INTRODUCTION.

THE history of the Acts for regulating the registration of trade marks is the history of a continued struggle on the part of the mercantile community to bring about a state of the law suited to their practical requirements, of repeated attempts on the part of the Legislature to comply with those requirements, and of a succession of discoveries of the failure of the language employed, when submitted to judicial decision, to carry out the objects arrived at.

The most familiar example of this is in connection with the provisions relating to the registration of words as trade marks. When the original Act of 1875 was passed it was thought that the difficulties affecting this subject were insurmountable, and the registration of words was simply dismissed from consideration, except in cases of old user, to which a concession was made by permitting the registration of any "special and distinctive word" used as a trade mark before the passing of the Act. This did not meet the needs of commerce, so in the Act of 1883 provision was made for the registration of words as new marks; but unfortunately, instead of allowing the registration of a "special and distinctive word" as a trade mark, the phrase "fancy word not in common use," which had previously been in fairly general use with much the same meaning as that attached to the phrase "special and distinctive word," was introduced, and before long it was discovered that the true signification of the term employed was so restricted that practically every word which came into question was ruled out for one reason or another. Then came Lord Herschell's Committee and the Act of 1888, which introduced two alternatives, the one being "an invented word" and the other "a word having no reference to the character or quality of the goods." Here, again, the Courts at first considered it necessary to examine the words submitted to them with the same rigidity as before; but the decision of the House of Lords in the "Solio" case did much to relax the tension in the case of "invented words," while remote allusions to character or quality continued to exclude large classes of words. Unfortunately, too, the decision in the "Solio" case was accompanied by dicta of a somewhat ambiguous kind, which have been gradually leading to the whole weary round being begun anew. The true question, when the registrability of a word has to be considered, ought to be, as the learned Registrar stated in his evidence before the late Select Committee of the House of Commons: "Is this a word that may or may not be wanted and reasonably wanted for use in trade," i.e., by traders other than the particular trader applying for registration? If yes, registration should be refused, otherwise it should be allowed, and this is the standard to which the definition in the Act of Parliament should be made to conform. Whether the definition in the new Act does so or not will no doubt be decided before long by the Courts; but if it does not there can be little doubt that the present Act will not be the last attempt to deal with the question of trade mark registration.

Another instance which may be given has reference to the necessity felt by traders for the use and registration of a number of marks substantially identical, while differing in minor respects. Such registrations have frequently been permitted, but in other instances the Courts have objected to the registration of a mark very similar to one already standing in the same name, on the ground that the existing registration afforded sufficient protection for both variations, and that to allow what was considered to be in substance a re-registration of the same mark would be to cumber the register unnecessarily. Now that the number of marks brought under the Acts approximates to three hundred thousand, this objection is hardly one of substance, and it makes no allowance for trading requirements or foreign registrations. The point is successfully dealt with by the new Act.

A number of these defects in the former Acts were brought to light from time to time, and for some years past attempts have been made by representatives of commerce to obtain desired improvements. At last, in 1905, a Bill was introduced into the House of Commons by Mr. J. Fletcher Moulton, K.C., M.P. (now Lord Justice Moulton), which was the outcome of a combination of two drafts, one prepared by Mr. Moulton and the other by the London Chamber of Commerce. The Bill was sent to a Select Committee, composed of Mr. Cripps, K.C. (Chairman), Mr. Moulton, K.C., Mr. Butcher, K.C., Mr. Eve, K.C., Sir F. Fison, Sir W. Palmer, Sir C. Renshaw, Mr. Blake and Mr. Tillett. The Committee sat on fifteen days, and heard fifteen witnesses—Mr. Moulton (the introducer of the Bill), Mr. C. N. Dalton, C.B. (Comptroller), Mr. R. Griffin (Registrar), Sir F. Hopwood, K.C.B., C.M.G. (Board of Trade), Messrs. J. E. Evans-Jackson, T. McKenna and E. J. Trustram (London Chamber of Commerce), Messrs. C. Bailey, F. Ashworth and M. J. Riley (Manchester Chamber of Commerce), Mr. T. R. Ferens (Hull Chamber of Commerce), Mr. A. Ashworth (Bury Chamber of Commerce), Mr. W. H. Coats (J. & P. Coats, Ltd.), Mr. J. McMurray (United Turkey Red Co., Ltd.), and Mr. S. K. Holman (Royal Warrant Holders' Association, Ltd.). The Bill settled by the Committee received some amendments in the House of Lords, but was passed through both Houses with unexampled rapidity, and became law on the 11th August, 1905. It forms a separate and distinct code of the law regulating the registration of trade marks, the only exception consisting of the provision for international and colonial arrangements, which continues to form a part of the Patents Acts.

It has not been thought necessary, in this treatise on the new Act of Parliament, to encumber the work with many authorities, or to deal with all the points affecting the law of trade marks. For these reference may be made to the author's Law of Trade Marks (4th ed. 1899), where the cross-references in the present work between the new Act and the old will facilitate inquiry.

THE LAW

TRADE MARK REGISTRATION.

THE law of trade mark registration is not equivalent to the law of Registration of trade marks. trade marks. That which is used as a trade mark is still a trade mark, registered or unregistered. But unless that which is used as a trade mark is registered as a trade mark it cannot be protected as a trade mark, except in one case only, which will be explained presently. The difference is, that a trade mark which is entitled to protection as a trade mark cannot be imitated without infringement, whereas a trade mark which is not entitled to protection as a trade mark can only be protected in a passing-off action, in which the plaintiff has to prove, not merely that the mark has been copied, but that the mark in fact identifies his goods. Further than this, he must satisfy the Court that the defendant's conduct is calculated to deceive. It is no doubt true that even in an action for infringement of a trade mark this must be made out; but if the identical trade mark has been taken, and not merely a mark having a resemblance to it, infringement requires no further proof (a). Sect. 45 of the present Act expressly lays down that the passing-off action is unaffected by the provisions as to registration; but this has been already recognized by the Courts, e.g., in the "Stone Ales" case (b), in which the words were removed from the register but protected by injunction simultaneously, and the "Yorkshire Relish" case, in which the words were similarly expunged (c), but were nevertheless protected

(a) See Edwards v. Dennis, 30 Ch. D. 454.

(b) Thompson v. Montgomery, 41 Ch. D. 35; (1891) A. C. 217.

(c) Re Powell, (1893) 2 Ch. 388; (1894) A. C. 8.

in a passing-off action (d). Now for a trade mark to be protected as a trade mark it must be registered (sect. 42), with the one exception, that if the mark was in use before the 13th August, 1875 (the date of the first Trade Marks Registration Act), the proprietor can place himself in a position to have it protected as a trade mark if he applies for registration under the present Act and, failing to obtain registration, obtains a certificate of refusal. (Sect. 42.) It must be noticed that for this purpose it is not sufficient to have applied unsuccessfully for registration under one of the repealed Acts. The latitude provided by the present Act is greater than previously prevailed, and it is made an express condition of protection that an application shall have been made under the more generous conditions. Trade marks may therefore be summed up under three heads: (a) registrable trade marks, which must be registered if they are to be protected as trade marks; (b) non-registrable trade marks used before the 13th August, 1875, which can be protected as trade marks if tendered for registration and refused; (c) non-registrable trade marks not used before the 13th August, 1875, which can only be protected in a passing-off action, this mode of protection being also open to marks falling within classes (a) or (b), but which have not been registered or tendered for registration.

What can be registered.

The advantage of being able to rely on registration, without the necessity of having to prove a case of common law fraud, is so obvious that all marks should be tendered for registration and, if possible, registered. Moreover, it is plainly of the first importance that any trader who is desirous of adopting a trade mark for his goods should adopt one which is capable of registration, and that he should put this to the test by applying for and obtaining registration before he risks his capital in building up a business in reliance on his right to protection for the mark on which it is to depend. For this purpose the first section of the Act which has to be considered is sect. 3, which contains the definitions of the expressions "mark," "trade mark," "registrable trade mark," and "registered trade mark." These definitions are as follows:—

"A 'mark' shall include a device, brand, heading, label, ticket, name, signature, word, letter, numeral, or any combination thereof."

(d) Powell v. Birmingham Vinegar Brewery Co., Ltd., (1896) 2 Ch. 54; (1897) A. C. 710.

“A ‘trade mark’ shall mean a mark used or proposed to be used upon or in connection with goods, for the purpose of indicating that they are the goods of the proprietor of such trade mark by virtue of manufacture, selection, certification, dealing with, or offering for sale.”

“A ‘registered trade mark’ shall mean a trade mark which is actually upon the register.”

The effect of this is that for the purposes of the Act a “mark” may be any of the various matters specified, and that to constitute such a mark a “trade mark” it must be used or intended to be used in trade in one or more of the modes specified, which include not merely marks indicative of manufacture, but also marks indicative of trading, wholesale or retail, and, further, marks indicative of certification, as provided by sect. 62. The definitions of “registrable” and “registered” trade marks call for no comment.

The next point is as to the conditions which entitle a mark to be regarded as a “registrable trade mark.” These conditions are laid down by sect. 9, by which such a mark “must contain or consist of at least one of the following essential particulars:—

“ (1.) The name of a company, individual, or firm represented in a special or particular manner ;

“ (2.) The signature of the applicant for registration or some predecessor in his business ;

“ (3.) An invented word or invented words.” As to this reference should be made to the “Solio” case (e) and the “Tachytype” case (f).

“ (4.) A word or words having no direct reference to the character or quality of the goods, and not being according to its ordinary signification a geographical name or a surname ;

“ (5.) Any other distinctive mark, but a name, signature, or word or words, other than such as fall within the descriptions in the above paragraphs (1), (2), (3) and (4), shall not, except by order of the Board of Trade or the Court, be deemed a distinctive mark ;

“ Provided always that any special or distinctive word or words, letter, numeral, or combination of letters or numerals, used as a trade mark by the applicant or his predecessors in business before the thirteenth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, which has continued to be used (either in its original form or with additions or alterations not substantially affecting the identity of the same) down to the date of the application for registration, shall be registrable as a trade mark under this Act.

(e) Re Eastman Photographic Materials Co., Ltd., (1898) A. C. 571.

“For the purposes of this section ‘distinctive’ shall mean adapted to distinguish the goods of the proprietor of the trade mark from those of other persons.

“In determining whether a trade mark is so adapted, the tribunal may, in the case of a trade mark in actual use, take into consideration the extent to which such user has rendered such trade mark in fact distinctive for the goods with respect to which it is registered or proposed to be registered.”

The effect of this section is that a mark which falls within any of the first four sub-sections, or any other distinctive mark, not being a name, signature, or word or words, can be registered without more, as can an old mark which falls within the proviso which follows sub-sect. (5), but other marks consisting of a name, signature, or word or words, can only be registered by utilizing the special provisions of sub-sect. (5).

Names and words.

The first sub-section is not of much importance, as it only protects a particular manner of representation of a particular name, and not the name itself; and the same remark applies to sub-sect. (2). Sub-sects. (3) and (4) applying to words, and sub-sect. (5) so far as it relates to devices, labels, tickets and the like, are of greatly more consequence. But the really new provision, round which controversy is likely to centre, is that contained in the latter part of sub-sect. (5), by which a name, signature, or word or words, which do not fall within any of the earlier sub-sections, can still be registered if an order can be obtained from the Board of Trade or the Court. The applicant has the advantage of being able to select which tribunal he prefers (though if he selects the Board of Trade there is always the possibility that the case may be referred to the Court under sect. 59), but if he selects the Board of Trade, and they hear the case, their decision will be final; whereas if he selects the Court, and the decision is unfavourable, he will be able to appeal up to the House of Lords, if he thinks fit so to do. He will further have the very great advantage, whichever tribunal he selects, of being able to produce evidence of the extent to which actual user has rendered his mark in fact distinctive for the particular goods. In this respect the new Act is greatly to be preferred to those which went before it, which, except in case of marks used before the 13th August, 1875, paid no attention whatever to actual user or its result. As matters have hitherto stood, words which did not fall within a strict construction of the words of the Acts, even though they were absolutely distinctive of the products of particular traders, could not obtain registration unless they had been used alone as trade marks on the goods before the 13th August, 1875 (e.g., "Stone Ales," "Yorkshire Relish"). Now such words can be registered by leave of the Board of Trade or the Court.

It should here be noted that the provisions which apply to trade marks generally are somewhat modified in the case of cotton marks, which will henceforth be governed by sect. 64, by sub-sect. (10) of which section no words, standing alone, are to be registered for cotton piece goods or cotton yarn; no line heading, standing alone, is to be registered for cotton piece goods; and no registration of a cotton mark is to give any exclusive right to the use of any word, letter, numeral, line heading, or any combination thereof. Cotton marks.

Reverting to trade marks generally, sect. 10 enables trade marks to be limited in whole or in part to one or more specified colours. This has been desired by traders, but except in rare cases not much use is likely to be made of it, seeing that it does not apply to word-marks, and that ordinary devices would be of little value if the same devices could be adopted by other traders if coloured differently. Colour.

Certain restrictions upon registration are imposed by sect. 11, which prohibits the registration as a trade mark, or part of a trade mark, of matter which is open to objection for the reasons therein stated, and Rules 11—16 authorize the registrar to refuse registration for various further reasons. (See p. 54, post.) In certain cases there defined the registrar may require consents to be furnished. Further objections arise where marks tendered for registration contain matter which invades the rights of other traders, but it will be more convenient to deal with this topic later on. Restrictions on registration.

Under the new Act, as under all that have preceded it, a trade mark must be registered in respect of particular goods or classes of goods (sect. 8), but there is nothing to prevent the registration of Classification of goods.

the same mark for a variety of goods, or classes of goods, in which the applicant is trading or intending to trade. For the purpose of registration, goods are classified in fifty classes (Rule 5). The third schedule to the Rules sets out these classes, and the Guide to the classification (p. 106, post) serves as an index to them. Rule 16 contains special provision for cases in which the name or a description of any goods appears on a trade mark, in which cases the registrar may refuse to register the mark for any other goods unless the application states that the name or description varies.

Application
tion.

When a person claiming to be the proprietor of a trade mark is desirous of obtaining registration, he must make an application under sect. 12 (1). Such applications (except in the case of Sheffield marks and cotton marks, under sects. 63 and 64) have to be made to the registrar at the Trade Marks Office, and the manner of application is laid down by Rules 17—28.

Procedure on application.

The procedure on receipt of the application is laid down by Rules 29—34. The registrar may refuse the application, or may accept it absolutely, or subject to conditions, amendments, or modifications. (Sect. 12 (2).) Such conditions may include the entry of disclaimers (sect. 15, Rule 34), but such disclaimers are now expressly limited, so as not to affect any rights of the proprietor of the mark except such as arise from the registration. (Sect. 15.) If the applicant desires to appeal against such refusal, or against the imposition of such conditions, amendments, or modifications, he may require the registrar to state in writing the grounds of his decision and the materials used by him. (Sect. 12 (3), Rule 33.) He may appeal either to the Board of Trade or to the Court at his option (sect. 12 (3)), but if he appeals to the Board of Trade the appeal may be referred to the Court. (Sect. 59.) If the Board of Trade hears the appeal, the decision will be final (sect. 59), but if the appeal is heard by the Court the usual opportunities for further appeals will be available. The appellate tribunal has the same power as the registrar to impose conditions, amendments, or modifications (sect. 12 (4)), and the appeal is to be heard on the materials stated by the registrar. (Sect. 12 (5).) If special leave is given to take further grounds of objection the applicant may withdraw his application without payment of costs. (Sect. 12 (5), Rule 128.) Sect. 12 (6) provides for the correction of errors in applications or amendments thereof at any time. Appeals to the Court are brought by way of motion. (Rule 121.) Appeals to the Board of Trade are in the manner provided for by Rules 122—7. All appeals must be brought within one month.

Special provision is made by Rules 35—41 for applications for the registration of a name, signature, or word or words, under sect. 9 (5).

Special provision is also made by Rules 42—46 for applications for the registration of certification marks under sect. 62.

When an application has been accepted the registrar is required to cause it to be advertised, together with all the conditions to which it is subject. (Sect. 13.) Such advertisement is in the Trade Marks Journal, and the manner of advertisement is defined by Rules 47—50. If no representation of the mark is inserted in the Journal, as, e.g., in the case of colour marks or cotton marks, a reference is to be given to the place where a specimen is deposited for exhibition. (Rule 47.)

Advertisement.

So far the only cases which have been dealt with have been cases in which the applicant has simply had to satisfy the registrar or the appellate tribunal that his proposed mark complied with the conditions of the Act. But the rights of third parties also have to be considered, and provision for opposition by such third parties is made by sect. 14 and Rules 51—61. Any person may give notice of opposition within one month from the date of advertisement. (Rule 51.) Such notice is to be in writing, in the prescribed form, and is to state the grounds of opposition. There is no limitation of persons who may oppose, or of grounds of opposition (except in sect. 41). If it is intended to rely on registered marks, the numbers of such marks and the numbers of the Journals containing the advertisements are to be set out. (Sect. 14 (2), Rule 52.) The registrar sends a duplicate of the notice of opposition (furnished by the opponent) to the applicant, who is to send to the registrar within one month a written counter-statement of the grounds on which he relies. (Sect. 14 (3), Rule 53.) The registrar then sends a duplicate of the counter-statement (furnished by the applicant) to the opponent (sect. 14 (4)), who is to put in his evidence in chief by way of statutory declaration within one month. (Rule 54.) The applicant is to put in his evidence in answer by way of statutory declaration within one month (Rule 55), and the opponent then has fourteen days within which to put in his evidence in reply. (Rule 56.) The registrar has power at any time to give leave to file evidence upon terms (Rule 57), and he has, by Rule 99, general power to enlarge any time prescribed by the Rules. (See also Rule 60.) When the evidence is completed a date is fixed for the hearing. (Rule 59.) The hearing then takes place and the decision is given. (Sect. 14 (4).) The decision is subject to appeal to the Court or, with the consent of the parties, to the Board of Trade. (Sect. 14 (5).) The Board of Trade may hear the appeal or may refer it to the Court. (Sect. 59.) If it hears the appeal its decision is final. (Sect. 59.) If the appeal is heard by the Court further appeals are possible. The appellate tribunal has the same power as the registrar to impose conditions on registration. (Sect. 14 (6).) Further material may be introduced on appeal by special leave (sect. 14 (7)), but if further grounds of objection are introduced by special leave of the appellate tribunal the applicant may withdraw his application without payment of costs. (Sect. 14 (8), Rule 128.) In any appeal the appellate tribunal may permit the mark to be modified in any manner not substantially affecting its identity. (Sect. 14 (9).) Power is now given to the registrar or the Board of Trade to make an order for costs. (Sect. 14 (10).) If an opponent or appellant, as the case may be, neither resides nor carries on business in the United Kingdom, the registrar or the appellate tribunal, as the case may be, may require him to give security for costs. (Sect. 14 (11), Rule 61.)

Registration.

When an application for registration has been accepted and has not been opposed, and the time for opposition has expired, or when there has been an opposition which has been decided in favour of the applicant, the registrar is (upon payment of the prescribed fee) to register the mark, and such registration is to date as of the date of the application. (Sect. 16, Rule 64.) But if a mark has been accepted in error, the acceptance may be withdrawn. (Rule 63.) On registration a certificate is to be issued. (Sect. 17, Rule 67.) If the applicant dies before registration, the successor to his business may be substituted for him. (Rule 66.)

Abandonment.

If registration of a trade mark is not completed within twelve months from the date of the application by reason of default on the part of the applicant, notice is to be given to the applicant and his agent, if he has one, and if, after fourteen days or such longer time as the registrar may allow, the registration is still not completed, the application is to be deemed to be abandoned. (Sect. 18, Rules 62, 99.)

The registration of a trade mark which is identical with one already on the register in respect of the same goods, or which so nearly resembles such trade mark as to be calculated to deceive, is prohibited (sect. 19, but see sect. 41), and in such cases the mark ought to be rejected in the office without putting the previously registered proprietor to the trouble and expense of an opposition. It is of course impossible for the registrar to be fully informed as to the details of all trades, so that in many cases marks will be passed for advertisement which ought to have been stopped, but there will then be an opportunity for opposition in the usual way. Where there is any serious doubt as to the two marks conflicting, it is thought that the applicant ought to have the benefit of the doubt, leaving it to the owner of the other mark to oppose if he thinks fit. In any case the Court can direct registration of identical or similar marks if it thinks fit to do so. The new law differs from the old in one important respect, viz., that for a mark to be stopped because of the presence of a similar mark on the register, it is now expressly provided that such stoppage is only to take place when the earlier mark belongs to a different proprietor. Consequently there is now nothing to prevent the same proprietor from registering any number of marks with the same essential particular, and in fact it is often convenient that this should be so. Another point to be noted is that in the case of an old mark, claimed as having been in use before the 13th August, 1875, there is no prohibition of registration on the ground of an identical or similar mark being on the register. Hitherto, similar old marks have been allowed to be registered up to three, after which the mark became common. It remains to be seen whether any such limit will be imposed in future, but it seems unlikely that many marks will be tendered for registration in the future with a claim of user for more than thirty years. The Court has now power (sect. 21) to provide for cases of honest concurrent user, e.g., in different localities, by allowing registration of similar marks by different proprietors, subject to limitations in respect of mode or place of user or otherwise. This power was exercised by the Court in the early years of trade mark registration, without any precise legislative authority, but only in the case of old marks. Now it has become general. The case of each of several persons claiming to be the proprietor of the same mark, or similar marks, is provided for by sect. 20; but such cases can seldom arise, as the claims would have to be made practically simultaneously, otherwise one mark would be on the register and the later applications would in ordinary cases be refused.

Associated
trade marks.

A group of sections which is substantially new consists of sects. 24—27, dealing with what the Act describes as “associated trade marks.” The central idea is that while it is possible for the same proprietor to own a number of different registered marks, unlike one another, round each of which a distinct goodwill may quite possibly have grown up, it is also possible, and even probable, that the same proprietor may own a number of registered marks which, while differing in various respects, may yet contain the same distinctive elements, so that any goodwill which attaches to one of them must necessarily attach, in some degree at all events, to all, so that it would be contrary to the whole spirit of the law of trade marks for such marks to change ownership except as a group. Suppose, for example, that a brewer had a number of different labels each containing the representation of a tiger and the words “Tiger Brand,” but with different accompaniments, and also a number of other labels each containing the representation of a unicorn and the words “Unicorn Brand,” there would be no harm in the “Tiger Brand” labels passing to A. and the “Unicorn Brand” labels to B., but it would never do to allow some of the tiger labels to go to A. and the rest to B. If that were to be so no one would be able to tell whose beer was indicated by the “Tiger Brand.” The sections of the Act now under consideration provide that where marks are applied for which are so similar to one another that if used by different persons for the same goods deception would arise, such marks shall be treated as associated marks, and shall be assignable or transmissible only as a whole. (Sect. 27.) This same principle is applied whether the same person registers one mark first and applies afterwards to register another which is essentially the same (sect. 24), or if he registers a particular trade mark and also a more extended trade mark in which the first is included (sect. 25), or if he registers a series of trade marks which agree in the material particulars, while differing in other matters which do not substantially affect the identity of the mark. (Sect. 26.) This last provision appeared in a slightly different form in the Act of 1883, but in other respects this group of sections is new. Rule 65 gives practical effect to the principle laid down by requiring the registrar to note the number of each associated mark against the registration of each mark associated with it.

The special provisions with regard to Sheffield marks for metal goods which were contained in the earlier Acts are repeated, with slight alterations, in sect. 63 of the new Act, and worked out by Rules 107—112. The general effect of the section and Rules is that for persons carrying on business in metal goods in Hallamshire, or within six miles thereof, the Cutlers' Company of Sheffield is substituted for the Registrar of Trade Marks, and provision is made for an interchange of information with regard to applications in respect of metal goods between the company and the registrar. Sheffield marks.

Somewhat similar provisions with regard to cotton marks are made by sect. 64 of the Act and Rules 113—120. In this case applications with respect to cotton marks are to be made to the Manchester Branch Office, superintended by the Keeper of Cotton Marks, who is to give all necessary information to the registrar. Cotton marks are defined by sect. 64 (1), (2) as trade marks for cotton goods, which have hitherto constituted classes 23, 24 and 25, "except such as may be prescribed." The Rules do not prescribe any exceptions, so that it may be taken that marks for any goods in any of the three classes named are cotton marks. It may be noted that sect. 64 (9) contains a provision to the effect that where a cotton mark tendered for registration has been used, the length of such user shall be stated in the application. No reason has been assigned why this useful stipulation has not been made to apply generally. Cotton marks.

A new and useful provision is made by sect. 62 for the admission to registration, by leave of the Board of Trade, of what are called in the heading to the section "Special Trade Marks," in the side-note to the section "Standardization, &c. Trade Marks," but better in sect. 3, "Certification Trade Marks." Such marks are marks used for the purpose of conveying to those who see it, not that the goods marked therewith are goods made or sold by the owner of the mark, but that the owner of the mark has examined the goods, and has affixed the mark for the purpose of certifying the result of such examination, in respect of the origin, material, mode of manufacture, quality, accuracy, or any other characteristic of the goods. Such marks would be the standard hall marks on plate. In such cases the marks may be registered, though there Certification marks.

may be no goodwill attached to them, but they cannot be assigned or transmitted without the leave of the Board of Trade.

This concludes all that it seems necessary to say with respect to getting trade marks on the register. What remains is to consider what may be done in respect of them while they are there, how they are to be kept there, and how they are to be removed.

Assignment
tion.

The new Act repeats the provision which has appeared in all Acts relating to trade mark registration, that a registered trade mark can be assigned and transmitted only in connection with the goodwill. (Sect. 22.) But express authority is given for the first time for the goodwill for different countries to be split up, and for the right of user in any British possession or protectorate, or foreign country, to be assigned together with the goodwill of the business therein. Assignments and devolutions are to be entered in the register. (Sect. 33, Rules 76—81.) An assignor and assignee may apply jointly, or the assignee may apply alone. (Rules 76, 77.) On a goodwill becoming divided, by dissolution of partnership or otherwise, an apportionment of the registered trade marks may be sanctioned by the registrar, subject to the provisions of the Act as to associated trade marks. (Sect. 23, Rules 87—89.) The registrar's decision is subject to appeal to the Board of Trade (sect. 23), who may, if they think fit, refer it to the Court. (Sect. 59.)

Rights of
proprietor.

The registered proprietor of a trade mark has the exclusive right to the use of the mark for the specified goods. (Sect. 39.) But where the same, or substantially the same, trade mark is registered for the same goods by different persons, neither of them is to have any exclusive rights against the other or others, except so far as their respective rights may have been defined by the Court (sect. 39), and no registration is to interfere with the bonâ fide use by any person of his own name or place of business, or of that of any of his predecessors in business, or of any bonâ fide description of the character or quality of his goods. (Sect. 44.)

registration.

The registration of a trade mark lasts for fourteen years, at the end of which time it comes to an end, unless it is duly renewed for another period of fourteen years. The procedure for obtaining renewal is set out in sects. 28—30 and Rules 68—75. If a registration is not renewed, and the mark is consequently removed from the register, marks similar to it are still not allowed to be registered for a year unless it is made out that the bonâ fide user of the

removed mark had ceased for the two years immediately preceding the removal. (Sect. 31.)

The registrar has power, on application by the registered proprietor, to alter the registration of a trade mark in various respects, i.e., by correcting an error in the name or address of the registered proprietor, by entering any change in the name or address of the registered proprietor (this meets the difficulty raised in Re New Ormonde Cycle Co., Ltd. (g)), by cancelling the registration, by narrowing the goods for which the registration exists, by entering any disclaimer or memorandum which does not extend the registration rights. (Sect. 32, Rules 90—92, 82.) He may also allow the alteration of the mark itself in any respect which does not substantially affect its identity (sect. 34, Rules 93, 94)—a power which has hitherto been reserved for the Court. Any decision under either of these sections is subject to appeal to the Board of Trade, who may refer the appeal to the Court. (Sect. 59.)

Alteration by registrar.

The Court may, under sect. 35, correct the register on the application of any person aggrieved in any of the following respects:—(a) by the non-insertion in or omission from the register of any entry (this does not extend to directing the registration of a mark, which must be obtained by means of the procedure provided for application and, if necessary, appeal) (h); (b) by any entry made in the register without sufficient cause; (c) by any entry wrongly remaining on the register; (d) by any error or defect in any entry in the register. The question who is a “person aggrieved” has been repeatedly considered by the Court, and reference may be made to Re Riciere & Co. (i), Re Apollinaris Co. (k), Re Powell (l), Re Wright, Crossley & Co. (m). The effect of these decisions is that a common informer is not a person aggrieved, but that any one is so who may possibly be injured by the continuance of the mark on the register. One way in which a mark is wrongly registered is where a mark is registered for goods on which there is no present intention of using it, such absence of intention being proved by failure for a substantial time to use it. This case was held to fall within sect. 90 of the old Acts, in Re Batt & Co. (n), Re Suter Hartmann and Rahtjen's Composition Co. (o), and Re Hart (p), and it is now expressly provided for by the introduction into sect. 35 of the words "any entry wrongly remaining on the register," and also by sect. 37, which is specially directed to this case. A new provision is that the registrar himself may apply for rectification in case of fraud in the registration or transmission of a registered trade mark. (Sect. 35 (3).) What is to be considered as "fraud" remains to be decided. An order for rectification is to be served upon the registrar, who is thereupon to rectify the register, and if he thinks the order should be made public, is to publish it in the Trade Marks Journal. (Sect. 35 (4), Rules 129, 130.) Another new provision is that a mark registered under an earlier Act is not to be removed from the register on the ground that it was not registrable under that Act if it would be registrable under the new Act. (Sect. 36.) This overrules one of the points decided in Re Apollinaris Co. (q). Again, it is provided (and in this respect the policy of the new Act is open to very grave question) that the original registration of a trade mark is after the expiration of seven years from the date of such original registration (or seven years from the passing of the new Act, whichever shall last happen), be taken to be valid in all respects unless the original registration was obtained by fraud, or unless the mark is objectionable for special grounds under sect. 11. (Sect. 41.) It will be observed that this provision only applies to the "original registration," so that it would still appear to be possible to obtain rectification on the ground that the entry is wrongly remaining on the register (sect. 35 (1)), as in the case of non-user for five years. (Sect. 37.) There is the further proviso that registration is not to entitle the registered proprietor to interfere with the use of a trade mark which was in use by others before his own registration. (Sect. 41.)

Remaining provisions.

The remaining provisions of the new Act and Rules deal chiefly with matters of practice and procedure, and need not be specially noticed here. It is, however, to be observed that in proceedings before the Court the registrar is no longer to be entitled to an order for his costs, which are to be in the discretion of the Court, though he is not to be liable to have to pay costs. (Sect. 48.)

The sections of the Patents Acts, 1883—1902, relating to international and colonial arrangements (sects. 103, 104) are left standing, so that for those matters reference must still be made to the old Acts. (See p. 188, post.) International arrangements.

The use of the Royal Arms is dealt with by sect. 68 of the new Act, which enables the improper use of such arms to be restrained by injunction. This is in addition to the provisions of sect. 106 of the Patents Acts, which is unrepealed. Royal Arms.

APPENDIX A.

THE TRADE MARKS ACT, 1905, AND THE RULES AND INSTRUCTIONS THEREUNDER.

THE TRADE MARKS ACT, 1905.

5 EDW. VII. c. 15.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Trade Marks.

[11th August, 1905.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

1. This Act may be cited as the Trade Marks Act, 1905. Short title.
2. This Act shall, save as otherwise expressly provided, come into operation on the first day of April one thousand nine hundred and six. Commencement of Act.

PART I.

Definitions.

3. In and for the purposes of this Act (unless the context otherwise requires):— Definitions.

A "mark" shall include a device, brand, heading, label, ticket, name, signature, word, letter, numeral, or any combination thereof (a):

A "trade mark" shall mean a mark used or proposed to be used upon or in connexion with goods for the purpose of indicating that they are the goods of the proprietor of such trade mark by virtue of manufacture, selection, certification, dealing with, or offering for sale (b):

A "registrable trade mark" shall mean a trade mark which is capable of registration under the provisions of this Act:

“The register” shall mean the register of trade marks kept under the provisions of this Act:

A “registered trade mark” shall mean a trade mark which is actually upon the register:

“Prescribed” shall mean, in relation to proceedings before the Court, prescribed by rules of court, and, in other cases, prescribed by this Act or the Rules thereunder:

“The Court” shall mean (subject to the provisions for Scotland, Ireland, and the Isle of Man) His Majesty’s High Court of Justice in England.

(a) This definition is new. It corresponds to some extent with the definition contained in sect. 64 of the previous Acts, and has to be taken in conjunction with sect. 9, by which a name or signature or word which complies with the provisions of sub-sects. 1, 2, 3 or 4, constitutes an essential particular. By sub-sect. 5 of that section any other distinctive mark constitutes an essential particular, thus including such names, signatures and words as do not come within the earlier sub-sections, provided that an order of the Board of Trade or of the Court can be obtained. A letter, numeral (in former Acts called “figure”), or any combination thereof is now introduced for the first time into the class of marks which may be registrable though not used before August 13th, 1875, but it is hardly to be expected that much use will be made of their introduction.

(b) This definition is also new, but, except in one respect, it does not materially differ from previous practice. Ever since the first Trade Marks Act was passed, not only manufacturers’ marks, but also marks used by merchants and dealers for the purpose of indicating that the goods to which the marks are attached have passed through their hands and are guaranteed by them, have been recognized as constituting registrable trade marks, and this is substantially the meaning of the word “selection” as here used—i.e., it means that the goods on which the mark is placed are goods which have been selected by a trader as approved by him for sale in the course of his business. In all the instances above mentioned the goods pass through the hands of the person marking them for the purpose of sale, but “certification” introduces a new principle, which is explained in sect. 62. In this case the mark is not a trade mark in the strict sense—i.e., it is not a mark used for the purpose of indicating that the goods are the manufacture or merchandise of a particular person, but it means that the marked goods have been examined, and are certified by the person whose mark they bear as being of a particular origin, &c., as specified in sect. 62.

Register of Trade Marks.

Register of trade marks.

4. There shall be kept at the Patent Office for the purposes of this Act a book called the Register of Trade Marks, wherein shall be entered all registered trade marks with the names and addresses of their proprietors, notifications of assignments and transmissions, disclaimers, conditions, limitations, and such other matters relating to such trade marks as may from time to time be prescribed. The register shall be kept under the control and management of the Comptroller-General of Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks, who is in this Act referred to as the Registrar.

This section comes from sect. 78 of the Act of 1883.

Trust not to be entered on register.

5. There shall not be entered in the register any notice of any trust expressed, implied, or constructive, nor shall any such notice be receivable by the Registrar.

This section comes from sect. 85 of the Act of 1883.

6. The register of trade marks existing at the date of the commencement of this Act, and all registers of trade marks kept under previous Acts, which are deemed part of the same book as such register, shall be incorporated with and form part of the register (a). Subject to the provisions of sections thirty-six and forty-one of this Act the validity of the original entry of any trade mark upon the registers so incorporated shall be determined in accordance with the statutes in force at the date of such entry, and such trade mark shall retain its original date, but for all other purposes it shall be deemed to be a trade mark registered under this Act (b).

Incorporation of existing register.

(a) This comes from sect. 114 (2) of the Act of 1883.

(b) Except for its being made subject to the provisions of sects. 36 and 41 of this Act, this branch of the section is in accordance with the law which previously existed, by which the validity of a registered trade mark has always had to depend upon its compliance with the provisions of the Act in force at the date of its registration; e.g., a word registered as a trade mark prior to the Act of 1883 was bad unless it could be shown to have been used per se as a trade mark prior to the 13th August, 1875. Similarly, a word registered under the Act of 1883, which was not an old mark, had to be justified as a fancy word; and a word registered under the Act of 1888, which was not an old mark, had to be justified as an invented word, or a word having no reference to the character or quality of the goods. Inasmuch as by sect. 36 a trade mark registered prior to the commencement of this Act is not to be removed from the register on the ground that it was not registrable under the Act under which it was registered, there does not seem to be much value in this part of sect. 6.

7. The register kept under this Act shall at all convenient times be open to the inspection of the public, subject to such regulations as may be prescribed; and certified copies, sealed with the seal of the Patent Office, of any entry in any such register shall be given to any person requiring the same on payment of the prescribed fee.

Inspection of and extract from register.

This comes from sect. 88 of the Act of 1883.

Registrable Trade Marks.

8. A trade mark must be registered in respect of particular goods or classes of goods.

Trade mark must be for particular goods.

This comes from sect. 65 of the Act of 1883. See classification of goods in Third Schedule to Rules.

9. A registrable trade mark (a) must contain or consist of at least one of the following essential particulars:—

Registrable trade marks.

- (1) The name of a company, individual, or firm represented in a special or particular manner;
- (2) The signature of the applicant for registration or some predecessor in his business (b);
- (3) An invented word or invented words (c);
- (4) A word or words having no direct reference to the character or quality of the goods (d), and not being according to its ordinary signification a geographical name or a surname (e);
- (5) Any other distinctive mark (f), but a name, signature, or word or words, other than such as fall within the descriptions in the above paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4), shall not, except by order of the Board of Trade or the Court, be deemed a distinctive mark:

Provided always that any special or distinctive word or words, letter, numeral, or combination of letters or numerals used as a trade mark by the applicant or his predecessors in business before the thirteenth day of August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, which has continued to be used (either in its original form or with additions or alterations not substantially affecting the identity of the same) down to the date of the application for registration shall be registrable as a trade mark under this Act (g).

For the purposes of this section "distinctive" shall mean adapted to distinguish the goods of the proprietor of the trade mark from those of other persons (h).

In determining whether a trade mark is so adapted, the tribunal may, in the case of a trade mark in actual use, take into consideration the extent to which such user has rendered such trade mark in fact distinctive for the goods with respect to which it is registered or proposed to be registered (i).

(a) This section comes, with very important modifications, from sect. 64 of the Act of 1883 and the amended form of the same section contained in sect. 10 of the Act of 1888. It will be necessary to bear in mind that in the case of cotton marks the provisions of this section are varied by sect. 64 (10).

(b) This sub-section for the first time recognizes the signature of a former proprietor of the applicant's business as an essential particular. Hitherto only the signature of the person applying was so recognized.

(c) These words come from sect. 64 of the Act of 1888, and are governed by the decision in the "Solio" case—Re Eastman Photographic Materials Co., Ltd., (1898) A. C. 571. Prior to that decision many words capable of registration under that decision had been rejected on grounds derived from the rules previously laid down with regard to fancy words under the Act of 1883, and since that decision many words have been rejected on grounds based on some dicta of the Lords therein, but which it is thought might fairly have been sanctioned. Until those dicta have been further explained by the House of Lords, it is probable that the same effect will continue to be given to them, but applicants whose marks are rejected on such grounds will in future have the opportunity of endeavouring to satisfy the Board of Trade or the Court, under sub-sect. 5 of this section, that their words are really capable of constituting a distinctive mark, and, if so, registration will be conceded notwithstanding those dicta.

(d) These words come from sect. 64 of the Act of 1888, except that the word "direct" is now introduced for the purpose of rendering registrable words which, though they may contain some indirect allusion to character or quality, are nevertheless capable of being regarded as distinctive.

(e) This provision contains a very liberal modification of the corresponding prohibition in sect. 64 (1) (e) of the Act of 1888. By that sub-section a geographical name was rendered incapable of registration, and difficulties often arose in the case of words which did not suggest to ordinary observers a geographical origin, although in fact they had been used to define particular geographical spots in remote parts of the world. The decision of the Court of Appeal in the "Magnolia" case (In re Magnolia Metal Co., (1897) 2 Ch. 385) in effect interpreted the old prohibition in the sense which now becomes statutory by means of the introduction of the words "according to its ordinary signification." The provision as to a surname is new, and will apply to such instances as "Swan," "Pears," and the like, which have in point of fact constituted the surnames of occasional families, though not suggesting that as their primary meaning. See sect. 44.

(f) This is an important provision, enabling, as it does, any mark falling within the definition in sect. 3 to be registered so long as it is distinctive, subject to the provision requiring an order of the Board of Trade or the Court in the particular cases specified.

(g) This proviso is derived from sect. 64 (3), (ii), of the Act of 1888, which has appeared with various modifications in all the Acts regulating the registration of trade marks. The previous proviso is, however, now considerably varied in its language in several material respects. The expression "special and distinctive" now becomes "special or distinctive," so that either the one or the other condition has to be fulfilled instead of both, as hitherto. The word "numeral" is substituted for "figure," thus expressing in terms the interpretation which has always been placed upon the earlier word. It is now stated (as had previously been understood to be implied), that the user as a trade mark must have been by the applicant or his predecessors in business. Continued user is now made expressly necessary, though this also had previously been regarded as implied. The most important alteration is contained in the provision that the user may have been "either in its original form or with additions or alterations not substantially affecting the identity of the same." It has constantly happened that in the course of years various trifling alterations have been introduced into an old mark which yet remained for all purposes of distinction the same. The proprietor was naturally desirous of registering it in the form in which he was actually using it, but was unable to allege that the mark had been used in that form prior to 1875, and was, on the other hand, unable to allege that the identical mark used before 1875 had been continued to be used down to the date of the application. Now it will be possible for him to bring such a mark within the precise language of the present section.

(b) This is a legislative recognition of the interpretation which had previously been placed upon the word "distinctive" e.g., Wood v. Lambert, 32 Ch. Div. 24; Perrin, Davis & Son v. Hubbard, 15 App. Cas. 316.

(c) This provision is new and useful. In the leading cases on the subject of fancy names under the Act of 1883, the Court of Appeal laid down that evidence as to the practical distinctiveness of words claimed as fancy words was to be excluded, and although since the disappearance of the term "fancy word" from the definition section this rule has not been so rigidly adhered to, it was very desirable that statutory authority should be given to the practice of having regard to the teaching of experience.

See Rules 11-16 for further regulations as to registrable trade marks.

10. A trade mark may be limited in whole or in part to one or more specified colours, and in such case the fact that it is so limited shall be taken into consideration by any tribunal having to decide on the distinctive character of such trade mark (a). If and so far as a trade mark is registered without limitation of colour it shall be deemed to be registered for all colours. Coloured trade marks.

(a) The previous provisions as to registration in colour or colours are to be found in sect. 67 of the Act of 1883, as amended by sect. 11 of the Act of 1888. That section, however, did not contain any provision as to the limitation of a trade mark to any specified colour or colours, and this is now for the first time made possible. The object is to enable a trade mark in distinctive colouring to be registered by virtue of such colouring. An instance of an application for such purpose will be found in the case of In re Hanson (37 Ch. Div. 112), where the mark tendered consisted of a well-known red, white and blue label for coffee, which was refused registration because of the want of a provision enabling distinctiveness to consist in colour. Under the present section such an application might probably succeed, especially if the circumstances allowed advantage to be taken of the authority given by the concluding paragraph of sect. 9 for the admission of evidence as to practical distinctiveness.

11. It shall not be lawful to register as a trade mark or part of a trade mark any matter, the use of which would by reason of its being calculated to deceive (a) or otherwise be disentitled to protection in a Court of justice, or would be contrary to law or morality, or any scandalous design. Restriction on registration.

(a) This comes from sects. 73 and 86 of the Act of 1883. From the decision of the House of Lords in Evo v. Dunn (15 App. Cas. 252), it seems that the words "calculated to deceive" must be taken as extending to cases in which the deception would result from similarity to marks previously in use by a different trader.

Registration of Trade Marks.

Application
for registration.

12.—(1) Any person claiming to be the proprietor of a trade mark who is desirous of registering the same must apply in writing to the registrar in the prescribed manner.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act the registrar may refuse such application, or may accept it absolutely or subject to conditions, amendments, or modifications (a).

(3) In case of any such refusal or conditional acceptance the registrar shall, if required by the applicant, state in writing the grounds of his decision and the materials used by him in arriving at the same (b), and such decision shall be subject to appeal to the Board of Trade or to the Court at the option of the applicant (c).

(4) An appeal under this section shall be made in the prescribed manner, and on such appeal the Board of Trade or the Court, as the case may be, shall, if required, hear the applicant and the registrar, and shall make an order determining whether, and subject to what conditions, amendments, or modifications, if any, the application is to be accepted.

(5) Appeals under this section shall be heard on the materials so stated by the registrar to have been used by him in arriving at his decision, and no further grounds of objection to the acceptance of the application shall be allowed to be taken by the registrar, other than those stated by him, except by leave of the tribunal hearing the appeal. Where any further grounds of objection are taken the applicant shall be entitled to withdraw his application without payment of costs on giving notice as prescribed (d).

(6) The registrar or the Board of Trade or the Court, as the case may be, may at any time, whether before or after acceptance, correct any error in or in connection with the application, or may permit the applicant to amend his application upon such terms as they may think fit (e).

This section comes from sect. 62 of the Act of 1883, as modified by sect. 8 of the Act of 1888.

See Rules 17—41 for regulations as to applications and subsequent procedure.

(a) The only point to which it seems necessary to refer here is that relating to the condition which has frequently been imposed by the authorities at the Patent Office of the obtaining the consent of the proprietor of a previously registered mark. In the case of In re Dewhurst & Sons, Ltd. (1896, 2 Ch. 137), the Court of Appeal refused to accept the consent of the proprietor of such a mark as conclusive; but in case of doubt there seems no reason why such consents should not continue to be accepted, as they have in fact been in the past, as a sufficient justification for allowing registration to proceed.

(b) Up to the present time it has not been the usual practice for anything in the nature of a written judgment to be given in such cases, nor for the materials used to be stated, although this has occasionally been done. The result was that an appellant against a refusal to register had to go to the Board of Trade without any accurate knowledge as to the grounds of the refusal. Now, if he desires to appeal, he will have an opportunity of knowing exactly what he has to meet.

(c) Hitherto an unsuccessful applicant has had to appeal to the Board of Trade by whom the appeal might or might not be referred to the Court. Usually, appeals against refusals to register not resulting from oppositions were heard by the Board of Trade, but occasionally they were referred to the Court against the wish of the appellant, who preferred to abandon his appeal rather than incur the expense of a proceeding in Court. On the other hand, it occasionally happened that the Board themselves decided a case which the appellant would have preferred to be disposed of before the Court. Where the Board heard the case their decision was final. Where it was heard by the Court the decision was open to the usual possibilities of appeal. Now the applicant will have his option. If he desires to go to the Court he can do so; if, on the other hand, he prefers to go to the Board of Trade, and the appeal is heard by the Board, their decision will be final, but they will still be at liberty to refer the appeal to the Court, under sect. 59, if they so think fit. Where the appeal is taken into Court the appellant may or may not be ordered to pay the costs of the registrar, according to the discretion of the Court, but he will not in any event be able to obtain an order for costs against the registrar. (See sect. 48.)

Appeals to the Court are to be by motion (Rule 121). As to appeals to the Board of Trade, see Rules 122—7.

(d) The object of this provision is to enable a mark which is shown to be objectionable, though not on grounds originally taken, to be excluded from the register without exposing the applicant to the risk of having to pay costs incurred in reliance upon the insufficiency of the original objections.

See Rule 128.

(e) This provision disposes satisfactorily of the question which has sometimes been raised as to the date up to which amendments might be introduced into applications, e.g., by the introduction of disclaimers. It is thought that the correct view is that applications have always remained applications, whether accepted or not, up to complete registration, and that throughout this inchoate state amendments were permissible. This has not, however, always been the view taken by the Court, e.g., In re Player, (1901) 1 Ch. 382.

13. When an application for registration of a trade mark has been accepted, whether absolutely or subject to conditions, the registrar shall, as soon as may be after such acceptance, cause the application as accepted to be advertised in the prescribed manner. Such advertisement shall set forth all conditions subject to which the application has been accepted. Advertisement of application

This section comes from sect. 68 of the Act of 1883, as amended by sect. 12 of the Act of 1888. The language is somewhat altered, but the substance remains the same. It has been the practice for a number of years past to set forth any disclaimers in the advertisement in the Trade Marks Journal. This practice is now to be extended to any conditions imposed under the new Act.

See Rules 47—50.

14.—(1) Any person may, within the prescribed time from the date of the advertisement of an application for the registration of a trade mark, give notice to the registrar of opposition to such registration. Opposition to registration.

(2) Such notice shall be given in writing in the prescribed manner, and shall include a statement of the grounds of opposition.

(3) The registrar shall send a copy of such notice to the applicant, and within the prescribed time after the receipt of such notice, the applicant shall send to the registrar, in the prescribed manner, a counter-statement of the grounds on which he relies for his application, and, if he does not do so, he shall be deemed to have abandoned his application.

(4) If the applicant sends such counter-statement, the registrar shall furnish a copy thereof to the persons giving notice of opposition, and shall, after hearing the parties, if so required, and considering the evidence (a), decide whether, and subject to what conditions, registration is to be permitted.

(5) The decision of the registrar shall be subject to appeal to the Court or, with the consent of the parties, to the Board of Trade (b).

(6) An appeal under this section shall be made in the prescribed manner, and on such appeal the Board of Trade or the Court, as the case may be, shall, if required, hear the parties and the registrar, and shall make an order determining whether, and subject to what conditions, if any, registration is to be permitted.

(7) On the hearing of any such appeal any party may either in the manner prescribed or by special leave of the tribunal bring forward further material for the consideration of the tribunal.

(8) In proceedings under this section no further grounds of objection to the registration of a trade mark shall be allowed to be taken by the opponent or the registrar other than those stated by the opponent as herein-above provided except by leave of the tribunal hearing the appeal. Where any further grounds of objection are taken the applicant shall be entitled to withdraw his application without payment of the costs of the opponent on giving notice as prescribed (c).

(9) In any appeal under this section, the tribunal may, after hearing the registrar, permit the trade mark proposed to be registered to be modified in any manner not substantially affecting the identity of such trade mark, but in such case the trade mark as so modified shall be advertised in the prescribed manner before being registered (d).

(10) The registrar, or in the case of an appeal to the Board of Trade the Board of Trade, shall have power in proceedings under this section to award to any party such costs as they may consider reasonable, and to direct how and by what parties they are to be paid (e).

(11) If a party giving notice of opposition or of appeal neither resides nor carries on business in the United Kingdom, the tribunal may require such party to give security for costs of the proceedings before it relative to such opposition or appeal, and in default of such security being duly given may treat the opposition or appeal as abandoned (f).

This section is founded on sect. 69 of the Act of 1883, as altered by sect. 13 of the Act of 1888.

See Rules 51—61.

(a) Hitherto the evidence on an opposed application has taken the form of statutory declarations. In future, the practice will be governed by sect. 49 of the Act, by which evidence will ordinarily be taken in the form of statutory declaration as before; but viva voce evidence may, by consent of the parties, be taken in lieu of, or in addition to, evidence by declaration. Hitherto the statutory declarations used in the Registry Office have not been able to be used before the Court without verification by affidavit (see Re Kingsford & Sons, 15 P. R. 197); but now, by sect. 49, the declarations may be used before the Court in case of appeal in place of affidavits.

(b) Hitherto the appeal from the registrar has been to the Board of Trade, which in opposition cases has almost invariably referred the appeal to the Court. Now the parties may agree for the appeal to be heard by the Board of Trade, whose decision will be final; but the Board may, if it thinks fit, refer the appeal to the Court under sect. 59. But unless the appeal is taken to the Board of Trade by consent it will have to be made to the Court, and whether the appeal is taken to the Court direct, or is referred to the Court by the Board of Trade, there will be the usual opportunities of further appeal.

Appeals to the Court are to be by motion. (Rule 121.) As to appeals to the Board of Trade, see Rules 122—7.

(c) Under Rule 31 (8) of the Rules of 1890, an opponent has been strictly confined to grounds of objection taken by his notice of opposition. Now the ordinary rule will remain the same, but the tribunal hearing an appeal may permit further grounds to be introduced; but if this is done the applicant will be entitled to withdraw his application without paying the opponent's costs. He will probably be required to pay the costs of the registrar, if any, but the Court will have a discretion under sect. 48.

See Rule 128.

(d) The requirement of re-advertisement in case of modification of the trade mark is new as a statutory provision, but the practice thus recognized has been followed in the Registry Office for some years past.

(e) The power of giving costs is new, except in cases taken to the Court, and except that the registrar had power to allow reasonable costs if an application were abandoned after notice of opposition.

(f) This is in substance a re-enactment in the case of opponents or appellants residing and trading outside the United Kingdom of the provisions of sect. 69 of the Act of 1883 as it stood before the alteration introduced by the Act of 1888.

15. If a trade mark contains parts not separately registered by the proprietor as trade marks, or if it contains matter common to the trade or otherwise of a non-distinctive character, the registrar or the Board of Trade or the Court, in deciding whether such trade mark shall be entered or shall remain upon the register, may require, as a condition of its being upon the register, that the proprietor shall disclaim any right to the exclusive use of any part or parts of such trade mark, or of all or any portion of such matter, to the exclusive use of which they hold him not to be entitled, or that he shall make such other disclaimer as they may consider needful for the purpose of defining his rights under such registration (a): Provided always that no disclaimer upon the register shall affect any rights of the proprietor of a trade mark except such as arise out of the registration of the trade mark in respect of which the disclaimer is made (b). Disclaimers.

This section comes from sects. 64 and 74 of the Act of 1883, as altered by sects. 10 and 16 of the Act of 1888, but important alterations are introduced.

(a) Under the former Acts it was made a condition of registration that an applicant should in his application state the essential particulars of his trade mark and disclaim any right to the exclusive use of the added matter. Now there is substituted for this a power given to the tribunal to require a disclaimer if it thinks fit. The disclaimer need not be made at the time of application, but may be subsequently introduced by direction of the tribunal.

(b) This is a very important provision, as it clears away for the future any such difficulty as was raised in the case of Rosenthal v. Reynolds (1892, 2 Ch. 301), and recognizes the view taken by the Scotch Court in Bayer v. Baird (15 P. R. 615). An applicant who is willing to forego any registration rights in respect of matter included in his trade mark may now safely disclaim it without apprehending danger to any common law rights he may possess. The decision in Re Loftus (1894, 1 Ch. 193) may possibly still hold good in cases in which matter disclaimed on one registration appears in another mark tendered for registration.

16. When an application for registration of a trade mark has been accepted and has not been opposed, and the time for notice of opposition has expired, or having been opposed the opposition has been decided in favour of the applicant, the registrar shall, unless the Board of Trade otherwise direct, register the said trade mark, and the trade mark, when registered, shall be registered as of the date of the application for registration, and such date shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be the date of registration. Date of registration.

The latter part of this section comes from sect. 17 of the Act of 1888. The earlier part of the section reproduces the old practice.

See Rules 63—66.

Certificate of registration.

17. On the registration of a trade mark the registrar shall issue to the applicant a certificate in the prescribed form of the registration of such trade mark under the hand of the registrar, and sealed with the seal of the Patent Office.

This section is new. The former practice was to issue a notification of registration when the registration was completed. If the registered proprietor desired a certificate he had to make application for it and pay a special fee.

See Rule 67.

Non-completion of registration.

18. Where registration of a trade mark is not completed within twelve months from the date of the application by reason of default on the part of the applicant, the registrar may, after giving notice of the non-completion to the applicant in writing in the prescribed manner, treat the application as abandoned unless it is completed within the time specified in that behalf in such notice.

This section comes from sect. 63 of the Act of 1883, as amended by the Act of 1888. See Rule 62.

Identical Trade Marks.

Identical marks.

19. Except by order of the Court or in the case of trade marks in use before the thirteenth day of August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five (a), no trade mark shall be registered in respect of any goods or description of goods which is identical with one belonging to a different proprietor (b) which is already on the register with respect to such goods or description of goods, or so nearly resembling such a trade mark as to be calculated to deceive (c).

This comes from sect. 72 of the Act of 1883, as amended by sect. 14 of the Act of 1888.

(a) The exception made in the case of "old marks," i.e., marks used before the date of the first Trade Marks Registration Act, seems to allow the registration of such marks although similar marks are standing on the register in other names, but it would appear that if such marks are common to the trade registration would be refused.

(b) The introduction of the words "belonging to a different proprietor" are intended to do away with the rule laid down in Baker v. Rawson (45 Ch. D. 619) and in Re Player (1901, 1 Ch. 382), to the effect that a mark ought not to be registered if the same proprietor had a mark substantially the same already on the register. The theory was that such a registration was a needless cumbering of the register, but this theory entirely disregarded the fact that the proprietor might have thoroughly good reasons for desiring a fresh registration in a slightly altered form; e.g., if he were in fact using or desiring to use a mark which only differed slightly from his previous mark, and he wished to obtain registration of this in a country in which a British certificate of registration of the identical mark used was required as a condition of registration. In view of the enormous number of trade marks already registered, the presence on the register of a few more on payment of the prescribed fees could not really be objectionable, and now objections based on previous registrations by the same proprietor are excluded.

(c) Where similar, though not identical, trade marks are registered by the same proprietor, the provisions of sects. 24—27 as to associated trade marks appear to be applicable.

Rival claims to identical marks.

20. Where each of several persons claims to be proprietor of the same trade mark, or of nearly identical trade marks in respect of the same goods or description of goods, and to be registered as such proprietor, the registrar may refuse to register any of them until their rights have been determined by the Court, or have been settled by agreement in a manner approved by him or (on appeal) by the Board of Trade (a).

This comes from sect. 71 of the Act of 1883.

(a) The provision with respect to agreements between parties claiming similar marks is new, and the wording of the section is otherwise altered. The old section seems rather to be aimed at trade marks of which the ownership was disputed between different claimants, but the present section appears to contemplate rival applications for competing marks being made practically simultaneously. Very little use was made of the old section, and it seems unlikely that the present one will often be put into force. It will, however, apparently meet such cases as In re Ehrmann (1897, 2 Ch. 495), in which two persons who had dissolved partnership were both refused registration, although each consented to the other's application. The Board of Trade may refer any appeal to the Court under sect. 59.

21. In case of honest concurrent user or of other special circumstances which, in the opinion of the Court, make it proper so to do, the Court may permit the registration of the same trade mark, or of nearly identical trade marks, for the same goods or description of goods by more than one proprietor, subject to such conditions and limitations, if any, as to mode or place of user or otherwise, as it may think it right to impose. Concurrent user.

This is a new section. Sect. 74 of the old Act recognized the registration of similar old marks by three, but not more different proprietors. Now there is no limitation to old marks, and the limitation in respect of number has also disappeared, but it seems probable that a mark will be held to be common to the trade if it has been used by more than three proprietors. On the other hand, the section now contemplates the registration of similar marks, even though new, subject to conditions in respect of the mode or place of user, or otherwise. Such restrictions were not infrequently imposed in the early years of trade mark registration, chiefly for the purpose of avoiding conflicts between persons who had used similar marks in different ways or in different parts of the country or world, but more recently such limitations have not been favoured. Now their practicability is recognized and sanctioned.

Assignment.

22. A trade mark when registered shall be assigned and transmitted only in connection with the goodwill of the business concerned in the goods for which it has been registered and shall be determinable with that goodwill (a). But nothing in this section contained shall be deemed to affect the right of the proprietor of a registered trade mark to assign the right to use the same in any British possession or protectorate or foreign country in connection with any goods for which it is registered together with the goodwill of the business therein in such goods (b). Assignment and transmission of trade marks.

This comes from sect. 70 of the Act of 1883. See Rules 76—81.

(a) The indissoluble character of the connection between the trade mark and goodwill has always been recognized. The provision, however, that the trade mark shall be determinable with the goodwill has not, so far as is known, been put into force in connection with registration. The old rectification section, in fact, did not contain any words directly applicable to the case of a mark which was on the register, but which had ceased to be connected with an existing goodwill. The decision in In re Ball (1898, 2 Ch. 432; 1899, A. C. 428), however, met this difficulty to some extent, and sect. 35 (1) of the present Act expressly provides for rectification at the instance of a person aggrieved by any entry wrongly remaining on the register.

(b) The latter part of this section is in harmony with the provisions of sect. 21, and recognizes the possibility of the same mark belonging to and being used by different persons in different countries, even though they may have been originally in the same ownership.

Apportionment of marks on dissolution of partnership.

23. In any case where from any cause, whether by reason of dissolution of partnership or otherwise, a person ceases to carry on business, and the goodwill of such person does not pass to one successor but is divided, the registrar may (subject to the provisions of this Act as to associated trade marks), on the application of the parties interested, permit an apportionment of the registered trade marks of the person among the persons in fact continuing the business, subject to such conditions and modifications, if any, as he may think necessary in the public interest. Any decision of the registrar under this section shall be subject to appeal to the Board of Trade.

This is a new section. The intention seems to be to do away with any supposed indivisibility of goodwill, and where the marks are sufficiently distinct from one another to allow them to be apportioned and placed in different names. The provision as to associated trade marks (see sects. 24—27) prevents any apportionment which might create confusion arising from the similarity inter se of marks apportioned to different proprietors. The Board of Trade may refer any appeal to the Court under sect. 69.

See Rules 87—89.

Associated Trade Marks.

Associated trade marks.

24. If application be made for the registration of a trade mark so closely resembling a trade mark of the applicant already on the register for the same goods or description of goods as to be calculated to deceive or cause confusion if used by a person other than the applicant, the tribunal hearing the application may require as a condition of registration that such trade marks shall be entered on the register as associated trade marks.

This is a new section. The central idea of this group of sects. 24—27, of which 26 alone appeared in a somewhat more limited form in the earlier Acts, seems to be that trade marks are to be allowed to be placed on the register by the same proprietor which resemble one another in their distinctive characteristics, but which are to be treated as independent marks, except that they may not devolve on different proprietors so as to bring about the existence on the register, in different names, of marks which would conflict with one another in material respects if they were not the property of the same owner. Sect. 24 deals with the case of an application by a person already on the register for a particular trade mark to register a new trade mark bearing such a similarity to the first that it would be disallowed if applied for by a different applicant. Sect. 25 deals with the case in which the proprietor of a registrable trade mark, which contains within itself something which by itself would be a registrable trade mark, desires to obtain protection over the part in addition to the protection which he desires to acquire over the whole. Sect. 26 deals with the case in which a person desires to register several trade marks at the same time, which agree in essentials but differ in non-essentials. Sect. 27 relates to the transmissibility of associated trade marks and the effects of their registration. Sect. 24 is in substance the same as sect. 26, except that the latter section has to do with cases in which several marks are applied for at the same time, and the earlier section with the case in which the applications are made successively. It will be noticed that under sect. 24 the mark previously registered has to be entered on the register as associated with the later mark besides a corresponding entry as to the later mark.

See Rule 65.

25. If the proprietor of a trade mark claims to be entitled to the exclusive use of any portion of such trade mark separately he may apply to register the same as separate trade marks (a). Each such separate trade mark must satisfy all the conditions and shall have all the incidents of an independent trade mark, except that when registered it and the trade mark of which it forms a part shall be deemed to be associated trade marks (b) and shall be entered on the register as such, but the user of the whole trade mark shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to be also a user of such registered trade marks belonging to the same proprietor as it contains (c). Combined trade marks.

This section is new.

(a) The ordinary case would probably be that of the registration of a distinctive label containing within itself some distinctive device or word; in other cases the presumption is that the marks would be registered separately.

(b) The result of associating trade marks as provided by this section may apparently lead to a device becoming inseparable from any one of the labels in which it appears, however numerous they may be; but this seems only reasonable as the device will still be infringed by the use of a similar device notwithstanding that no two of the labels are similar in other respects, seeing that the user of the whole label is by this section to be deemed to be user of the device, and that by sect. 27 the device is, except for the purposes of transmission, to be deemed to have been registered separately.

(c) The provision contained in the last portion of this section is useful as removing any doubt, though it could hardly be asserted with success that a device or word was not being used when it was in fact used as part of a larger mark.

26. When a person claiming to be the proprietor of several trade marks for the same description of goods which, while resembling each other in the material particulars thereof, yet differ in respect of— Series of trade marks.

- (a) Statements of the goods for which they are respectively used or proposed to be used; or
- (b) statements of number, price, quality, or names of places; or
- (c) other matter of a non-distinctive character which does not substantially affect the identity of the trade mark (a); or
- (d) colour (b);

seeks to register such trade marks, they may be registered as a series in one registration. All the trade marks in a series of trade marks so registered shall be deemed to be, and shall be registered as, associated trade marks.

This section is founded upon sect. 66 of the Act of 1883.

(a) This is a provision which did not appear in the earlier section. It would probably meet such cases as where there is some difference in non-distinctive decoration or the like.

(b) This is also new. It cannot apply in cases in which colour is made essential under sect. 10, and in other cases it seems scarcely of much importance in view of the fact that by sect. 10 registration in one colour is to be deemed registration for all colours unless colour is specially claimed.

27. Associated trade marks shall be assignable or transmissible only as a whole and not separately, but they shall for all other purposes be deemed to have been registered as separate trade marks (a). Provided that where under the provisions of this Act user of a registered trade mark is required to be proved for any purpose, the tribunal may if Assignment and user of associated trade marks.

and so far as it shall think right accept user of an associated registered trade mark, or of the trade mark with additions or alterations not substantially affecting its identity, as an equivalent for such user (b).

This section is new.

(a) The provision that a trade mark associated with other trade marks is, except for purposes of transmission, to be deemed to have been registered separately, seems to involve the possibility of obtaining a separate certificate of registration in respect of it.

(b) The material part of a registered trade mark is the essential particular of which it consists or which it contains, and so long as the essential particular is used it is only reasonable to provide that the additions are to be treated as immaterial, and to allow user of the essential particular in combination with certain non-essentials to be equivalent to its user in combination with different non-essentials. It will be observed, however, that this principle is not to be pressed farther than the tribunal dealing with the matter may consider to be reasonable.

Renewal of Registration.

Duration of registration.

28. The registration of a trade mark shall be for a period of fourteen years, but may be renewed from time to time in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

This comes from sect. 79 of the Act of 1883.
See Rules 68—75 with reference to this group of sections.

Renewal of registration.

29. The registrar shall, on application made by the registered proprietor of a trade mark in the prescribed manner and within the prescribed period, renew the registration of such trade mark for a period of fourteen years from the expiration of the original registration or of the last renewal of registration, as the case may be, which date is herein termed "the expiration of the last registration."

This comes from sect. 79 of the Act of 1883.

Procedure on expiry of period of registration.

30. At the prescribed time before the expiration of the last registration of a trade mark, the registrar shall send notice in the prescribed manner to the registered proprietor at his registered address of the date at which the existing registration will expire and the conditions as to payment of fees and otherwise upon which a renewal of such registration may be obtained, and if at the expiration of the time prescribed in that behalf such conditions have not been duly complied with, the registrar may remove such trade mark from the register, subject to such conditions (if any) as to its restoration to the register as may be prescribed.

This comes from sect. 79 of the Act of 1883. It does not at present appear what conditions may be imposed upon renewal other than the payment of a renewal fee. Possibly, however, some requirement may be made for furnishing evidence of user or the like.

Status of unrenewed trade mark.

31. Where a trade mark has been removed from the register for nonpayment of the fee for renewal, such trade mark shall, nevertheless, for the purpose of any application for registration during one year next after the date of such removal, be deemed to be a trade mark which is already registered, unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the registrar that there had been no bona fide trade user of such trade mark during the two years immediately preceding such removal (a).

This comes from sect. 79 of the Act of 1883, as altered by sect. 19 of the Act of 1888.

(a) This varies the provision of the older section, and substitutes proof of non-user for two years for proof that the non-payment of the renewal fee is due to the death or bankruptcy of the registered proprietor, or to his retirement from business, and that no person claiming under him is using the mark.

Correction and Rectification of the Register.

32. The registrar may, on request made in the prescribed manner by the registered proprietor or by some person entitled by law to act in his name,— Correction of register.

- (1) Correct any error in the name or address of the registered proprietor of a trade mark (a); or
- (2) Enter any change in the name or address of the person who is registered as proprietor of a trade mark (b); or
- (3) Cancel the entry of a trade mark on the register (c); or
- (4) Strike out any goods or classes of goods from those for which a trade mark is registered (d); or
- (5) Enter a disclaimer or memorandum relating to a trade mark which does not in any way extend the rights given by the existing registration of such trade mark (e).

Any decision of the registrar under this section shall be subject to appeal to the Board of Trade (f).

This comes from sect. 91 of the Act of 1883; but the first sub-division of that section is provided for by sect. 12 (6) of the present Act, by which errors in or in connection with the application may be corrected.

See Rules 90—92.

(a) This is not confined to clerical errors, as was the case with the old sect. 91 (b).

(b) This is now, and meets such cases as that of In re New Ormonde Cycle Co. (1896, 2 Ch. 520), in which a difficulty was disclosed in meeting the case of a change of name on the part of the proprietor.

See Rule 82 as to alterations of address.

(c) This corresponds with the old sect. 91 (c), except that the power to cancel part of the entry is now omitted. This is, however, sufficiently provided for by the following sub-section.

(d) This provides for the only case in which it is to be anticipated that a cancellation of a part of the entry is likely to be desired. There have been many cases in which marks have been registered for too wide a description of goods, and in which the mark has consequently been exposed to compulsory rectification.

(e) This enables the proprietor of a registered trade mark to put his registration in order by introducing a limitation which ought to have been provided for in the first instance.

(f) The Board of Trade may refer any appeal to the Court under sect. 69, if it thinks fit.

See Rules 122-7.

33. Subject to the provisions of this Act where a person becomes entitled to a registered trade mark by assignment, transmission, or other operation of law, the registrar shall, on request made in the Registration of assignments, &c.

prescribed manner, and on proof of title to his satisfaction, cause the name and address of such person to be entered on the register as proprietor of the trade mark. Any decision of the registrar under this section shall be subject to appeal to the Court or, with the consent of the parties, to the Board of Trade.

This comes from sect. 87 of the Act of 1883; but the provision as to licences is omitted, that being obviously inappropriate to the case of trade marks, the whole object of which is to indicate the goods of a particular firm and of no one else. The provision of the old section as to the enforcement of equities in respect of trade marks is omitted, apparently as being unnecessary. (See sect. 38.) Appeals under this section are placed on the same footing as appeals from decisions under sect. 14 in cases of oppositions to registration.

See Rules 121-7.

Alteration of registered trade mark.

34. The registered proprietor of any trade mark may apply in the prescribed manner to the registrar for leave to add to or alter such trade mark in any manner not substantially affecting the identity of the same, and the registrar may refuse such leave or may grant the same on such terms as he may think fit, but any such refusal or conditional permission shall be subject to appeal to the Board of Trade (a). If leave be granted, the trade mark as altered shall be advertised in the prescribed manner (b).

This section corresponds with sect. 92 of the Act of 1883, except that the application is now to be made to the registrar instead of to the Court as has previously been the rule.

See Rules 93, 94; and as to appeals, Rules 122-7.

(a) The Board of Trade may refer the appeal to the Court under sect. 59, if it thinks fit.

(b) This carries out the previous practice by which it has been usual to re-advertise an altered mark, though express provision was not made for this being done.

Rectification of register.

35. Subject to the provisions of this Act (a)—

- (1) The Court may on the application in the prescribed manner of any person aggrieved by the non-insertion in or omission from the register of any entry (b), or by any entry made in the register without sufficient cause (c), or by any entry wrongly remaining on the register (d), or by any error or defect in any entry in the register (e), make such order for making, expunging, or varying such entry, as it may think fit:
- (2) The Court may in any proceeding under this section decide any question that it may be necessary or expedient to decide in connection with the rectification of the register (f):
- (3) In case of fraud in the registration or transmission of a registered trade mark, the registrar may himself apply to the Court under the provisions of this section (g):
- (4) Any order of the Court rectifying the register shall direct that notice of the rectification shall be served upon the registrar in the prescribed manner who shall upon receipt of such notice rectify the register accordingly (h).

This comes from sect. 90 of the Act of 1883.

(a) These words introduce two very important limitations on the power to rectify, which are imported for the first time into the present Act. These are to be found in sects. 30 and 41, by the first of which sections a mark which was wrongly registered at the time of its registration is not to be expunged if it complies with the conditions qualifying for registration under the present Act; while by the later section a mark is not to be expunged at all after the specified period unless the original registration was obtained by fraud, or unless the mark offends against sect. 11 of this Act. As to "person aggrieved," see ante, p. 13.

(b) The word "non-insertion" now appears for the first time. It would seem that this provision does not entitle an applicant whose application has been refused to proceed under this section instead of appealing in the prescribed manner. (See In re Normal Co., Ltd., 35 Ch. Div. 231.)

(c) These words cover any registration of a trade mark which does not comply with the conditions qualifying for registration.

(d) These words did not occur in the old sect. 90. In In re Batt (1898, 2 Ch. 432; 1899, A. C. 428), it was contended that if a mark had been justifiably placed on the register there was no provision for removing it by reason of non-user, unless, at all events, it was possible to treat the fact of non-user as showing that the registration had been made without any bonâ fide intention of using. The Court of Appeal, however, in that case treated the words of the section then in existence as extending to any registration existing on the register without sufficient cause, irrespective of what might have been the state of things at the date of the actual registration. It will now be possible to deal with such cases without any straining of the words of the Act of Parliament. It provides incidentally for the case of a registered trade mark having determined with the goodwill under sect. 22 (sect. 70 of the Act of 1883), for which formerly no express provision was made.

(e) These words are new. They seem to be intended to lead up rather to the variation or correction of an entry than to its entire removal from the register.

(f) It will be noticed that the power given to the Court by the old Act to direct an issue to be tried for the decision of any question of fact, and to award damages to the party aggrieved, is now omitted. It is believed that this power was never exercised.

(g) Power is now for the first time given to the registrar to apply to the Court for rectification. Such power is, however, limited to the case of fraud. What interpretation is in this connection to be placed on this expression remains to be decided.

(h) See Rules 129, 130.

36. No trade mark which is upon the register at the commencement of this Act, and which under this Act is a registrable trade mark, shall be removed from the register on the ground that it was not registrable under the Acts in force at the date of its registration (a). But nothing in this section contained shall subject any person to any liability in respect of any act or thing done before the commencement of this Act to which he would not have been subject under the Acts then in force (b).

Trade marks registered under previous Acts.

This is a new section.

(a) Up to the present time the validity of a registered trade mark, so far as its composition is concerned, has had to be determined by examining its compliance or non-compliance with the definition contained in the Act under which it was registered. Thus a new mark consisting of a word or words which was registered under the Act of 1883 has had to be proved to consist of a fancy word or words, whereas if registered under the Act of 1888 it has had to be proved to consist of an invented word or words, or of a word or words having no reference to the character or quality of the goods, and not being a geographical name. For the future the question as to the inherent registrability of a mark will have to be determined by an examination of the provisions of the present Act, and of its compliance or non-compliance with them. It has hitherto been thought that if it were sought to justify the registration of a trade mark under an Act different from that under which it was actually registered, the proper manner of dealing with the question was to submit the trade mark afresh to the ordeal of advertisement, and possible opposition, thus placing possible opponents in the position of being able to resist the placing of the mark on the register instead of in the less advantageous position of having to seek to remove it after registration. This being now altered, persons desiring to question the registrability of an actually registered mark will have to show that it falls outside the wider definition provided by the present Act, and will be deprived of the opportunity of resisting registration before such registration has been actually completed.

(b) It will be observed that the exoneration from liability is confined to acts done before the commencement of this Act, so that a person attacked for infringement, who wishes to escape liability for such past acts by establishing the invalidity of the mark relied on, will apparently have to show that the mark was not registrable under the Act under which it was in fact registered, and will further, if he desires to continue the acts complained of, have to show that the mark does not come within the provisions of the present Act, unless, that is, he is able to make out that what he is doing is no infringement at all.

Non-user of trade mark.

37. A registered trade mark may, on the application to the Court of any person aggrieved, be taken off the register in respect of any of the goods for which it is registered, on the ground that it was registered by the proprietor or a predecessor in title without any bona fide intention to use the same in connection with such goods, and there has in fact been no bona fide user of the same in connection therewith, or on the ground that there has been no bona fide user of such trade mark in connection with such goods during the five years immediately preceding the application, unless in either case such non-user is shown to be due to special circumstances in the trade, and not to any intention not to use or to abandon such trade mark in respect of such goods.

This is a new section. Under the old sect. 90 it was held in In re Batt (ante, p. 33) that a trade mark had been registered without sufficient cause if it had been registered without a bona fide intention of user. If such absence of intention to use the mark in connection with any goods was proved, the mark would be removed from the register entirely; whereas, if the registration were only in respect of too wide a description of goods, the registration would be cut down so far as the registration exceeded the intention of user. Absence of a bona fide intention of user would be considered to have been made out if the registration had continued for a substantial period without actual user, but no rule has hitherto been laid down as to the length of registration without user, which would justify an application to rectify. Under the present section non-user for five years immediately preceding the application (except under special circumstances) will now be sufficient to warrant rectification, whether the mark was originally intended to be used or not. On the other hand, if absence of a bona fide intention to use the mark is made out, and this has been followed by non-user, it is apparently not essential to show that such non-user has continued for as long as five years. It is not very easy to say what special circumstances would justify non-user, and it will be difficult to apply the saving clause to the first branch of the section, viz., to cases in which there was no bona fide intention of using, inasmuch as in such cases it cannot be made out that there was any intention to use, and abandonment of the mark can hardly be said to exist where the mark has never been used at all.

Effect of Registration.

Powers of registered
proprietor.

38. Subject to the provisions of this Act—

- (1) The person for the time being entered in the register as proprietor of a trade mark shall, subject to any rights appearing from such register to be vested in any other person, have power to assign the same, and to give effectual receipts for any consideration for such assignment (a):

- (2) Any equities in respect of a trade mark may be enforced in like manner as in respect of any other personal property (b).

This comes from sect. 87 of the Act of 1883 (and see sect. 33, ante).

(a) This provision is subject to the conditions of sect. 22, by which a registered trade mark can only be assigned or transmitted in connection with the goodwill of the business, and to those of sect. 27, by which an associated trade mark can only be assigned or transmitted in conjunction with the other trade marks associated with it.

(b) By sect. 5 notice of any trust is not to be entered on the register or received by the registrar, but if a trust in fact exists, the beneficial owner is given an opportunity of enforcing his rights as against the trustee.

39 Subject to the provisions of section forty-one of this Act (a) and to any limitations and conditions entered upon the register (b), the registration of a person as proprietor of a trade mark shall, if valid, give to such person the exclusive right to the use of such trade mark upon or in connection with the goods in respect of which it is registered: Provided always that where two or more persons are registered proprietors of the same (or substantially the same) trade mark in respect of the same goods no rights of exclusive user of such trade mark shall (except so far as their respective rights shall have been defined by the Court) be acquired by any one of such persons as against any other by the registration thereof, but each of such persons shall otherwise have the same rights as if he were the sole registered proprietor thereof (c). Rights of proprietor of trade mark.

This is a modification of sect. 76 of the Act of 1883.

(a) This appears to refer to the proviso in favour of a person who has used a mark prior to the user of the same or a similar mark which is registered by a different proprietor.

(b) See sect. 12 (2), (4), sect. 14 (4), (6), and sect. 21.

(c) This proviso is new. It gives effect to what has hitherto been understood to be the rule with regard to similar old marks registered by virtue of what was known as the Three Marks Rule, but now for the first time similar new marks are, by sect. 21, allowed to be registered under special circumstances, and subject to special conditions.

40. In all legal proceedings relating to a registered trade mark (including applications under section thirty-five of this Act) the fact that a person is registered as proprietor of such trade mark shall be prima facie evidence of the validity of the original registration of such trade mark and of all subsequent assignments and transmissions of the same. Registration to be prima facie evidence of validity.

This is a new section, though founded in part upon sect. 76 of the Act of 1883. By that section registration was made prima facie evidence of the right of the registered proprietor to the exclusive use of the mark. Now registration is to be prima facie evidence of the validity of the registration, not only in actions brought to restrain infringements, but also in proceedings for rectification. As to rectification, however, very little practical difference seems to exist, inasmuch as the mark would always have been assumed to have been rightly registered until the contrary was made out, and if the contrary is made out under the present Act rectification will follow, subject, of course, to the provisions of sect. 41.

Registration
to be conclusive after seven years.

41. In all legal proceedings relating to a registered trade mark (including applications under section thirty-five of this Act) the original registration of such trade mark shall after the expiration of seven years from the date of such original registration (or seven years from the passing of this Act, whichever shall last happen) be taken to be valid in all respects (a) unless such original registration was obtained by fraud (b), or unless the trade mark offends against the provisions of section eleven of this Act (c):

Provided that nothing in this Act shall entitle the proprietor of a registered trade mark to interfere with or restrain the user by any person of a similar trade mark upon or in connection with goods upon or in connection with which such person has, by himself or his predecessors in business, continuously used such trade mark from a date anterior to the user of the first-mentioned trade mark by the proprietor thereof or his predecessors in business, or to object (on such user being proved) to such person being put upon the register for such similar trade mark in respect of such goods under the provisions of section twenty-one of this Act (d).

This is a new section.

(a) This is a very important alteration of the law. It has hitherto been considered that if a trade mark was registered, which was not entitled to registration, such registration was wrongful as against any person who might be affected by it, and the wrong so inflicted was open to correction at any time at the instance of the person improperly interfered with. In future, if a person has had for seven years a registration which never ought to have been effected at all, he will be entitled to retain it for all time subject to the usual periodical renewals. It is apparently intended that persons affected by a wrongful registration shall for seven years have an opportunity of correcting the registration, but shall after the termination of that period be deprived of their right to do so. As a matter of fact, experience has shown that when a mark is once on the register persons affected by it, but who are not sued in respect of it, either never discover the registration at all or, if they do, do not consider it incumbent on them to provoke litigation for the purpose of rectifying until it is sought to make the registration operative as against them by taking proceedings for infringement. Now that rectification must be effected within seven years, if it is to be effected at all, it may be anticipated that persons who are alive to their own interests will seek to purge the register of improper registrations without waiting to be attacked. All registrations existing at the date of the Act will be open to attack for seven years, after which they will become conclusive. Future registrations will similarly be open to attack for seven years, but such seven years will date from the date of registration.

(b) What effect will be given to this provision remains to be seen. Registrations which are wrongful, only because the mark does not comply with the definition section, will be protected; but what will be regarded as amounting to fraud cannot be defined with any certainty.

(c) This proviso excludes from protection marks which are inherently immoral or offensive, and if the reasoning of the House of Lords, in Eno v. Dunn (15 App. Cas. 252), is applied, as may be expected, it will also exclude from protection marks which, though registered, are calculated to deceive by reason of their similarity to marks previously in use by other firms.

(d) If, as is suggested above, a registration will, even after the lapse of seven years, be open to rectification at the instance of a person who had previously used the mark, there does not seem to be much advantage in this proviso; but if that suggestion should turn out to be ill-founded, the proviso, at all events, protects the earlier user against interference. It would appear that cases might well arise in which protection would be necessary, not only for anterior users, but also for persons who had subsequently used similar marks bonâ fide and without interference. In some of such instances laches might possibly be implied with success, but it must be anticipated that hard cases will sometimes arise under the altered state of the law which will be without remedy, and a greater burden will certainly be cast upon traders for the future of watching the register, and purging it without delay, than has hitherto been the case.

42. No person shall be entitled to institute any proceeding to prevent or to recover damages for the infringement of an unregistered trade mark unless such trade mark was in use before the thirteenth of August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, and has been refused registration under this Act (a). The registrar may, on request, grant a certificate that such registration has been refused. Unregistered trade mark.

This section comes from sect. 77 of the Act of 1883, with material alterations.

(a) In order for an action to be brought for infringement of trade mark, the mark must either be registered, or, if unregistered, it must be shown that such mark is an old mark which was in use before the 13th August, 1875, and has been refused registration under this Act. Hitherto the refusal of an application under any Act to register an old mark has been sufficient to entitle the proprietor to sue for infringement. Now it will apparently be necessary for old marks, which have been already refused, to be tendered afresh for registration, and for a fresh certificate of refusal under the present Act to be obtained. In the case of a mark not used before the 13th August, 1875, registration is made a sine quâ non. It will, however, still be open to the proprietor of an unregistered mark to bring an action for passing off. (See sect. 45.)

43. In an action for the infringement of a trade mark the Court trying the question of infringement shall admit evidence of the usages of the trade in respect to the get-up of the goods for which the trade mark is registered, and of any trade marks or get-up legitimately used in connection with such goods by other persons. Infringement.

This is a new section. Trade evidence was formerly admitted much more freely than has recently been the case, and it may be hoped that a large interpretation will be placed upon the language of the section, as it is manifestly unsatisfactory that judges, who cannot themselves be familiar with all the details of trade, should be debarred from having recourse to the assistance of those who spend their lives in commerce. Reference may be made in this connection to the concluding paragraph of sect. 9, which introduces evidence as to the effects of user of a trade mark.

44. No registration under this Act shall interfere with any bonâ fide use by a person of his own name or place of business or that of any of his predecessors in business, or the use by any person of any bonâ fide description of the character or quality of his goods. User of name, address, or description of goods.

This is a new section, and makes it easy to place a liberal construction upon the provisions of sect. 9 (4). Thus, if it is desired to register a word such as "Swan," although it is occasionally used as a surname, no injustice will be done to any person whose surname it is. Again, if such a word as "Absorbino" is tendered for registration, there will be no reason for refusing to register on the ground that such registration might interfere with the bonâ fide use of the word "Absorbing" to describe the nature of another firm's goods.

45. Nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to affect rights of action against any person for passing off goods as those of another person or the remedies in respect thereof. "Passing-off" action.

This is a new section, and sets at rest any doubt which might have arisen under the provisions of sect. 42, making registration a condition precedent to an infringement action.

Legal Proceedings.

Certificate of validity.

46. In any legal proceeding in which the validity of the registration of a registered trade mark comes into question and is decided in favour of the proprietor of such trade mark, the Court may certify the same, and if it so certifies then in any subsequent legal proceeding in which such validity comes into question the proprietor of the said trade mark on obtaining a final order or judgment in his favour shall have his full costs, charges, and expenses as between solicitor and client, unless in such subsequent proceeding the Court certifies that he ought not to have the same.

This comes from sect. 18 of the Act of 1888, introduced into the Act of 1883 as sect. 77 (a). It will be observed that it is not confined to an action for infringement, but is extended to any legal proceeding in which the validity of a registration comes into question, e.g., a motion to rectify.

Registrar to have notice of proceeding for rectification.

47. In any legal proceeding in which the relief sought includes alteration or rectification of the register, the registrar shall have the right to appear and be heard, and shall appear if so directed by the Court (a). Unless otherwise directed by the Court, the registrar in lieu of appearing and being heard may submit to the Court a statement in writing signed by him, giving particulars of the proceedings before him in relation to the matter in issue or of the grounds of any decision given by him affecting the same or of the practice of the office in like cases, or of such other matters relevant to the issues, and within his knowledge as such registrar, as he shall think fit, and such statement shall be deemed to form part of the evidence in the proceeding (b).

This is a new section.

(a) Under the Trade Marks Rules of 1890 four days' notice of any application to the Court to rectify the register had to be given to the comptroller (Rule 49), and fourteen days' notice had to be given him of any application to the Court for leave to add to or alter a trade mark. (Rule 51.) Applications for the alteration of trade marks are now to be made to the registrar under sect. 34, but a refusal or conditional permission may come before the Court on appeal by way of reference by the Board of Trade.

(b) This provision is a new one. Hitherto the registrar has, when necessary, given his evidence in the ordinary manner. Apparently it will be open to parties desirous of showing that the practice of the registry office, as stated by the registrar, is inaccurate or incomplete, to give evidence impugning his statement; but such cases are not likely to arise frequently.

Costs.

Costs of proceedings before the Court.

48. In all proceedings before the Court under this Act the costs of the registrar shall be in the discretion of the Court, but the registrar shall not be ordered to pay the costs of any other of the parties.

This is a new section. It has been the practice to assume, without any statutory provision to that effect, that the registrar was entitled to his costs, even on an appeal against a decision which was overruled. There were cases to the contrary in the early years of trade mark registration, but those cases have been regarded as no longer effective. Now the registrar will still be free from any liability to pay costs, but the Court will be at liberty to refrain from giving him costs without it being possible to allege that any rule of law or practice is being infringed by its so doing.

Evidence.

49. In any proceeding under this Act before the Board of Trade or the registrar, the evidence shall be given by statutory declaration in the absence of directions to the contrary, but, in any case in which it shall think it right so to do, the tribunal may (with the consent of the parties) take evidence vidi voce in lieu of or in addition to evidence by declaration. Any such statutory declaration may in the case of appeal be used before the Court in lieu of evidence by affidavit, but if so used shall have all the incidents and consequences of evidence by affidavit. Made of giving evidence.

In case any part of the evidence is taken vidi voce the Board of Trade or the registrar shall in respect of requiring the attendance of witnesses and taking evidence on oath be in the same position in all respects as an official referee of the Supreme Court.

This is a new section. Hitherto the practice has been as follows:—In cases in which an application has been objected to by the registrar, evidence in the strict sense has usually been required, either before the registrar or before the Board of Trade on appeal from him. When the Board of Trade has referred such appeals to the Court, e.g., Re Verschure, 22 P. R. 569, the party appealing against the registrar's refusal has brought his evidence before the Court by way of affidavits sworn on his behalf, after delivering his notice of motion, and the matter has been dealt with on such evidence and on any evidence given by the registrar in the same manner in answer thereto. In cases in which the application has been advertised and opposed by some other person or firm, the evidence before the registrar has been given in the form of statutory declarations. The Board of Trade has invariably, or almost so, referred an appeal against the registrar's decision in an opposition case to the Court without itself dealing with it, and before the Court evidence on both sides has been given by way of affidavit. A party desirous of using the declarations filed on his behalf in the Patent Office has been required to verify such declarations by the affidavits of the declarants before such declarations could be used, e.g., In re Kingsford, 15 P. R. 197. In future, evidence may, by consent of the parties, be taken vidi voce, in lieu of or in addition to evidence by declaration. This section does not appear to provide for cross-examination on the declarations before the registrar, or the Board of Trade, in the absence of consent. Now the declarations are made available for use before the Court without verification by affidavit, but evidence so given will be dealt with in the same manner as evidence in the form of affidavits. The exact effect of these new provisions remains to be seen, but the introduction of vidi voce evidence will much increase the cost of proceedings in the Patent Office, and it seems probable that it will only be in cases of some importance that such evidence will be consented to.

See Rules 105, 106 as to declarations.

50. Printed or written copies or extracts of or from the register, purporting to be certified by the registrar and sealed with the seal of the Patent Office, shall be admitted in evidence in all Courts in His Majesty's dominions, and in all proceedings, without further proof or production of the originals. Sealed copies to be evidence.

This comes from sect. 89 of the Act of 1883.

51. A certificate purporting to be under the hand of the registrar as to any entry, matter, or thing which he is authorised by this Act, or rules made thereunder, to make or do, shall be prima facie evidence of Certificate of registrar to be evidence.

the entry having been made, and of the contents thereof, and of the matter or thing having been done or not done.

This comes from sect. 96 of the Act of 1883.
See Rules 102—101.

Certificate of Board of Trade to be evidence.

52.—(1) All documents purporting to be orders made by the Board of Trade and to be sealed with the seal of the Board, or to be signed by a secretary or assistant secretary of the Board, or by any person authorised in that behalf by the President of the Board, shall be received in evidence, and shall be deemed to be such orders without further proof, unless the contrary is shown.

(2) A certificate, signed by the President of the Board of Trade, that any order made or act done is the order or act of the Board, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact so certified.

This comes from sect. 25 of the Act of 1888, also numbered as 102 (a) of the Act of 1883.

PART II.

Powers and Duties of Registrar of Trade Marks.

Exercise of discretionary power by registrar.

53. Where any discretionary or other power is given to the registrar by this Act or rules made thereunder he shall not exercise that power adversely to the applicant for registration or the registered proprietor of the trade mark in question without (if duly required so to do within the prescribed time) giving such applicant or registered proprietor an opportunity of being heard.

This comes from sect. 94 of the Act of 1883.
See Rules 83—86. Also 95—104.

Appeal from registrar.

54. Except where expressly given by the provisions of this Act or rules made thereunder there shall be no appeal from a decision of the registrar otherwise than to the Board of Trade, but the Court in dealing with any question of the rectification of the register (including all applications under the provisions of section thirty-five of this Act), shall have power to review any decision of the registrar relating to the entry in question or the correction sought to be made.

This is a new section. Hitherto all appeals from the registrar have been to the Board of Trade, with power, however, to the Board of Trade in cases of refusal to register (sect. 62 of the Act of 1883), or in cases of opposition (sect. 69 of the Act of 1883, as modified by sect. 13 of the Act of 1888), to refer the appeal to the Court. By the present Act an appellant against a refusal (before advertisement) to register a trade mark may elect to appeal direct to the Court. (Sect. 12 (3).) And an appellant against a decision of the registrar in an opposition case must appeal direct to the Court, unless both parties consent to the appeal being brought to the Board of Trade. (Sect. 11 (5).) Again, by sect. 33 an appeal against a refusal of the registrar to register an assignment has to be taken to the Court, unless the parties consent to the appeal going to the Board of Trade. In certain special cases the registrar cannot act without an order of the Court, e.g., sects. 19, 20, 21. Any appeal to the Board of Trade may be referred by the Board of Trade to the Court under sect. 59. By that section a decision of the Board is to be final, but when the appeal is brought or referred to the Court an unsuccessful party is left at liberty to appeal from the decision of the Court in the usual way.

55. Where by this Act any act has to be done by or to any person in connection with a trade mark or proposed trade mark or any procedure relating thereto, such act may under and in accordance with rules made under this Act or in particular cases by special leave of the Board of Trade be done by or to an agent of such party duly authorised in the prescribed manner. Recognition of agents.

This is a new section.

56. The registrar may, in any case of doubt or difficulty arising in the administration of any of the provisions of this Act, apply to His Majesty's Attorney-General or Solicitor-General for England for directions in the matter. Registrar may take directions of law officers.

This comes from sect. 95 of the Act of 1883. It is understood that the registrar has not unfrequently applied for and obtained the directions of the law officers under that section, though no public announcement has been made of such directions.

57. The Comptroller General of Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks shall in his yearly report on the execution by or under him of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, and Acts amending the same, include a report respecting the execution by or under him of this Act as though it formed a part of or was included in such Acts. Annual reports of comptroller. 16 & 47 Vict. c. 57.

This comes from sect. 102 of the Act of 1883. It serves to continue the inclusion in one report of all matters relating to patents, designs and trade marks, although the provisions as to trade marks are now contained in a separate Act of Parliament.

Powers and Duties of the Board of Trade.

58. All things required or authorised under this Act to be done by to or before the Board of Trade may be done by to or before the President or a secretary or an assistant secretary of the Board or any person authorised in that behalf by the President of the Board. Proceedings before Board of Trade.

This comes from sect. 25 of the Act of 1888, also numbered sect. 102 (n) of the Act of 1883. Power is now given to the President of the Board of Trade to authorise any person to act on behalf of the Board, although such person is neither the President, nor a secretary, nor an assistant secretary of the Board.

59. Where under this Act an appeal is made to the Board of Trade, the Board of Trade may, if they think fit, refer any such appeal to the Court in lieu of hearing and deciding it themselves, but, unless the Board so refer the appeal, it shall be heard and decided by the Board, and the decision of the Board shall be final. Appeals to Board of Trade.

This is new as a separate section. By sects. 62 and 69 of the Act of 1883 the Board of Trade had power to refer an appeal, under either of those sections, to the Court, but now they may refer any appeal. There has hitherto been no express provision that a decision of the Board of Trade on a matter dealt with by them was to be final; but this has been understood to be the rule, and in In re Normal Co., Ltd. (35 Ch. Div. 231), it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction to deal with an application refused by the comptroller, except upon a reference of an appeal to the Court by the Board of Trade.

Power of Board of Trade to make rules.

60.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act the Board of Trade may from time to time make such rules, prescribe such forms, and generally do such things as they think expedient—

- (a) For regulating the practice under this Act:
- (b) For classifying goods for the purposes of registration of trade marks:
- (c) For making or requiring duplicates of trade marks and other documents:
- (d) For securing and regulating the publishing and selling or distributing in such manner as the Board of Trade think fit, of copies of trade marks and other documents:
- (e) Generally, for regulating the business of the office in relation to trade marks and all things by this Act placed under the direction or control of the registrar, or of the Board of Trade.

(2) Rules made under this section shall, whilst in force, be of the same effect as if they were contained in this Act.

(3) Before making any rules under this section the Board of Trade shall publish notice of their intention to make the rules and of the place where copies of the draft rules may be obtained in such manner as the Board consider most expedient, so as to enable persons affected to make representations to the Board before the rules are finally settled (a).

(4) Any rules made in pursuance of this section shall be forthwith advertised twice in the Trade Marks Journal, and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament, if Parliament be in session at the time of making thereof, or, if not, then as soon as practicable after the beginning of the then next session of Parliament.

(5) If either House of Parliament within the next forty days after any rules have been so laid before such House, resolve that such rules or any of them ought to be annulled, the same shall after the date of such resolution be of no effect, without prejudice to the validity of anything done in the meantime under such rules or rule or to the making of any new rules or rule.

This comes from sect. 101 of the Act of 1883. See Rules, post. For forms, see Second Schedule to Rules. For classification of goods, see Third Schedule to Rules. As to documents, see Rules 6—9. As to agents, see Rule 10.

(a) This provision is new, and will probably be found useful, as it will give an opportunity to persons likely to be affected by new rules to lay their views before the Board of Trade before such rules are made. It is understood that the views of bodies representing the mercantile community have sometimes been unofficially elicited before rules have been made, but in future an opportunity will be afforded to any person desiring to make representations on the subject.

Fees.

61. There shall be paid in respect of applications and registration Fees. and other matters under this Act, such fees as may be, with the sanction of the Treasury, proscribed by the Board of Trade.

This comes from sect. 80 of the Act of 1883.
See Rule 3, and First Schedule to Rules.

Special Trade Marks.

62. Where any association or person undertakes the examination of any goods in respect of origin, material, mode of manufacture, quality, accuracy, or other characteristic, and certifies the result of such examination by mark used upon or in connection with such goods, the Board of Trade may, if they shall judge it to be to the public advantage, permit such association or person to register such mark as a trade mark in respect of such goods, whether or not such association or person be a trading association or trader or possessed of a goodwill in connection with such examination and certifying. When so registered such trade mark shall be deemed in all respects to be a registered trade mark, and such association or person to be the proprietor thereof, save that such trade mark shall be transmissible or assignable only by permission of the Board of Trade. Standardiza-
trade marks.

This is a new section, and one likely to prove useful. A mark not used, or intended to be used, by a person in trade for the purposes of such trade is unconnected with any goodwill, and cannot be regarded as a trade mark in the true legal sense, and it has hitherto been difficult to devise a suitable means for protecting marks used for the purpose of indicating that the goods to which they are applied are not the goods of the person applying the mark, but goods certified by him to possess certain characteristics. The registration and transmission of such marks are now rendered possible, but only with the permission of the Board of Trade, and the Board of Trade will have authority to permit or refuse registration according as they consider it to be, or not to be, to the public advantage. When registration has been permitted the registered proprietors will be able to suppress imitations just as if such marks were trade marks in the proper sense.

For regulations as to certification marks, see Rules 42—46.

Sheffield Marks.

63. With respect to the master, wardens, searchers, assistants, and commonalty of the Company of Cutlors in Hallamshire, in the county of York (in this Act called the Cutlers' Company), and the marks or devices (in this Act called Sheffield marks) assigned or registered by the master, wardens, searchers, and assistants of that company, the following provisions shall have effect:— Sheffield marks.

- (1) The Cutlers' Company shall continue to keep at Sheffield the register of trade marks (in this Act called the Sheffield register) kept by them at the date of the commencement of this Act, and, save as otherwise provided by this Act, such register shall for all purposes form part of the register:
- (2) The Cutlers' Company shall, on request made in the proscribed manner, enter in the Sheffield register, in respect of metal goods as defined in this section, all the trade marks which shall have been assigned by the Cutlers' Company and actually used before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four, but which have not been entered in such register before the passing of this Act :

- (3) An application for registration of a trade mark used on metal goods shall, if made after the commencement of this Act by a person carrying on business in Hallamshire, or within six miles thereof, be made to the Cutlers' Company :
- (4) Every application so made to the Cutlers' Company shall be notified to the registrar in the prescribed manner, and, unless the registrar within the prescribed time gives notice to the Cutlers' Company of any objection to the acceptance of the application, it shall be proceeded with by the Cutlers' Company in the prescribed manner :
- (5) If the registrar gives notice of an objection as aforesaid, the application shall not be proceeded with by the Cutlers' Company, but any person aggrieved may in the prescribed manner appeal to the Court :
- (6) Upon the registration of a trade mark in the Sheffield register the Cutlers' Company shall give notice thereof to the registrar, who shall thereupon enter the mark in the register of trade marks ; and such registration shall bear date as of the day of application to the Cutlers' Company, and have the same effect as if the application had been made to the registrar on that day :
- (7) The provisions of this Act, and of any rules made under this Act with respect to the registration of trade marks, and all matters relating thereto, shall, subject to the provisions of this section (and notwithstanding anything in any Act relating to the Cutlers' Company), apply to the registration of trade marks on metal goods by the Cutlers' Company, and to all matters relating thereto ; and this Act and any such rules shall, so far as applicable, be construed accordingly with the substitution of the Cutlers' Company, the office of the Cutlers' Company, and the Sheffield register, for the registrar, the Patent Office, and the Register of Trade Marks respectively ; and notice of every entry, cancellation, or correction made in the Sheffield register shall be given to the registrar by the Cutlers' Company :
- (8) When the registrar receives from any person not carrying on business in Hallamshire or within six miles thereof an application for registration of a trade mark used on metal goods, he shall in the prescribed manner notify the application and proceedings thereon to the Cutlers' Company :
- (9) Any person aggrieved by a decision of the Cutlers' Company in respect of anything done or omitted under this Act may, in the prescribed manner, appeal to the Court (a) :
- (10) For the purposes of this section the expression " metal goods " means all metals, whether wrought, unwrought, or partly wrought, and all goods composed wholly or partly of any metal :

- (11) For the purpose of legal proceedings in relation to trade marks entered in the Sheffield register a certificate under the hand of the Master of the Cutlers' Company shall have the same effect as the certificate of the registrar.

This comes from sect. 81 of the Act of 1883, as amended by sect. 20 of the Act of 1888.

See Rules 107--112.

(a) It will be observed that an appeal against a decision of the Cutlers' Company is now to be brought direct to the Court. Hitherto such appeals have had to be brought to the comptroller in the first instance, his decision being subject to a further appeal to the Court. (Sect. 81 (2) of the Act of 1883, as amended by the Act of 1888.)

Cotton Marks.

64.—(1) The Manchester Branch of the Trade Marks Registry of Cotton marks. the Patent Office (herein-after called "the Manchester Branch") shall be continued according to its present constitution. A chief officer of the Manchester Branch shall be appointed who shall be styled "the Keeper of cotton marks," and shall act under the direction of the registrar. The present keeper of the Manchester Branch shall be the first Keeper of cotton marks.

(2) As regards cotton goods which have hitherto constituted classes 23, 24, and 25, under the classification of goods under the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Acts, 1883 to 1902, the Register of Trade Marks for all such goods, except such as may be prescribed (a), shall be called "the Manchester Register," and a duplicate thereof shall be kept at the Manchester Branch.

(3) All applications for registration of trade marks for such cotton goods in the said classes (herein-after referred to as "cotton marks") shall be made to the Manchester Branch (b).

(4) Every application so made to the Manchester Branch shall be notified to the registrar in the prescribed manner together with the report of the Keeper of cotton marks thereon, and unless the registrar, after considering the report and hearing, if so required, the applicant, within the prescribed time gives notice to the Keeper of cotton marks of objection to the acceptance of the application, it shall be advertised by the Manchester Branch and shall be proceeded with in the prescribed manner.

(5) If the registrar gives notice of objection as aforesaid the application shall not be proceeded with, but any person aggrieved may in the prescribed manner appeal to the Court or the Board of Trade, at the option of the applicant (c).

(6) Upon the registration of a trade mark in the Manchester Register the Keeper of cotton marks shall upon notice thereof from the registrar thereupon enter the mark in the duplicate of the Manchester Register, and such registration shall bear date as of the day of application to the Manchester Branch, and shall have the same effect as if the application had been made to the registrar on that day.

(7) When any mark is removed from or any cancellation or correction made in the Manchester Register notice thereof shall be given by the registrar to the Keeper of cotton marks, who shall alter the duplicate register accordingly.

(8) For the purpose of all proceedings in relation to trade marks entered in the Manchester Register a certificate under the hand of the Keeper of cotton marks shall have the same effect as a certificate of the registrar (d).

(9) In every application for registration of a cotton mark, if such mark has been used by the applicant or his predecessors in business prior to the date of application, the length of time of such user shall be stated on the application (e).

(10) As from the passing of this Act (f)—

- (a) In respect of cotton piece goods and cotton yarn no mark consisting of a word or words alone (whether invented or otherwise) shall be registered, and no word or words shall be deemed to be distinctive in respect of such goods (g):
- (b) In respect of cotton piece goods no mark consisting of a line heading alone shall be registered, and no line heading shall be deemed to be distinctive in respect of such goods (h):
- (c) No registration of a cotton mark shall give any exclusive right to the use of any word, letter, numeral, line heading, or any combination thereof (i).

(11) The right of inspection of the Manchester Register shall extend to and include the right to inspect all applications whatsoever that have been since the passing of the Trade Marks Registration Act, 1875, and hereafter shall have been made to the Manchester Branch in respect of cotton goods in classes 23, 24, and 25, whether registered, refused, lapsed, expired, withdrawn, abandoned, cancelled, or pending (j).

39 & 40 Vict.
c. 33.

(12) The Keeper of cotton marks shall, on request, and on production of a facsimile of the mark, and on payment of the prescribed fee, issue a certified copy of the application for registration of any cotton mark, setting forth in such certificate the length of time of user (if any) of such mark as stated on the application, and any other particulars he may deem necessary (k).

(13) As regards any rules or forms affecting cotton marks which are proposed by the Board of Trade to be made, the draft of the same shall be sent to the Keeper of cotton marks and also to the Manchester Chamber of Commerce. And the said Keeper, and also the said Chamber, shall, if they or either of them so request, be entitled to be heard by the Board of Trade upon such proposed rules before the same are carried into effect (l).

(14) The existing practice whereby the keeper of the Manchester Branch consults the Trade and Merchandise Marks Committee appointed by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce upon questions of novelty or difficulty arising on applications to register cotton marks shall be continued by the Keeper of cotton marks (m).

This is a new section, inserted at the instance of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of giving legislative sanction to the practice already obtaining with regard to the Manchester Branch of the Trade Marks Registry, and modifying the general provisions of this Act in certain directions desired by the Manchester trade. It is largely based upon the provisions relating to Sheffield marks now contained in sect. 63, ante.

See Rules 113—120.

(a) No distinction appears to be drawn by the Rules between the goods comprised in the three cotton classes, so that all would seem to be subject to the provisions of this section.

(b) By this sub-section all applications for registration of cotton marks are to be made at Manchester, whether the applicants carry on their business at Manchester or elsewhere. This is convenient, as enabling all cotton marks to be compared, whether Manchester marks or not. Under the previous sub-section existing registrations of cotton marks are to be recorded at Manchester.

(c) By this sub-section an applicant has his option of appealing either to the Court or to the Board of Trade in the same way as an applicant for the registration of any other trade mark has under sect. 12 (3).

(d) This is new, and corresponds with sect. 63 (11) relating to Sheffield marks.

(e) This is a new and useful provision, and it is difficult to understand why a similar provision was not introduced with regard to trade marks generally. So far as appears from the register, a trade mark used since the 14th August, 1875, is indistinguishable from a trade mark first used on the 14th August, 1905, both being technically new marks, but the one having in fact thirty years' user as against none. In any amendment of the Act it may be hoped that this provision of the Manchester section may be made generally applicable, so as to form some guide to those who have to deal with such matters of the strength of the case which can be set up.

(f) The provisions of this sub-section are entirely new, but in substance they are a statutory recognition of the rules which have hitherto been enforced with respect to cotton marks, and which have been considered to give effect to the special requirements of the cotton trade.

(g) According to the evidence given before the Parliamentary Committee, it has been the practice at Manchester for many years to reject all word marks which any plausible excuse could be found for rejecting, with the result that it has only been in the rarest cases that word marks have been registered for cotton goods. There was no authority to be found in the Act of Parliament for this distinction between cotton marks and other trade marks, but it was considered to be necessary in the interests of the cotton trade, and no objection seems to have been taken to it, so it may be assumed to have been recognized as reasonable. The sub-section does not appear to control the provisions contained in sect. 45 as to passing-off actions; but this is a point which will, no doubt, some day have to be considered by the Court.

(h) The number of line headings used on Manchester goods has been so vast, and the differences between them have been so trifling, that it has been the rule at Manchester not to regard such headings as distinctive, although the word "heading" has appeared in the definition section of the Act. Having regard to this sub-section, little effect is likely to be given to the fact that the word "heading" is still included in the definition of a mark in sect. 3. The same remark with respect to passing-off actions applies as with respect to words.

(i) This clause introduces letters and numerals, and extends to combinations of words, letters, numerals and line headings. It does not, however, appear to prevent such matters from being considered when comparing combination marks used by different traders.

(j) This is a new provision, but it continues the practice at the Manchester Office. It would be useful if made applicable generally, but it is more especially needed for the purposes of the cotton trade on account of the large proportion of applications which have had to be rejected for various reasons, all of which are capable of being regarded as anticipations of later marks whether they have been followed by registration or not.

(k) This is a new provision, and enables unsuccessful applicants for registration to obtain official evidence of the fact that their applications have been made.

(l) This affords special opportunities for the Keeper of cotton marks and the Manchester Chamber of Commerce to represent their views to the Board of Trade with respect to proposed new rules before such rules are made. (Compare sect. 60 (3).)

(m) The practice here recognized was recommended by the Departmental Committee presided over by Lord Herschell in 1887, and has prevailed ever since.

International and Colonial Arrangements.

International and Colonial arrangements,
48 & 49 Vict.
c. 63.

65. The provisions of sections one hundred and three and one hundred and four of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (as amended by the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks (Amendment) Act, 1885) (a), relating to the registration of trade marks both as enacted in such Acts and as applied by any Order in Council made thereunder (b), shall be construed as applying to trade marks registrable under this Act.

(a) See post, p. 188.

(b) See list of Orders in Council, post, p. 161.

Offences.

Falsification of entries in register.

66. If any person makes or causes to be made a false entry in the register kept under this Act, or a writing falsely purporting to be a copy of an entry in any such register, or produces or tenders or causes to be produced or tendered in evidence any such writing, knowing the entry or writing to be false, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

This comes from sect. 93 of the Act of 1883.

Penalty on falsely representing a trade mark as registered.

67.—(1) Any person who represents a trade mark as registered which is not so, shall be liable for every offence on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds.

(2) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this enactment, to represent that a trade mark is registered, if he uses in connection with the trade mark the word "registered," or any words expressing or implying that registration has been obtained for the trade mark (a).

This comes from sect. 105 of the Act of 1883.

(a) An indication of origin may be a trade mark, though unregistered, and the mere use of the words "trade mark" in connection with an unregistered mark does not imply, and is not punishable as implying, that such trade mark is registered. (See Sen-Sen Co. v. Britten, (1893) 1 Ch. 692; Royal Baking Powder Co. v. Wright, Crossley & Co., 18 P. R. 95.)

Royal Arms.

Unauthorised assumption of
Royal Arms.

68. If any person, without the authority of His Majesty, uses in connection with any trade, business, calling, or profession, the Royal Arms (or arms so closely resembling the same as to be calculated to deceive) in such manner as to be calculated to lead to the belief that he is duly authorised so to use the Royal Arms, or if any person without the authority of His Majesty or of a member of the Royal Family, uses in connection with any trade, business, calling, or profession any device, emblem, or title in such manner as to be calculated to lead to the belief that he is employed by or supplies goods to His Majesty or such member of the Royal Family, he may, at the suit of any person who is authorised to use such arms or such device, emblem, or title, or is authorised by the Lord Chamberlain to take proceedings in that behalf, be restrained by injunction or interdict from continuing so to use the same: Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as affecting the right, if any, of the proprietor of a trade mark containing any such arms, device, emblem or title to continue to use such trade mark (a).

This is a new section, extending the provisions of sect. 106 of the Act of 1883, which remains unrepealed. The language of that section, if strictly construed, would seldom be applicable to such cases as actually arise. As a matter of fact, the police magistrates have usually disregarded the actual language of the section, and have given effect to what was understood to be its intention. The object of the present section is to get over this difficulty, and to provide a more suitable remedy by enabling persons likely to be aggrieved to proceed by way of injunction instead of in the police court. Under this section it is not necessary to show that the effect of the use of the Royal Arms is calculated to lead to the belief that the person using them is carrying on his business under the authority of the Sovereign or of a member of the Royal Family or of a Government department. No mention is made of any Government department, and it is sufficient to show that the use of the Arms is calculated to lead to the belief that they are being used by the authority of His Majesty, or that the person using them is employed by or supplies goods to His Majesty or a member of the Royal Family. In such a case a person entitled to take proceedings as provided by this section is enabled to obtain an injunction in England or Ireland or an interdict in Scotland to prevent the continuance of the wrongful practice.

(a) It has always been the practice under the Acts regulating the registration of trade marks to refuse to allow the Royal Arms to appear in trade marks admitted to registration, unless such marks were already in use at the date of the passing of the first Trade Marks Registration Act—i.e., before 13th August, 1875. Consequently, the proviso with which the present section concludes can hardly apply to any marks introduced since that date. The proviso, however, is not limited to cases of registered trade marks, and until the Act of 1883 was passed there seems to have been no legal authority for saying that the unauthorized use of the Royal Arms was contrary to any statutory enactment. It will be observed that neither the present section nor sect. 106 of the Act of 1883 extends to the use of any arms other than the Royal Arms of the United Kingdom or arms which might be supposed to be such arms. See, however, Rules 12—14, post.

Courts.

69. The provisions of this Act conferring a special jurisdiction on the Court as defined by this Act shall not, except so far as the jurisdiction extends, affect the jurisdiction of any Court in Scotland or Ireland in any proceedings relating to trade marks; and with reference to any such proceedings in Scotland the term "the Court" shall mean the Court of Session; and with reference to any such proceedings in Ireland the term "the Court" shall mean the High Court of Justice in Ireland.

General saving for jurisdiction of Courts.

This section comes from sect. 111 of the Act of 1883. Under that section it was held, in In re King & Co. (1892, 2 Ch. 462), that the High Court of Justice in England (see sect. 3, ante) had jurisdiction to expunge a mark registered in the name of a domiciled Scotchman or Irishman. The question whether the Scotch and Irish Courts had concurrent jurisdiction was there left open, and those Courts have since differed on the subject, the Court of Session having held, in Cowie v. Herbert (14 P. R. 436), that it had authority to rectify the register (but see Dewar v. Dewar, 17 P. R. 311; Dawson v. Stewart, 22 P. R. 250; Reid v. Thomson, ib. 376); while the Irish Master of the Rolls held, in Bayer v. Connell (1897, 1 Ir. R. 544), that he had no such jurisdiction. Even if such a jurisdiction exists, it would seem well that it should not be exercised, having regard to the obvious inconvenience of the same register being controlled by different Courts, which might well take different views as to the principles to be applied.

Isle of Man.

70. This Act shall extend to the Isle of Man, and—

- (1) Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction of the Courts in the Isle of Man in proceedings for infringement or in any action or proceeding respecting a trade mark competent to those Courts :
- (2) The punishment for a misdemeanor under this Act in the Isle of Man shall be imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour and with or without a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, at the discretion of the Court :
- (3) Any offence under this Act committed in the Isle of Man which would in England be punishable on summary conviction may be prosecuted, and any fine in respect thereof recovered at the instance of any person aggrieved, in the manner in which offences punishable on summary conviction may for the time being be prosecuted.

This comes from sect. 112 of the Act of 1883.

Jurisdiction of Lancashire
Palatine
Court.

71. The Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster shall, with respect to any action or other proceeding in relation to trade marks, the registration whereof is applied for in the Manchester Branch, have the like jurisdiction under this Act as His Majesty's High Court of Justice in England, and the expression "the Court" in this Act shall be construed and have effect accordingly :

Provided that every decision of the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster in pursuance of this section shall be subject to the like appeal as decisions of that Court in other cases.

This section comes from sect. 26 of the Act of 1888, introduced into the Act of 1883 as sect. 112 (a).

Offences in Scotland.

72. In Scotland any offence under this Act declared to be punishable on summary conviction may be prosecuted in the Sheriff Court.

This comes from sect. 108 of the Act of 1883.

Repeal; Savings.

Repeal and saving for rules, &c.

73. The enactments described in the schedule to this Act are repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column, but this repeal shall not affect any rule, table of fees, or classification of goods made under any enactment so repealed, but every such rule, table of fees, or classification of goods shall continue in force as if made under this Act until superseded by rules, tables of fees, or classification under this Act.

This comes from sects. 113 and 115 of the Act of 1883. The effect of this repeal is that the whole of the Trade Marks Part of the Act of 1883, comprising sects. 62 to 81, is repealed, and that of the General Part of that Act, comprising sects. 82 to 117, the only sections which are left unrepealed with respect to trade marks are sects. 82 to 84, relating to the administration of the Patent Office (see sect. 74, post); sects. 103 and 104, relating to International and Colonial arrangements (see sect. 65, ante) ; and sect. 106, relating to the Royal Arms. With respect to the Act of 1888, the Trade Marks Part of this Act, comprising sects. 8 to 20, is repealed, and the remainder of the Act is also repealed, so far as it relates to trade marks.

74. The provisions of sections eighty-two to eighty-four of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, as amended by any subsequent enactment, shall continue to apply with respect to the administration at the Patent Office of the Law relating to the registration of trade marks, and shall accordingly be construed as if this Act formed part of that Act.
