner, or that the title does not sufficiently indicate the subject-matter of the invention, the comptroller may, under s. 7 (1), require that the application, specification or drawings may be amended before he proceeds with the application.

The applicant may appeal from the decision of the comptroller to the law officer, who, if required, must hear the applicant and the comptroller, and may make an order determining whether and subject to what conditions, if any, the application shall be accepted (s. 7, sub-secs. 2 and 3).

Where a complete specification is left after a provisional specification, the comptroller will refer both specifications to an examiner, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the complete specification has been prepared in the prescribed manner, and whether the invention particularly described in the complete specification is substantially the same as that which is described in the provisional specification (s. 9, sub-sec. 1).

Comparison of complete and provisional specifications.

If the examiner reports that the conditions in the Act before contained (see s. 5) have not been complied with, the comptroller may refuse to accept the complete specification, unless and until the same shall have been amended to his satisfaction, but any such refusal is subject to an appeal to the law officer, and the law officer will, if required, hear both applicant and the comptroller, and may make an order determining whether and subject to what conditions (if any) the complete specifications shall be accepted (s. 9, sub-secs. 2 and 3).

Acceptance of complete specification to be advertised.

On the acceptance of the complete specification, the comptroller will advertise the acceptance; and the application and specification or specifications, with the drawings, if any, will then be open to public inspection (s. 10).

Opposition to grant of patent.

Any person may, at any time within two months from the date of the advertisement of the acceptance of a complete specification, give notice at the Patent Office of opposition to the grant of the patent, on the ground of the applicant having obtained the invention from him, or from a person of whom he is the legal personal representative, or on the ground that the invention has been patented in this country, on an application of prior date, or on the ground of an examiner having reported to the comptroller that the specification appears to him to comprise the same invention as is comprised in a specification having the same or a similar title, and accompanying a previous application, but on no other ground (s. 11, sub-sec. 1).

When such notice or notices are given, the comptroller will give notice of the opposition or oppositions to the applicant, and will on the expiration of the two months allowed under the last-mentioned sub-section, after hearing the applicant and the person or persons who have given notice of opposition, if desirous of being heard, decide on the case, but subject to appeal to the law officer (s. 11, sub-sec. 2).

The law officer will, if required, hear the applicant and any person or persons who have given notice of opposition, and being, in the opinion of the law officer, entitled to be heard in opposition to the grant; and the law officer will determine whether the grant ought or ought not to be made; and the law officer may, if he thinks fit, obtain the assistance of an expert, who will be paid such remuneration as the law officer, with the consent of the Treasury, shall appoint (s. 11, sub-secs. 3 and 4).

The above provisions, as to the complete specification, have been gone through thus carefully for the reason that an important question will no doubt arise as to their effect after they have been completed. What do they lead up to and what is to be gained by them by the inventor or the public? Do they alter the conditions on which a patent is to be granted, as to the complete specification required under the old Acts, so that the inventor's complete specification having passed through the above ordeal satisfactorily, he may be said to have "by and in his complete specification particularly described the nature of his invention," and may be relieved from the express condition always contained under the previous Acts in the patent, that the patent shall be void if the complete specification to be filed under the patent, or already filed before the patent is granted, "does not particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed?"

A series of new operations as to the complete specification having been gone through under the new Act, is not the best exponent of the result of these operations to be found in the form of the patent giving effect to the result of the operations, and stating that the inventor has "by and in his complete specification particularly described the nature of his invention," and omitting altogether the old express condition that the patent should be void if the complete specification did not particularly describe the invention, &c.

And secondly, if the operations to be gone through are considered, do they not point to the same result? A complete specification under the old Acts was filed in any form the inventor chose to frame it.

And in the new Act many alterations are made, and provision is made that the complete specification must particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed, and must be accompanied by drawings, if required, and must end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed; and whether these requirements have or have not been fulfilled has to be decided upon by an examiner and the controller, and the law officer on appeal, and the complete specification may possibly go before the law officer again, with the assistance of an expert, on a further appeal by one of the public after publication; and though the insufficiency of the specification is not a ground on which the public can oppose the grant, yet it is very possible that it may come into consideration and discussion, and lead to an amendment of the specification on an opposition, on the ground that the invention has been patented in this country on an application of prior date; and unless the specification does particularly describe the invention, it is difficult to see how the question of whether it is or is not anticipated by another specification can be satisfactorily decided.

Thirdly—There does not seem to be any practical difficulty in holding that the true construction of the Act is to the effect that the sufficiency of the specification is to be taken as decided by the result of the operations gone through, as the patentee could only sue for a breach of the invention disclosed and described in his complete specification, anything kept back and not disclosed and described would not be protected by his patent.

Section 26, sub-sec. 3, ought perhaps to be noticed, but when properly construed it would seem to have no real bearing upon the above question, as it must, it is submitted, be read as if it were written subject to the alterations made by the Act.

Section 26, sub-sec. 3, is as follows:—
“Every ground on which a patent might at the commencement of this Act be repealed by scire facias shall be available by way of defence to an action of infringement, and shall also be a ground of revocation.”

Now supposing the nonfulfilment of the old express condition to be a ground upon which a patent could have been repealed, so equally would the other old conditions—say as to the payment of fees—have been ground for a similar application to repeal; these conditions are altered by the Act, and to construe this section as if it said any defence existing before the Act shall be a good defence after the Act, would be to make the Act of no effect. It is therefore submitted that the last-mentioned clause must be read as suggested, subject to the alterations made by the Act, and that it leaves it an open question whether the Act has not, as suggested, altered the old express condition in the patent as to the sufficiency of the complete specification.

It ought perhaps to be observed, that although patents are to be granted for 14 years, practically speaking they will not in many cases give the inventor so long a time as 14 years to reap the fruits of his discovery. His complete specification need only be filed within nine months from the date of his application (s. 8), and it will probably take at least another month, and it may take much longer, before it is accepted (see s. 9, sub-sec. 4); and as before-mentioned, until it is accepted and the acceptance advertised, the inventor has no remedy for any infringements (see ss. 10 & 13), nor can he institute any proceedings for any infringement until his patent has been granted to him (see s. 15).

Designs.

What is a design.

With respect to designs, any new and original design, not previously published in the United Kingdom, applicable to any article of manufacture, or to any substance artificial or natural, or partly artificial and partly natural, whether the design is applicable for the pattern, or the shape or configuration, or the ornament thereof, or for any two or more of such purposes, and by whatever means it is applicable, whether by printing, painting, embroidering, weaving, sewing, modelling, casting, embossing, engraving, staining, or any other means whatever, manual, mechanical or chemical, separate or combined (not being a design for a sculpture, or other thing within the protection of the Sculpture Copyright Act of the year 1814, 54 Geo. III. c. 56), may, on application to the comptroller, be registered as a copyright design under this Act (s. 47 and 60).

Applications must be in proper form and signed.

The application to register must be made in the forms given in the first schedule to the Act, or such other form as may be from time to time prescribed.

Specimens or

The application must contain a statement of the nature of the design and the class or classes of goods for which registration is desired, and must be lodged at the office, together with copies of the drawings, photographs, or tracings of the design, sufficient, in the opinion of the comptroller, to enable him to identify the design; or, instead of copies, exact representations or specimens of the design; but the comptroller has power to refuse any drawings, representations or specimens which, in his opinion, are not suitable for the official records, and it should be borne in mind that, if exact representations or specimens of the design are not deposited at the time of making the application, it will be necessary to lodge such exact specimens before delivery or sale of any article to which a registered design has been applied. Each such article must be marked with the prescribed mark, words, or figures denoting that the design is registered, before being sold, otherwise the copyright will cease, unless the proprietor can show that he took proper steps to ensure the marking of the article. (See ss. 50 & 51.) copies of design to be lodged with application.

Every article to which a registered design is applied to bear the registration mark.

The same design can, if accepted, be registered in any number of classes; and in case an applicant be doubtful as to the class in which a design should be registered, the comptroller may decide the question (s. 47, sub-sec. 4 and 5). The comptroller is empowered, if he thinks fit, to refuse the registration of a design, but

Design may be registered in more than one class.

Comptroller may refuse registration.

the party aggrieved by such refusal may appeal from his decision to the Board of Trade, who, if required, will determine whether registration is to be permitted (s. 47, sub-sec. 6 and 7).

Cesser of design if not used.

If a registered design is used in manufacture in any foreign country, and is not used in this country within six months of its registration in this country, the copyright will cease (s. 54).

Certificate of
registration.

When a design is registered, the comptroller will grant a certificate to that effect ; and when expedient, he has power to grant a copy or copies of such certificate (s. 49).

Copyright to last for five years.

Subject to the provisions of the Act, the copyright will last for five years (s. 50), at the expiration of which time, or before, if the copyright shall have ceased, the design will be open to the inspection of the public, and copies of such design can then be taken by any person on payment of the prescribed fee ; but during the existence of the copyright, the design can only be seen by the proprietor, or some person authorised in writing by him, or by a person authorised by the comptroller or the Court, and then only upon furnishing such information as will enable the comptroller to identify the design, and the inspection must be made in the presence of the comptroller, or an officer acting under him, and the person making the inspection will not be entitled to copy the design or any part thereof (s. 52).

Under s. 53, on the request of any person producing a particular design, together with its mark of registration, or furnishing such information as will enable the comptroller to identify the design, on payment of the prescribed fee, will be informed whether the registration still exists in respect of such design, and of the class or classes of goods, the date of registration, and the name and address of the registered proprietor.

Information as to existence of copyright.

A register of designs will be kept at the Patent Office, and will contain the names and addresses of proprietors of registered designs, notifications of assignments of registered designs, and such other matters as may from time to time be prescribed. (See s. 55.) These registers will be open for the inspection of the public (s. 88), but no entry of any trust will be made in any register kept under the Act (s. 85).

Register of proprietors of designs.

The exhibition at an Industrial or International Exhibition, certified as such by the Board of Trade, or the exhibition elsewhere, during the holding of the Exhibition, without the privity or consent of the proprietor of a design, or of any article to which a design is applied, or the publication during the holding of any such exhibition of a description of a design, will not prevent or invalidate

When exhibition of design will not invalidate registration.

the registration of the design, provided that, before exhibiting the design or article, or publishing a description of the design, the exhibitor gives the comptroller the prescribed notice of his intention to do so, and the application for registration is made within six months from the date of the opening of the Exhibition (s. 57).

Penalty on piracy of registered design.

When a piracy or fraudulent imitation of a design has been committed, the proprietor of the design can recover, as a simple contract debt, a sum not exceeding £50 from the party offending, or he may bring an action for damages should he choose to do so (ss. 58 and 59).

Trade Marks.
Alterations in practice.

The practice relating to trade marks having been placed upon a very fair footing by the previous trade mark Acts now repealed, the alterations made by the present Act are very few, but still are somewhat important, owing to the increased facilities which they give to applicants for registration.

Application for registration.

Should the comptroller refuse an application to register a mark, the party applying can now appeal against such decision to the Board of Trade, who may, should it seem expedient, refer the appeal to the High Court of Justice (s. 62, sub-secs. 4 and 5), and (s. 64) after giving a list of the particulars of which a mark must consist, by sub-sec. (c), states that a distinctive device, mark, brand, heading, label, ticket or fancy word or words not in common use, may be registered as a trade mark. This is of wider scope than previous Acts, and will probably invite a large increase in applications, although it will probably lend considerable aid to litigation in this respect, owing to the elasticity of the clause. The foregoing remarks apply to new marks, viz., those not in existence prior to August 13th, 1875; old marks, viz., marks used before August 13th, 1875, can be registered in almost whatever form they may be. New proprietors of old marks should be careful to state in their application how the mark came into their possession, such as by "successors in business, &c.," or by "purchasing the good-will, &c." The Act does not require an application to register an old mark to be supported by a statutory declaration.

Fancy word
may be registered.

Another new feature is, that when the registration of a mark is not completed within twelve months from the date of application, through default on the part of the applicant, it will then be considered to be abandoned, and any further proceedings should be commenced by a fresh application (s. 63). A registered proprietor under the new Act can use his mark in any colour, notwithstanding it may be registered in a particular colour (s. 67).

Registration
of mark to be completed within twelve months.

Application
must be signed.

The application to register a trade mark should be in the form set forth in the first schedule to the Act, and must be signed by the proprietor or some person on his behalf. The application should then be left at or sent by post to the Patent Office, accompanied with two copies of the mark on foolscap paper, if registration is required in one class of goods only; but should it be desired to register the mark in more than one class, then one additional copy of the mark must be sent for each extra class in which registration is required. Before applying to register a new mark, it is always advisable to search the register in order to see if there is a similar mark already registered. This will frequently save expense, for when once a fee is accepted by the comptroller, it cannot be returned or used for any other purpose.

Separate applications to be made for registration of different marks.

If a person wishes to register more than one mark in the same or different classes of goods, it will be necessary to make separate applications for each mark; but under s. 66, a person claiming to be the proprietor of several trade marks which, while resembling each other in the material particulars thereof, yet differ in respect of the goods for which they are respectively used or proposed to be used, or numbers, or prices, or quality, or names of places, can register such trade marks as a series in one registration, and such series can only be assigned or transmitted as a whole; but for all other purposes, each of the marks composing a series will be deemed and treated as registered separately; and under s. 70 a trade mark, when registered, can only be assigned in connection with the good-will of the business concerned in the particular goods or classes of goods for which it has been registered, and such trade marks will be determinable with such good-will. When more than one mark is registered in the same class, or the same mark is registered in various classes, a considerable reduction is made in the fees.

Reduction of fees.

When a mark is accepted by the comptroller, it will be necessary for the applicant to forward a wood-block, or an electrotype of the mark, for the purpose of advertising the same in the journal provided for that purpose; and when the prescribed time has elapsed, supposing there has been no notice of opposition lodged, and after paying the registration fee, a notification of the registration will then be issued; this document, however, will be of no avail as evidence, a certificate signed by the comptroller being required for that purpose (s. 96).

Advertising the mark before registration.

When more than one person separately claims to register the same mark at the same time, and for the same class of goods, the comptroller may refuse to register any of them until their rights have been determined according to law, and he will not register in the same class a mark identical or similar with one already registered in that class. (See ss. 71 and 72.)

Comptroller may refuse registration.

Marks used by more than three persons to be common to the trade.

Any mark publicly used previous to August 13th, 1875, by more than three persons in the same or similar description of goods, will be considered common to the trade in such goods (s. 74, sub-sec. 3).

Opposition to registration.

In the event of a mark being opposed, the person opposing must, within two months of the first advertisement of the application, give notice in duplicate at the Patent Office of opposition to the mark, one copy of which notice will be sent to the applicant. Within two months after such notice has been given, the applicant should send a counter-statement, in duplicate, of the grounds upon which he relies for his application, and if he does not do so, his application will be considered abandoned; should the applicant send such counter-statement, one copy will be forwarded to the person who gave notice of opposition, who will then be required to give security, as the comptroller may think necessary, for such costs as may be awarded; and if after fourteen days from the date of being required so to do the security is not given, the opposition will be considered to be withdrawn, but should such security be given, the comptroller will inform the applicant of the fact in writing, and thereupon the case will be deemed to stand for the determination of the High Court of Justice (s. 69).

No proceeding can be taken to recover damages for infringement, &c., unless the mark is registered, or, in the case of an old mark in use before August 13th, 1875, registration has been refused. The comptroller will, on request, grant a certificate of the refusal of the application to register a mark (s. 77).

Mark must be registered to recover damages for infringement.

The registration of a mark is prima facie evidence of the right of the registered proprietor, and after the expiration of five years from the date of registration is conclusive evidence of such right, subject to the provisions of the Act (s. 76).

Right of first proprietor.

Within three months, and not less than two months before the expiration of fourteen years from the date of registration, the comptroller is required to send a notice to the proprietor, stating that if the proper fees are not paid within the fourteen years the mark will be removed from the register; a second notice to the same effect is required to be given, and if the fees are not paid within three months from the expiration of the fourteen years, the mark will then be removed from the register; but after such removal, the comptroller has power to restore any mark, should he think fit to do so, upon the required fees being paid. In the event of a mark, being removed from the register at the end of fourteen years, the comptroller will, nevertheless, for the purpose of any application for registration during the five years next after the date of such removal, deem such mark to be a trade mark which is already registered (s. 79).

Removal of Trade Mark after 14 years, unless fee paid.

Doubt whether fees to be paid every 14 years.

It was probably intended that the fees under the last-mentioned section should be payable every 14 years, but it may well be doubted whether the words in s. 79, sub.-sec. 2, give effect to such intention.

Assignments, &c., to be registered.

All assignments of trade marks should be registered, and any other matters which may be considered necessary, but no entry of any trust will be allowed. (See ss. 78 and 85.)

Power to alter the register.

The comptroller has power to cancel an entry on the register, or part of an entry, upon request in writing, but such request must be accompanied by a statutory declaration, or the proprietor may apply to the High Court of Justice to rectify the register, but notice must first be given to the comptroller of such intended application. (See ss. 90, 91 and 92.)

Office copies.

Office copies, under seal, of any document filed at the Patent Office, will be accepted as evidence (s. 89).

Any person knowingly making, or causing to be made, a false entry, will be guilty of a misdemeanour, and any person falsely representing an article to be "patented" or "registered," will be liable to a fine not exceeding £5 (ss. 93 and 105). Falsification of registers.

When the comptroller is empowered to act according to his discretion, he is not to use such power adversely to the applicant without giving him the opportunity of being heard, either personally or by his agent (s. 94). Comptroller to hear applicant or agent personally.

The comptroller may, in any case of doubt or difficulty arising in the administration of any of the provisions of the Act, apply to either of the law officers for directions in the matter (s. 95); but of course this power should not be exercised in any case in which the matter may have to go before the law officers in appeal from the comptroller.

The "Commissioners of Patents' Journal," of the 23rd October, 1883, contained an official notice from the Board of Trade as to applications for patents under the Act. A copy of this notice will be found at the end of the Act.

CHAPTER 57.

An Act to amend and consolidate the Law relating to Patents for Inventions, Registration of Designs and of Trade Marks.

25TH AUGUST, 1883.

BE it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

Part I.
Preliminary.

1. This Act may be cited as the "Patents, Short title.
Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883."

Part I.
Preliminary.

Division of Act into parts.

2. This Act is divided into parts, as follows:—

Part I.—Preliminary.

Part II.—Patents.

Part III.—Designs.

Part IV.—Trade Marks.

Part V.—General.

Commencement of Act.

3. This Act, except where it is otherwise expressed, shall commence from and immediately after the Thirty-first day of December, One thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

Part II.
Patents.

PART II.

PATENTS.

Application for and Grant of Patent.

Persons entitled to apply for patent.

4. (1.) Any person, whether a British subject or not, may make an application¹ for a patent.

(2.) Two or more persons may make a joint application for a patent, and a patent may be granted to them jointly.²

Application
and specification.

5. (1.) An application for a patent must be made in the form set forth in the first schedule to this Act, or in such other form as may be from time to time prescribed; and must be left at, or sent by post to, the Patent Office, in the prescribed manner.

² Only one or more of such persons need be the true and first inventor or inventors. (See s. 5, sub-sec. 2.)

(2.) An application must contain a declaration to the effect that the applicant is in possession of an invention, whereof he, or in the case of a joint application, one or more of the applicants, claims or claim to be the true and first inventor or inventors, and for which he or they desires or desire to obtain a patent; and must be accompanied by either a provisional or complete specification.¹

(3.) A provisional specification must describe the nature of the invention, and be accompanied by drawings, if required.

(4.) A complete specification, whether left on application or subsequently, must particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention, and in what manner it is to be performed, and must be accompanied by drawings, if required.

(5.) A specification, whether provisional or complete, must commence with the title, and in the case of a complete specification must ¹ See Forms "B" and "C" in the first schedule to this Act. And see also observations in the Introductory Chapter, as to provisional and complete specifications.

Part II.
Patents.

end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed.¹

Reference of application to examiner.

6. The comptroller shall refer every application to an examiner,² who shall ascertain and report to the comptroller² whether the nature of the invention has been fairly described, and the application, specification and drawings (if any) have been prepared in the prescribed manner, and the title sufficiently indicates the subject-matter of the invention.

Power for comptroller to refuse application or require amendment.

7. (1.) If the examiner reports that the nature of the invention is not fairly described, or that the application, specification, or drawings has not or have not been prepared in the prescribed manner, or that the title does not sufficiently indicate the subject-matter of the invention, the comptroller may require that the application, specification, or drawings be amended before he proceeds with the application.

(2.) Where the comptroller requires an amendment, the applicant may appeal from his decision to the law officer.³

¹ The distinct statement of the invention, claimed at the end of the specification, is a new provision, and would seem to require much greater particularity in the statement of claims to inventions than hitherto required.

² The comptroller and examiners are to be appointed by the Board of Trade, under s. 83 of the Act.

³ Law officer means Her Majesty's Attorney-General or Solicitor-General for England. (See s. 117 of the Act.)

(3.) The law officer shall, if required, hear the applicant and the comptroller, and may make an order determining whether and subject to what conditions,¹ if any, the application shall be accepted.

(4.) The comptroller shall, when an application has been accepted, give notice thereof to the applicant.

(5.) If after an application has been made, but before a patent has been sealed, an application is made, accompanied by a specification bearing the same or a similar title,² it shall be the duty of the examiner to report to the comptroller whether the specification appears to him to comprise the same invention; and if he reports in the affirmative, the comptroller shall give notice to the applicants that he has so reported.

(6.) Where the examiner reports in the affirmative, the comptroller may determine, subject to an appeal to the law officer, whether the

¹ This would seem to point to the result discussed in the Introductory Chapter, viz., that the law officer may require any alterations he pleases in the specification, and, practically speaking, may possibly be said to settle the specifications brought before him.

² It will be observed that this does not include an inquiry as to patents prior to the application, and is not at all of the same nature as the opposition by one of the public on the ground that the invention has been patented in this country on an application of prior date to the inventor's application. (See s. 11, sub-sec. 1.)

Part II.
Patents.

invention comprised in both applications is the same, and if so, he may refuse to seal a patent on the application of the second applicant.

Time for leaving complete specification.

8. (1.) If the applicant does not leave a complete specification with his application, he may leave it at any subsequent time within nine months from the date of application.

(2.) Unless a complete specification is left within that time, the application shall be deemed to be abandoned.

Comparison of provisional and complete
specification.

9. (1.) Where a complete specification¹ is left after a provisional specification, the comptroller shall refer both specifications to an examiner, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the complete specification has been prepared in the prescribed manner, and whether the invention particularly described in the complete specification is substantially the same as that which is described in the provisional specification.

(2.) If the examiner reports that the conditions hereinbefore contained have not been complied with, the comptroller may refuse to accept the complete specification unless and until the same shall have been amended to his satisfaction¹; but any such refusal shall be subject to appeal to the law officer.

(3.) The law officer shall, if required, hear the applicant and the comptroller, and may make an order determining whether and subject to what conditions,¹ if any, the complete specification shall be accepted.

(4.) Unless a complete specification is accepted within twelve months from the date of application, then (save in the case of an appeal having been lodged against the refusal to accept) the application shall, at the expiration of those twelve months, become void.

(5.) Reports of examiners shall not in any case be published or be open to public inspection, and shall not be liable to production or inspection in any legal proceeding, other than an appeal to the law officer under this Act, unless the Court or officer having power to order discovery in such legal proceeding shall certify that such production or inspection is desirable in the interests of justice, and ought to be allowed.

10. On the acceptance of the complete specification the comptroller shall advertise the acceptance; and the application and

Advertisement
on acceptance of complete
specification.

¹ This seems to point to the result discussed in the Introductory Chapter as to the sufficiency of the complete specification.

specification or specifications with the drawings (if any) shall be open to public inspection.¹

11. (1.) Any person may at any time within two months from the date of the advertisement of the acceptance of a complete specification, give notice at the Patent Office of opposition to the grant of the patent on the ground of the applicant having obtained the invention from him, or from a person of whom he is the legal representative, or on the ground that the invention has been patented in this country on an application of prior date, or on the ground of an examiner having reported to the controller that the specification appears to him to comprise the same invention as is comprised in a specification bearing the same or a similar title, and accompanying a previous application, but on no other ground.

(2.) Where such notice is given, the controller shall give notice of the opposition to the applicant, and shall, on the expiration of those two months, after hearing the applicant and the person so giving notice, if desirous of being heard, decide on the case, but subject to appeal to the law officer.

(3.) The law officer shall, if required, hear

the applicant and any person so giving notice and being, in the opinion of the law officer, entitled to be heard in opposition to the grant, and shall determine whether the grant ought or ought not to be made.¹

(4.) The law officer may, if he thinks fit, obtain the assistance of an expert, who shall be paid such remuneration as the law officer, with the consent of the Treasury shall appoint.

12. (1.) If there is no opposition, or, in case of opposition, if the determination is in favour of the grant of a patent, the comptroller shall cause a patent to be sealed with the seal of the Patent Office.

Sealing of
patent.

(2.) A patent so sealed shall have the same effect as if it were sealed with the Great Seal of the United Kingdom.

(3.) A patent shall be sealed as soon as may be, and not after the expiration of fifteen months from the date of application, except in the cases hereinafter mentioned, that is to say—

¹ The law officer may, under this section, have to decide the question whether the patent sought for has been anticipated by another patent, and this is sometimes a question of great difficulty, and might involve hearing evidence on oath, and a long inquiry. (See the decision of the House of Lords as to this question overruling the decision of a majority of the Judges, Betts v. Menzies, 10 House of Lords, Cases 117, and 31 Law Journal Reports, New Series, Queen's Bench 233.) The law officer, under the Act, will be able to hear evidence on oath. (See s. 38.)

(a.) Where the sealing is delayed by an appeal to the law officer, or by opposition to the grant of the patent, the patent may be sealed at such time as the law officer may direct.

(b.) If the person making the application dies before the expiration of the fifteen months aforesaid, the patent may be granted to his legal representative and sealed at any time within twelve months after the death of the applicant.

patent.

13. Every patent shall be dated and sealed as of the day of the application: Provided, that no proceedings shall be taken in respect of an infringement committed before the publication of the complete specification:¹ Provided also, that in case of more than one application for a patent for the same invention, the sealing of a patent on one of those applications shall not prevent the sealing of a patent on an earlier application.

Provisional Protection.

protection.

14. Where an application for a patent in respect of an invention has been accepted, the invention may, during the period between the date of the application and the date of sealing such patent, be used and published without prejudice to the patent to be granted for the same,¹ and such protection from the consequences of use and publication is in this Act referred to as provisional protection.

¹The publication referred to would seem to be the advertisement of the acceptance of the complete specification under s. 10. This is an important limitation of the 14 years granted by the patent, and may reduce the profits to be derived from the invention from 14 years to even less than 13 years. (See s. 9, sub-sec. 4.)

Part II.
Patents.

Protection by complete Specification.

15. After the acceptance of a complete specification and until the date of sealing a patent in respect thereof, or the expiration of the time for sealing, the applicant shall have the like privileges and rights as if a patent for the invention had been sealed on the date of the acceptance of the complete specification: Provided, that an applicant shall not be entitled to institute any proceeding for infringement unless and until a patent for the invention has been granted to him.

Effect of acceptance of complete
specification.

Patent.

16. Every patent, when sealed, shall have effect throughout the United Kingdom and the Isle of Man.

Extent of
patent.

17. (1.) The term limited in every patent for the duration thereof shall be fourteen years from its date.

Term of
patent.

¹ This is the only advantage of provisional protection, and it seems to be one of very doubtful value. (See observations in the Introductory Chapter.)

(2.) But every patent shall, notwithstanding anything therein or in this Act, cease if the patentee fails to make the prescribed payments within the prescribed times.¹

(3.) If, nevertheless, in any case, by accident, mistake or inadvertence, a patentee fails to make any prescribed payment within the prescribed time, he may apply to the comptroller for an enlargement of the time for making that payment.

(4.) Thereupon the comptroller shall, if satisfied that the failure has arisen from any of the above-mentioned causes, on receipt of the prescribed fee for enlargement, not exceeding ten pounds, enlarge the time accordingly, subject to the following conditions :

(a.) The time for making any payment shall not in any case be enlarged for more than three months.

(b.) If any proceeding shall be taken in respect of an infringement of the patent committed after a failure to make any payment within the prescribed time, and before the enlargement thereof, the Court before which the proceeding is proposed to be taken may, if it shall think fit, refuse to award or give any damages in respect of such infringement.

Part II.
Patents.

Amendment of Specification.

18. (1.) An applicant or a patentee may, from time to time, by request in writing left at the Patent Office, seek leave to amend his specification, including drawings forming part thereof, by way of disclaimer, correction, or explanation, stating the nature of such amendment and his reasons for the same.

Amendment of
specification.

(2.) The request and the nature of such proposed amendment shall be advertised in the prescribed manner, and at any time within one month from its first advertisement any person may give notice at the Patent Office of opposition to the amendment.

(3.) Where such notice is given the controller shall give notice of the opposition to the person making the request, and shall hear and decide the case, subject to an appeal to the law officer.

(4.) The law officer shall, if required, hear the person making the request and the person so giving notice, and being in the opinion of the law officer entitled to be heard in opposition to the request, and shall determine whether and subject to what conditions, if any, the amendment ought to be allowed.

(5.) Where no notice of opposition is given, or the person so giving notice does not appear, the comptroller shall determine whether and subject to what conditions, if any, the amendment ought to be allowed.

(6.) When leave to amend is refused by the comptroller, the person making the request may appeal from his decision to the law officer.

(7.) The law officer shall, if required, hear the person making the request and the comptroller, and may make an order determining whether, and subject to what conditions, if any, the amendment ought to be allowed.

(8.) No amendment shall be allowed that would make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than or substantially different from the invention claimed by the specification as it stood before amendment.

(9.) Leave to amend shall be conclusive as to the right of the party to make the amendment allowed, except in case of fraud; and the amendment shall in all Courts and for all purposes be deemed to form part of the specification.

(10.) The foregoing provisions of this section do not apply when and so long as any action for infringement or other legal proceeding in relation to a patent is pending.

19. (1.) In an action for infringement of a patent, and in a proceeding for revocation of a patent, the Court or a Judge may at any time order that the patentee shall, subject to such terms as to costs and otherwise as the Court or a Judge may impose, be at liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend his specification by way of disclaimer,¹ and may direct that in the meantime the trial or hearing of the action shall be postponed.

Part II.
Patents.
Power to disclaim part of invention during action, &c.

20. Where an amendment by way of disclaimer, correction or explanation, has been allowed under this Act, no damages shall be given in any action in respect of the use of the invention before the disclaimer, correction or explanation, unless the patentee establishes to the satisfaction of the Court that his original claim was framed in good faith and with reasonable skill and knowledge.

Restriction on recovery of damages.

21. Every amendment of a specification shall be advertised in the prescribed manner.

Advertisement of amendment.

Compulsory Licences.

22. If on the petition of any person interested it is proved to the Board of Trade that by reason of the default of a patentee to grant licences on reasonable terms—

Power for Board to order grant of licences.

¹This is a new provision, and will very probably be found to be a most valuable provision in favour of inventors.

(a.) The patent is not being worked in the United Kingdom; or

(b.) The reasonable requirements of the public with respect to the invention cannot be supplied; or

(c.) Any person is prevented from working or using to the best advantage an invention of which he is possessed, the Board may order the patentee to grant licences¹ on such terms as to the amount of royalties, security for payment, or otherwise, as the Board, having regard to the nature of the invention and the circumstances of the case, may deem just, and any such order may be enforced by mandamus.

Register of Patents.

23. (1.) There shall be kept at the Patent Office a book called the Register of Patents, wherein shall be entered the names and addresses of grantees of patents, notifications of assignments and of transmissions of patents, of licences under patents, and of amendments, extensions and revocations of patents, and such other matters affecting the validity or proprietorship of patents as may from time to time be prescribed.

¹ This is a new provision, and will probably be found beneficial to inventors.

(2.) The register of patents shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorised to be inserted therein.¹

(3.) Copies of deeds, licences, and any other documents affecting the proprietorship in any letters patent or in any licence thereunder, must be supplied to the comptroller in the prescribed manner for filing in the Patent Office.

Fees.

24. (1.) There shall be paid in respect of the several instruments described in the second schedule to this Act, the fees in that schedule mentioned, and there shall likewise be paid, in respect of other matters under this part of the Act, such fees as may be from time to time, with the sanction of the Treasury, prescribed by the Board of Trade; and such fees shall be levied and paid to the account of Her Majesty's Exchequer, in such manner as the Treasury may from time to time direct.

Fees in schedule.

(2.) The Board of Trade may from time to time, if they think fit, with the consent of the Treasury, reduce any of those fees.

Extension of Term of Patent.

25. (1.) A patentee may, after advertising term of patent on petition to Queen in Council.

¹ See s. 90 as to rectification of register.

in manner directed by any rules made under this section his intention to do so, present a petition to Her Majesty in Council, praying that his patent may be extended for a further term; but such petition must be presented at least six months before the time limited for the expiration of the patent.

(2.) Any person may enter a caveat, addressed to the Registrar of the Council at the Council Office, against the extension.

(3.) If Her Majesty shall be pleased to refer any such petition to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the said Committee shall proceed to consider the same, and the petitioner and any person who has entered a caveat shall be entitled to be heard by himself or by counsel on the petition.

(4.) The Judicial Committee shall, in considering their decision, have regard to the nature and merits of the invention in relation to the public, to the profits made by the patentee as such, and to all the circumstances of the case.

(5.) If the Judicial Committee report that the patentee has been inadequately remunerated by his patent, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty in Council to extend the term of the patent for a further term, not exceeding seven, or in exceptional cases, 14 years; or to order the grant of a new patent for the term therein mentioned, and containing any restrictions, conditions, and provisions that the Judicial Committee may think fit.

(6.) It shall be lawful for Her Majesty in Council to make, from time to time, rules of procedure and practice for regulating proceedings on such petitions, and subject thereto such proceedings shall be regulated according to the existing procedure and practice in patent matters of the Judicial Committee.

(7.) The costs of all parties of and incident to such proceedings shall be in the discretion of the Judicial Committee; and the orders of the Committee respecting costs shall be enforceable as if they were orders of a division of the High Court of Justice.

Revocation.

26. (1.) The proceeding by scire facias to repeal a patent is hereby abolished. Revocation of patent.

(2.) Revocation of a patent may be obtained on petition to the Court.¹

(3.) Every ground on which a patent might, at the commencement of this Act, be repealed by scire facias, shall be available by way of

¹ The Court means (subject to the provisions for Scotland, Ireland and the Isle of Man) Her Majesty's High Court of Justice in England. (See s. 117.)

defence to an action of infringement, and shall also be a ground of revocation.¹

(4.) A petition for revocation of a patent may be presented by—

(a.) The Attorney-General in England or Ireland, or the Lord Advocate in Scotland :

(b.) Any person authorised by the Attorney-General in England or Ireland, or the Lord Advocate in Scotland :

(c.) Any person alleging that the patent was obtained in fraud of his rights, or of the rights of any person under or through whom he claims :

(d.) Any person alleging that he, or any person under or through whom he claims, was the true inventor of any invention included in the claim of the patentee :

(e.) Any person alleging that he, or any person under or through whom he claims an interest in any trade, business, or manufacture, had publicly manufactured, used, or sold, within this realm, before the date of the patent,

¹ This must mean subject to the alterations made by the Act, and the clause cannot, it is considered, be read as if it were written, "Every ground on which a patent might, before the commencement of the Act, &c." (See observations as to this in Introductory Chapter.)

anything claimed by the patentee as his invention.

(5.) The plaintiff must deliver with his petition particulars of the objections on which he means to rely, and no evidence shall, except by leave of the Court or a judge, be admitted in proof of any objection of which particulars are not so delivered.

(6.) Particulars delivered may be from time to time amended by leave of the Court or a judge.

(7.) The defendant shall be entitled to begin, and give evidence in support of the patent, and if the plaintiff gives evidence impeaching the validity of the patent the defendant shall be entitled to reply.

(8.) Where a patent has been revoked on the ground of fraud, the comptroller may, on the application of the true inventor, made in accordance with the provisions of this Act, grant to him a patent in lieu of and bearing the same date as the date of revocation of the patent so revoked, but the patent so granted shall cease on the expiration of the term for which the revoked patent was granted.

Crown.

27. (1.) A patent shall have to all intents the like effect as against Her Majesty the Patent to bind Crown.

Queen, her heirs and successors, as it has against a subject.¹

(2.) But the officers or authorities administering any department of the service of the Crown may, by themselves, their agents, contractors, or others, at any time after the application, use the invention for the services of the Crown on terms to be before or after the use thereof agreed on, with the approval of the Treasury, between those officers or authorities and the patentee, or in default of such agreement, on such terms as may be settled by the Treasury after hearing all parties interested.

Legal Proceedings.

28. (1.) In an action or proceeding for infringement or revocation of a patent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, and shall, on the request of either of the parties to the proceeding, call in the aid of an assessor specially qualified,² and try and hear the case wholly or partially with his assistance; the action shall be tried without a jury unless the Court shall otherwise direct.

¹ This is a new right given to inventors, and in some cases will be very beneficial to them.

² This provision is new, and very probably will not prove beneficial to inventors, as upon a question of novelty or utility it might be very difficult to convince an assessor

(2.) The Court of Appeal or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council may, if they see fit, in any proceeding before them respectively, call in the aid of an assessor as aforesaid.

(3.) The remuneration, if any, to be paid to an assessor under this section, shall be determined by the Court or the Court of Appeal or Judicial Committee, as the case may be, and be paid in the same manner as the other expenses of the execution of this Act.

29. (1.) In an action for infringement of a patent, the plaintiff must deliver with his statement of claim, or by order of the Court or the Judge, at any subsequent time, particulars of the breaches complained of.

Delivery of particulars.

(2.) The defendant must deliver with his statement of defence, or, by order of the Court or Judge, at any subsequent time, particulars of any objections on which he relies in support thereof.

(3.) If the defendant disputes the validity

It is also objectionable as giving patronage to the Court, which had much better be exercised by some independent authority, and especially as, under sub-sec. 3, the Court will have to settle the remuneration to be paid to the assessor; the remuneration will be payable out of money sprovided by Parliament (s. 83, sub-sec. 2).

(6.) On taxation of costs regard shall be had to the particulars delivered by the plaintiff and by the defendant; and they respectively shall not be allowed any costs in respect of any particular delivered by them unless the same is certified by the Court or a Judge to have been proven or to have been reasonable and proper, without regard to the general costs of the case.

Order for inspection,
&c., in action.

30. In an action for infringement of a patent, the Court or a Judge may, on the application of either party, make such order for an injunction, inspection or account, and impose such terms and give such directions respecting the same and the proceedings thereon as the Court or a Judge may see fit.

31. In an action for infringement of a patent¹, the Court or a Judge may certify that the validity of the patent came in question; and if the Court or a Judge so certifies, then in any subsequent action for infringement the plaintiff in that action, on obtaining a final order or judgment in his favour, shall have his full costs, charges and expenses as between solicitor and client, unless the Court or Judge trying the action certifies that he ought not to have the same.

Miscellaneous.

Patent for one invention only.

33. Every patent may be in the form in the first schedule to this Act, and shall be granted for one invention only, but may contain more than one claim; but it shall not be competent for any person in an action or other proceeding to take any objection to a patent on the ground that it comprises more than one invention.

34. (1.) If a person possessed of an invention dies without making application for a patent for the invention, application may be made by, and a patent for the invention granted to his legal representative.

(2.) Every such application must be made within six months of the decease of such person, and must contain a declaration by the legal representative, that he believes such person to be the true and first inventor of the invention.

The law officers may examine witnesses on oath and administer oaths for that purpose under this part of this Act, and may from time to time make, alter, and rescind rules regulating references and appeals to the law officers and the practice and procedure before them under this part of this Act; and in any proceeding before either of the law officers under this part of this Act the law officer may order costs to be paid by either party, and any such order may be made a rule of the Court.²

The exhibition of an invention at an industrial or international exhibition, certified as such by the Board of Trade, or the publication of any description of the invention during the period of the holding of the exhibition, or the use of the invention for the purpose of the exhibition in the place where the exhibition is held, or the use of the invention during the period of the holding of the exhibition by any person elsewhere, without the privity or consent of the inventor, shall not prejudice the right of the inventor or his legal personal representative to apply for and obtain provisional protection and a patent in respect of the invention or the validity of any patent granted on the application, provided that both the following conditions are complied with, namely :—

- (a.) The exhibitor must, before exhibiting the invention, give the comptroller the prescribed notice of his intention to do so; and
- (b.) The application for a patent must be made before or within six months from the date of the opening of the exhibition.

(3.) The comptroller shall continue in such form as he may deem expedient, the indexes and abridgments of specifications hitherto published, and shall from time to time prepare and publish such other indexes, abridgments of specifications, catalogues, and other works relating to inventions, as he may see fit.

Power to require models on payment.

42. The Department of Science and Art may at any time require a patentee to furnish them with a model of his invention on payment to the patentee of the cost of the manufacture of the model; the amount to be settled, in case of dispute, by the Board of Trade.

Foreign vessels in British waters.

43. (1.) A patent shall not prevent the use of an invention for the purposes of the navigation of a foreign vessel within the jurisdiction of any of Her Majesty's Courts in the United Kingdom, or Isle of Man, or the use of an invention in a foreign vessel within that jurisdiction, provided it is not used therein for or in connexion with the manufacture or preparation of anything intended to be sold in or exported from the United Kingdom or Isle of Man.

(2.) But this section shall not extend to vessels of any foreign State of which the laws authorise subjects of such foreign State, having patents or like privileges for the exclusive use or exercise of inventions within its territories, to prevent or interfere with the use of such inventions in British vessels while in the ports of such foreign State, or in the waters within the jurisdiction of its Courts, where such inventions are not so used for the manufacture or preparation of anything intended to be sold in or exported from the territories of such foreign State.

44. (1.) The inventor of any improvement in instruments or munitions of war, his executors, administrators, or assigns (who are in this section comprised in the expression "the inventor") may (either for or without valuable consideration) assign to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the War Department (hereinafter referred to as "the Secretary of State"), on behalf of Her Majesty, all the benefit of the invention and of any patent obtained or to be obtained for the same; and the Secretary of State may be a party to the assignment.

Assignment to Secretary for War of certain inventions.

(2.) The assignment shall effectually vest the benefit of the invention and patent in the Secretary of State for the time being on behalf of Her Majesty, and all covenants and agreements therein contained for keeping the invention secret and otherwise shall be valid and effectual (notwithstanding any want of valuable consideration), and may be enforced accordingly by the Secretary of State for the time being.

(3.) Where any such assignment has been made to the Secretary of State, he may at any time before the application for a patent for the invention, or before publication of the specification or specifications, certify to the comptroller his opinion that, in the interest of the public service, the particulars of the invention and of the manner in which it is to be performed should be kept secret.

(4.) If the Secretary of State so certifies, the application or specification or specifications with the drawings (if any), and any amendment in the specification or specifications, and any copies of such documents and drawings, shall, instead of being left in the ordinary manner at the Patent Office, be delivered to the comptroller in a packet sealed by authority of the Secretary of State.

(5.) Such packet shall until the expiration of the term or extended term during which a patent for the invention may be in force, be kept sealed by the comptroller, and shall not be opened save under the authority of an order of the Secretary of State, or of the law officers.

(6.) Such sealed packet shall be delivered at any time during the continuance of the patent, to any person authorised, by writing under the hand of the Secretary of State, to receive the same, and shall, if returned, to the comptroller, be again kept sealed by him.

(7.) On the expiration of the term or extended term of the patent, such sealed packet shall be delivered to any person authorised, by writing under the hand of the Secretary of State, to receive it.

(8.) Where the Secretary of State certifies as aforesaid, after an application for a patent has been left at the Patent Office, but before the publication of the specification or specifications, the application, specification or specifications, with the drawings (if any), shall be forthwith placed in a packet sealed by authority of the comptroller, and such packet shall be subject to the foregoing provisions respecting a packet sealed by authority of the Secretary of State.

(9.) No proceeding by petition or otherwise shall lie for revocation of a patent granted for an invention in relation to which the Secretary of State has certified as aforesaid.

(10.) No copy of any specification or other document or drawing, by this section required to be placed in a sealed packet, shall in any manner whatever be published or open to the inspection of the public, but save as in this section otherwise directed, the provisions of this part of this Act shall apply in respect of any such invention and patent as aforesaid.

(11.) The Secretary of State may, at any time by writing under his hand, waive the benefit of this section with respect to any particular invention, and the specifications, documents and drawings shall be thenceforth kept and dealt with in the ordinary way.

(12.) The communication of any invention for any improvement in instruments or munitions of war to the Secretary of State, or to any person or persons authorised by him to investigate the same or the merits thereof, shall not, nor shall anything done for the purposes of the investigation, be deemed use or publication of such invention so as to prejudice the grant or validity of any patent for the same.

(3.) In all other respects (including the amount and time of payment of fees) this Act shall extend to all patents granted before the commencement of this Act, or on applications then pending, in substitution for such enactments as would have applied thereto if this Act had not been passed.¹

“Patentee” means the person for the time being entitled to the benefit of a patent :

“Invention” means any manner of new manufacture the subject of letters patent and grant of privilege within section six of the Statute of Monopolies (that is, the Act of the twenty-first year of the reign of King James the First, chapter three, intituled “An Act concerning monopolies and dispensations with penal laws and the forfeiture thereof”),¹ and includes an alleged invention.

In Scotland “injunction” means “interdict.”

DESIGNS.

Registration of Designs.

Application
for registration of
designs.

47. (1.) The comptroller may, on application¹ by or on behalf of any person claiming to be the proprietor of any new or original design not previously published in the United Kingdom,² register the design under this part of this Act.

(2.) The application must be made in the form set forth in the first schedule to this Act, or in such other form as may be from time to time prescribed, and must be left at, or sent by post to the Patent Office in the prescribed manner.

(3.) The application must contain a statement of the nature of the design, and the class or classes of goods in which the applicant desires that the design be registered.

inconvenient, the said 14 years to be accounted from the date of the first letters patents or grant of such privilege hereafter to be made, but that the same shall be of force as they should be if this Act had never been made, and of none other.”

¹ The application must be signed by the applicant or by some person on his behalf; in the case of a registered Company it is usual for the Managing Director or Secretary to sign.

² See ss. 103 & 104 as to arrangements with the Colonies or foreign countries.

(4.) The same design may be registered in more than one class.

(5.) In case of doubt as to the class in which a design ought to be registered, the comptroller may decide the question.

(6.) The comptroller may, if he thinks fit, refuse to register any design presented to him for registration, but any person aggrieved by any such refusal may appeal therefrom to the Board of Trade.

(7.) The Board of Trade shall, if required, hear the applicant and the comptroller, and may make an order determining whether, and subject to what conditions, if any, registration is to be permitted.

48. (1.) On application for registration of a design the applicant shall furnish to the comptroller the prescribed number of copies of drawings, photographs or tracings of the design sufficient, in the opinion of the comptroller, for enabling him to identify the design; or the applicant may, instead of such copies, furnish exact representations or specimens of the design.¹

Drawings, &c.,
to be furnished
on application.

(2.) The comptroller may, if he thinks fit, refuse any drawing, photograph, tracing, representation or specimen which is not, in his opinion, suitable for the official records.

¹ It would be advisable to lodge exact representations of the design. See s. 50, sub-s. 2.

Part III.
Designs.
Certificate of
registration.

49. (1.) The comptroller shall grant a certificate of registration to the proprietor of the design when registered.

(2.) The comptroller may, in case of loss of the original certificate, or in any other case in which he deems it expedient, grant a copy or copies of the certificate.

Copyright in registered Designs.

Copyright on
registration.

50. (1.) When a design is registered, the registered proprietor of the design shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, have copyright in the design during five years from the date of registration.

(2.) Before delivery on sale of any articles to which a registered design has been applied, the proprietor must (if exact representations or specimens were not furnished on the application for registration), furnish to the comptroller the prescribed number of exact representations or specimens of the design; and if he fails to do so, the comptroller may erase his name from the register, and thereupon his copyright in the design shall cease.

Marking
designs.

51. Before delivery on sale of any articles to which a registered design has been applied, the proprietor of the design shall cause each such article to be marked with the prescribed mark, or with the prescribed word or words, or figures, denoting that the design is registered;

and if he fails to do so the copyright in the design shall cease, unless the proprietor shows that he took all proper steps to ensure the marking of the article.

Part III.
Designs.

52. (1.) During the existence of copyright in a design, the design shall not¹ be open to inspection except by the proprietor, or a person authorised in writing by the proprietor, or a person authorised by the comptroller or by the Court, and furnishing such information as may enable the comptroller to identify the design, nor except in the presence of the comptroller, or of an officer acting under him, nor except on payment of the prescribed fee; and the person making the inspection shall not be entitled to take any copy of the design, or of any part thereof.

Inspection of registered designs.

(2.) When the copyright in a design has ceased, the design shall be open to inspection, and copies thereof may be taken by any person on payment of the prescribed fee.

53. On the request of any person producing a particular design, together with its mark of registration, or producing only its mark of registration, or furnishing such information as may enable the comptroller to Cesser of copyright in certain

designs.

55. (1.) There shall be kept at the Patent Office a book called the Register of Designs, wherein shall be entered the names and addresses of proprietors of registered designs, notifications of assignments and of transmissions of registered designs, and such other matters as may from time to time be prescribed.

(2.) The register of designs shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorised to be entered therein.²

¹ See also ss. 103 & 104 as to the registration of foreign designs in England.

² The comptroller's certificate of any entry will be accepted as prima facie evidence. (See s. 96.)

Fees.

Part III.
Designs.

Fees on
registration,
&c.

56. There shall be paid in respect of applications and registration, and other matters under this part of this Act, such fees as may be from time to time, with the sanction of the Treasury, prescribed by the Board of Trade; and such fees shall be levied and paid to the account of Her Majesty's Exchequer in such manner as the Treasury shall from time to time direct.

Industrial and International Exhibitions.

57. The exhibition at an industrial or international exhibition, certified as such by the Board of Trade, or the exhibition elsewhere during the period of the holding of the exhibition, without the privity or consent of the proprietor, of a design, or of any article to which a design is applied, or the publication during the holding of any such exhibition, of a description of a design, shall not prevent the design from being registered, or invalidate the registration thereof, provided that both the following conditions are complied with; namely:—

Exhibition at industrial or international exhibition not to prevent or invalidate registration.

- (a.) The exhibitor must, before exhibiting the design or article or publishing a description of the design, give the comptroller the prescribed notice of his intention to do so; and (b.) The application for registration must be made before or within six months from the date of the opening of the exhibition.

Legal Proceedings.

Penalty on piracy of registered design.

58. During the existence of copyright in any design—

- (a.) It shall not be lawful for any person without the licence or written consent of the registered proprietor to apply such design, or any fraudulent or obvious imitation thereof, in the class or classes of goods in which such design is registered, for purposes of sale, to any article of manufacture, or to any substance, artificial or natural, or partly artificial and partly natural; and
- (b.) It shall not be lawful for any person to publish or expose for sale any article of manufacture or any substance to which such design, or any fraudulent or obvious imitation thereof, shall have been so applied, knowing that the same has been so applied without the consent of the registered proprietor.

Any person who acts in contravention of this section shall be liable for every offence to forfeit a sum not exceeding fifty pounds to the registered proprietor of the design, who may recover such sum as a simple contract debt by action in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

59. Notwithstanding the remedy given by this Act for the recovery of such penalty as aforesaid, the registered proprietor of any design may (if he elects to do so) bring an action for the recovery of any damages arising from the application of any such design, or of any fraudulent or obvious imitation thereof for the purpose of sale, to any article of manufacture or substance, or from the publication, sale, or exposure for sale by any person of any article or substance to which such design, or any fraudulent or obvious imitation thereof, shall have been so applied, such person knowing that the proprietor had not given his consent to such application.

“Copyright” means the exclusive right to apply a design to any article of manufacture, or to any such substance as aforesaid, in the class or classes in which the design is registered.

(5.) The Board of Trade may, however, if it appears expedient, refer the appeal to the Court; and in that event the Court shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the appeal, and may make such order as aforesaid.

Limit of time for proceeding with application.

63. Where registration of a trade mark has not been or shall not be completed within twelve months from the date of the application, by reason of default on the part of the applicant, the application shall be deemed to be abandoned.

Conditions of registration of trade mark.

64. (1.) For the purposes of this Act, a trade mark must consist of or contain at least one of the following essential particulars:

- (a.) A name of an individual or firm printed, impressed, or woven in some particular and distinctive manner; or
- (b.) A written signature, or copy of a written signature, of the individual or firm applying for registration thereof as a trade mark; or
- (c.) A distinctive device, mark, brand, heading, label, ticket, or fancy word or words not in common use.

(2.) There may be added to any one or more of these particulars any letters, words or figures, or combinations of letters, words or figures, or of any of them.

Part IV.
Trade

(3.) Provided that any special and distinctive word or words, letter, figure or combination of letters or figures, or of letters and figures, used as a trade mark before the thirteenth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, may be registered as a trade mark under this part of this Act.

65. A trade mark must be registered for particular goods or classes of goods.

Connection of trade mark
with goods.

66. When a person claiming to be the proprietor of several trade marks which, while resembling each other in the material particulars thereof, yet differ in respect of (a) the statement of the goods for which they are respectively used or proposed to be used, or (b) statements of numbers, or (c) statements of price, or (d) statements of quality, or (e) statements of names of places, seeks to register such trade marks, they may be registered as a series in one registration. A series of trade marks shall be assignable and transmissible only as a whole, but for all other purposes each of the trade marks composing a series shall be deemed and treated as registered separately.

Part IV.
Trade
Marks.

Trade marks
may be registered in any colour.

67. A trade mark may be registered in any colour, and such registration shall (subject to the provisions of this Act) confer on the registered owner the exclusive right to use the same in that or any other colour.

Advertisement

68. Every application for registration of a trade mark under this part of this Act shall, as soon as may be after its receipt, be advertised by the comptroller.

Opposition to
registration.

69. (1.) Any person may within two months of the first advertisement of the application, give notice in duplicate at the Patent Office, of opposition to registration of the trade mark, and the comptroller shall send one copy of such notice to the applicant.

(2.) Within two months after receipt of such notice, or such further time as the comptroller may allow, the applicant may send to the comptroller a counter statement in duplicate of the grounds on which he relies for his application, and if he does not do so, shall be deemed to have abandoned his application.

(3.) If the applicant sends such counter statement, the comptroller shall furnish a copy thereof to the person who gave notice of opposition, and shall require him to give security in such manner and to such amount as the comptroller may require for such costs as may be awarded in respect of such opposition; and if such security is not given within 14 days after such requirement was made or such further time as the comptroller may allow, the opposition shall be deemed to be withdrawn.

Part IV.
Trade
Marks.

(4.) If the person who gave notice of opposition duly gives such security as aforesaid, the comptroller shall inform the applicant thereof in writing, and thereupon the case shall be deemed to stand for the determination of the Court.

70. A trade mark, when registered, shall be assigned and transmitted only in connection with the good-will of the business concerned in the particular goods or classes of goods for which it has been registered, and shall be determinable with that good-will.¹

Assignment

(2.) The comptroller shall not register with respect to the same goods or description of goods a trade mark so nearly resembling a trade mark already on the register with respect to such goods or description of goods as to be calculated to deceive.

Further restriction on registration.

73. It shall not be lawful to register as part of or in combination with a trade mark any words the exclusive use of which would by reason of their being calculated to deceive or otherwise, be deemed disentitled to protection in a Court of justice, or any scandalous design.

WATERLOW BROS. & LAYTON'S

IMPROVED

"AUTOGRAPHIQUE" PRINTER.

The process will be found invaluable for the purpose of producing

CIRCULARS, LETTERS, PRICE LISTS, REPORTS, PLANS, INVITATIONS, MUSIC, &c.,

WHERE LARGE NUMBERS ARE NOT REQUIRED.

This apparatus consists of a composition forming a Bed within a case. It is prepared to receive an impression of writing or drawing from ordinary paper, in a manner similar to the transfer of lithographic writing on the face of a stone.

The mode of using it is very simple. Whatever is required to be reproduced should be written with the prepared ink, on any description of paper, and when dry laid on the Bed face downwards, lightly passing the hand or fingers over it so that all the parts are evenly impressed. After remaining on the composition for a few seconds, the paper should be removed, and an impression of the written matter will then be found to have become impressed on the composition.

The required number of copies may then be obtained by placing a clean sheet of paper on the Bed, and slightly smoothing it to insure the paper being impressed over the written matter—the copy is then complete.

When the Bed becomes worn from many printings, the case can be refilled with composition at a small cost, or in the event of damage to the Bed, the composition can be placed before a fire and partly melted.
